Bull Stud President Gives Thoughts On Future Of Dairy Industry

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

TYRONE (Blair Co.) - For the new president of Genex/CRI, a positive attitude, cooperation between cooperatives, and personnel management skills are items of importance when he thinks about involvement in the future of the dairy industry.

David Hileman, along with his wife Janet, own Hilecrest Farm near Warriors Mark in Blair County. They farm 650 acres and milk 450 Registered Holsteins in a double six herringbone milking parlor that is 20 years old but has been updated to include a now-in-progress conversion to automatic identification, completely computerized system. This will bring the operation up to utilize all the latest technology that can be incorporated into this parlor without going out and building it new.

The cows average 23,000 lbs in a freestall setting with a labor force of six full time people. "I'm in a position where I don't milk

June Dairy Month: Salute To The Dairy Industry

June is Dairy Month and with this issue we salute the dairy farmers and the agribusiness enterprises that make this industry such a large part of our economy. You will find many farm family interviews with special emphasis on how they view the future of dairying. Our readers sent in more than 300 dairy recipes to help promote the industry, and the first of these receipes are published in this issue with more to come in each of the following issues in June.

The first lesson of the first module of a dairy management course taught by Lancaster County's well-known Penn State Extension dairy specialist, Glenn Shirk is in this issue too. These lessons will be published on a continuing weekly basis and eventually archived on the Internet in Lancaster Farming Online for everyone to access as needed.

Begining this issue we also have listed the Internet addresses of some dairy farms across the nation. And the messages from our advertisers help show the exciting times that are ahead for all who adapt to the changes the future will bring. Of course, we have our regular columns, markets, and news from other segments of agriculture as well.

We, the staff, hope you enjoy receiving this issue of Lancaster Farming as much as we have enjoyed sending it you.

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Promotion Mergers Set

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — No more MAMMA.

The Townson, Maryland-based Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) has effectively merged with two other dairy consumption-promotion agencies, according to a news release made this week by MAMMA.

The idea has been kicked around for years, but only since last year was merger work formalized between the three groups that operate in the same region, according to MAMMA.

According to the news release, the merger was accomplished by the boards of directors of the three milk promotion groups, which receive portions of dairy farmer milk promotion checkoff funds according to request and approval to operate their programs.

The farmer-funded milk promotion program collects 15 cents per hundredpounds of milk sold by a farmer. Of that, the farmer has the right to direct a percentage to specific programs, while the rest is to be used nationally.

Any group with a qualifying program can apply for the funds.

MAMMA is a marketing/promotion agency that has concentrated its promotional efforts, and thus its draw on the farmer-provided funds, in the federal Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Order, also known as the Federal Order 4 area. That includes southeastern and south central Pennsyl-

Chesapeake Milk To Provide Green Money

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — A new brand of milk is about to appear this month on some grocers' shelves in the Chesapeake Bay watershed.

Chesapeake Milk.

No joke.

According to the non-profit, environmental conservation-focused organization Dairy Network Partnership (DNP), branded milk cartons were being manufactured this week for packaging by Sunnydale Farms — a New York dairy processor that also has successfully worked cooperatively to market organic milk with Natural by Nature, also involved in the Chesapeake Milk program.

The origin of the milk itself is not as much a detail of concern in the marketing program as is the result of the sale of the milk at retail — a nickle per half-gallon sold is to be deposited in an "Environmental Quality Initiative" account with the money to be used next year to provide a pre-

Tue, June 02, 1998
USDA-MO Dept. Ag Market News
DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Wheat and soybean bids gained a little momentum today, despite continued good wheat harvest and planting progress. Cool weather conditions in the Northern Plains and continued dryness in Canada helped support wheat bids. Corn and soybean bids climbed due to fund buying on the Board and very good overnight export sales of corn. Wheat steady to 3 cents higher. Corn 2 to 4 cents higher. Sorghum 3 cents higher. Soybeans 2 to 5 cents higher.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds continued to slow and was light and unaggresive. Offerings were adequate to ample on the heavier sizes; adequate and generally in good balance on the smaller sizes. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights were desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Less than truckIot asking prices were unchanged at 65 to 79 cents. Trade sentiment was steady at best. In the parts complex, all items were at least adequate. Demand for most items was light and selective.

National Egg Market

ATLANTA, GA
JUNE 03, 1998

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:

Prices were unchanged to higher for the large sizes in the Southeast, Midwest, and Boston, and unchanged elsewhere. Prices were unchanged to lower for mediums in the Midwest, and unchanged elsewhere. All other prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady to firm for the large sizes, and no better than steady for light weights. Demand covered the full range and was mostly moderate with best movement into retail specials. Supplies continued close to adequate for the large sizes, and adequate to ample for light sizes. Breaking stock supplies were adequate to fully adequate for the mixed demand, and light weight eggs remained readily available. Light type hen supplies were at least adequate for full schedules.

USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News

Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Feeder cattle steady to 2.00 lower. Demand moderate for feeder cattle. Stocker steers and steer calves 4.00 lower. Stocker heifers and heifer calves steady with last week's decline. Demand light for calves. Wheat harvest just underway in Oklahoma, thus farmers not interested in receiving calves. Calf supply mostly unweaned or short term weaned new crops. Bulk supply feeder cattle. Quality plain thru average, end attractive with several Brahman Cross cattle in supply. Feeder cattle in medium to moderate flesh. Weigh-ups full to mostly average. Slaughter cows and bulls steady. Packer demand moderate. 600 cows and bulls sold with 45 percent to packers; balance of cows individual sales of bred cows, pairs, and young grazing/feeder cows. Drought in Texas continues to limit activity at auction from Texas packers. Receipts this week 16,975; last week 7,022; last year 12,595. Supply consisted of 87 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 9 percent calves under 600 lbs; 4 percent cows and bulls. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

In the dairy business, income over feed cost is the name of the game Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements offer dairymen the means to maximize this value while getting the most from their cow's natural abilities

Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements are concentrated sources of just what ordinary feeds lack protein, energy, vitamins, minerals -- everything animals need for economical milk production and growth

For replacement heifers, Pro-Lix means faster maturity and assurance that they'll get to the milking herd on time If you trust your heifers to forage alone, they might not make it (Bouvatec Is Available)

For lactating cows, the nitrogen content of Pro-Lix means plenty of protein available for milk production and growth

Finally, for dry cows, Pro-Lix not only helps maintain their health during the dry period it prepares them for the next lactation The Ca P ratio in Pro-Lix helps control milk fever, while the Vitamin E and selenium aids in clean-up after the birth of a calf

Best of all, Pro-Lix works with all types of pasture grass or forage, as a free-choice supplement, a top-dressing, or a ration mix

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

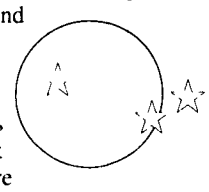
FULL STRAWBERRY MOON, JUNE 10.

CORPUS CHRISTI

The feast day that honors the "body of Christ" on June 11 this year follows the Full Strawberry Moon by just a day The nun who originated the holiday back in 1246 did so because she claimed to have seen a vision of the bright full Moon with a dark spot upon it, symbolizing the lack of a suitable feast for the occasion Corpus Christi always falls on the Thursday after Trinity Sunday (June 7, this year) and now involves spectacular processions, especially in Spain, Portugal, southern parts of France, and Latin America This year, it is also the feast of St Barnabas, known for his weather lore



Barnaby bright, Barnaby bright, the longest day and the shortest night.

TIP OF THE WEEK

MINTED COUSCOUS

2 cans chicken broth
3 cups couscous
1/2 cup toasted pine nuts
4 scallions, chopped
1/4 to 1/2 cup chopped fresh mint
2 tablespoons fresh dill
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Bring broth to a boil, remove from heat, and stir in couscous. Cover and let stand for 5 minutes, then fluff with a fork Add pine nuts, scallions, mint, dill, and lemon juice and stir to mix

Makes 8 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Rain on Barnabas (June 11) is good for grapes.

When prairie dogs are playful, it is a sign of fair weather.

If the sky beyond the clouds is blue, be glad, there is a picnic for you.

When wind comes before rain, soon you may make sail again.

Where's Your Milk Mustache?

For the 61st consecutive year, America's dairy farmers will be honored nationwide during June Dairy Month. The salute has been an annual event since 1937, when grocer organizations sponsored "National Milk Month." Two years later, the observation became known as Dairy Month, promoting the consumption of all dairy foods.

This year's June Dairy Month theme is "Milk. Where's Your Mustache?" This theme, based on popular series of advertisements featuring celebrity faces, serves to encourage us to show off our own milk mustache.

Milk and milk products are valued not only for their great taste but also for their rich nutrient content. Milk is what nutritionists call a "nutrient-dense" food, containing an abundance of vitamins and minerals per calorie. In fact, diary foods provide 76 percent of calcium available in American diet, as well as other vitamins and minerals, including protein, magnesium, potassium, riboflavin (vitamin B2), and vitamins A and D.

Calcium is not only crucial in helping build strong bones and teeth but can head off long-term health problems. Calcium is vital to the prevention of the crippling bone disease osteoporosis, and it can also help prevent certain types of cancer. Expectant mothers need calcium to guard against preeclampsia, disease of late pregnancy that is the leading cause of premature births in North America.

Other minerals found in milk, particularly potassium and magnesium, may help prevent high blood pressure in people at risk to develop it, and lower blood pressure in those who already have elevated levels. In fact, a low-fat diet including plenty of fruits, vegetables, and at least two servings of milk has been proven to reduce high blood pressure in as little as two weeks, faster than many medications.

But milk is not just milk anymore. Plenty of varieties are available to suit the needs and tastes of everyone, including whole, 2 percent reduced-fat, 1 percent or 1/2 percent lowfat, and fat-free. Also available are chocolate, coffee, and strawberry flavored milks, many of which have the same nutrients as white milk; buttermilk, a must for Southerners to crumble their cornbread into; lactose-reduced milk and milk with cultures added, for people who have trouble digesting milk; and lowfat milks with added proteins to create a texture more like higher-fat milks.

New packages are now available, too, including screw top half-gallon cartons; round plastic and glass bottles, perfect for the car's cup holder; and carbonated milk beverages. New cow-spotted and other trendy graphics are also appearing in the dairy case.

When it comes to taste, nothing comes close to the refreshment of an ice-cold glass of milk. What goes better with hot, gooey, homemade chocolate chip cookies, a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, or a slice of homemade chocolate cake?

This June Dairy Month–and all year long–be proud of your milk mustache and enjoy plenty of milk and other dairy products.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Salute Dairy Farmers

June is dairy month. The time of year to promote dairy products and remember the people involved in the dairy industry. This is the industry that gives us ice cream sundaes, cheese for our pizza, cottage cheese to eat with apple butter, butter for our vegetables and milk to drink. Besides tasting good, these fine dairy products are very nutritious.

They provide calcium and other nutrients necessary for growth and good health. The dairy industry is changing to meet the changing needs of the consumer. Now is the time to studying these changes and make plans on how you will fit into the new dairy industry.

Exciting times are ahead for those who will adapt to the changes. Enjoy this issue of Lancaster Farming and realize how bright a future is ahead for the dairy industry.

To Look For Leafhoppers

Now is the time to begin looking for potato leafhoppers. After you take off the first cutting of alfalfa hay you should begin sampling these fields for this little green insect.

To sample a field, take 10 sweeps with an insect net. Count the number of leafhopper adults and nymphs. Then compare this number to the height of the alfalfa in inches. If the leafhopper count is greater than the height of the alfalfa, either spray or cut the alfalfa early. Do this at several locations in a field.

To Sign Up For 5 Acre Corn Club

The Pennsylvania 5 Acre Corn Club is looking for members for the 1998 growing season. The program is designed to bring together farmers, seed dealers and extension agents interested in achieving more profitable corn production in Pennsylvania. Farmers who are interested in the program must enroll before July 1st at their county extension office.

Before corn harvest they must complete a survey of their production practices. At harvest time, an extension agent or an approved supervisor will assist the farmer in performing a yield check and collect the survey information.

All participants in the program will receive a summary of yield and management information from all participants. Top producers will be recognized. For more information, contact your county extension office.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "For our children, the road to happiness and success is usually paved by our example."

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

It is hard to believe that a year has gone by since I was given the honor of being the SUN Area Dairy Princess. I cannot think of a way to express the way my year has made me feel. The fact that I had the opportunity to represent agriculture's number one industry, the dairy industry, means more than anything. Throughout my reign as princess I have traveled well over 1,300 miles, and spoken to hundreds of people about the importance of milk, and dairy products.

I cannot take all of the credit for such a successful year, though. I would not have been able to achieve such goals without the help of my Alternate Dairy Princess Jane Wehr, Dairy Maids Sarah Erdly, Selena Hollenbach, Jennifer McWilliams, Rachel Risser, Amanda Strouse, Lisa Heimbach, Leslie Kenamond, Jessica Risser, Jenna Straub, and Samantha Troxell, and Dairy Misses Christina Brosious, Katie Gessner, Raquel Hauck, Tina Hollenbach, Brittany Fry, Brittany Rice, Amanda Shaffer, Corinda Varner, Amanda Hauck, Dawn Heimbach, Heather Klingler, Janelle Risser, and Laci Shirey. Together we have accomplished 33 school promotions, 12 store/mall promotions and by June 13 we hope to have done 100 promotions or more. To all of the girls, THANK YOU!! To all of the parents that helped us out, thank you, too.

My committee has also been a help in organizing and chaperoning events, they have also been a "taxi" service when I needed one, and I couldn't have asked for a better group of ladies to work with: Linda Fisher, Sue Hoffman, and Shannon Hoffman, along with Shawn Hoffman, Cindy Shaffer, Vicki Heimbach, and Jane Hawn, I really appreciate all you have done for me, and the girls.

To my family, you have helped

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE FINAL WORD

June 7, 1998

Background Scripture:
Ecclesiastes 1:1-3; 2:1-4, 10-15; 4:1-3, 12:13-14
Devotional Reading:
I Corinthians 13:1-3

There is one word that runs through Ecclesiastes. It is the word "vanity." It begins with "Vanity of vanities says the preacher, vanity of vanities! All is vanity." And six verses short of the end of Ecclesiastes, he says the very same thing, "Vanity of vanities, says the Preacher; all is vanity" (12:8).

It means "empty," "futile," "worthless." Of all he has seen and experienced, he says, "All was vanity and a striving after wind" (2:11). How did a book so cynical get into the Bible? What is the point in reading his anguished and anguishing words, when they are too much like what we hear every day from our own mouths and those of others?

Actually, that is the point: they are enough like our own worst doubts that it is refreshing to see them in print and know that others have asked the same searing questions. None of us are likely to exclaim, "Vanity, all is vanity," but think of some of the ways in which we may say pretty much the same: "What's the use?" "There's no point in it!?" "Why try?" "Life's not fair!" "What kind of God would run a world like this?" Or how do you say it?

HE HAD IT ALL

The preacher did not begin with cynicism, but with the expectation that things would give him lasting pleasure: "I made great works; I built houses and planted vineyards for myself; I made myself gardens and parks, and planted in them all kinds of fruit trees" (2:4,5). He made himself pools, acquired slaves, herds and flocks, silver and gold, male and female singers, "and many concubines, man's delight."

He had it all: "So I became great and surpassed all who were before me in Jerusalem . . . And whatever my eyes desired I did not keep from them; I kept my heart from no pleasure" (2:9,10).

And yet he had nothing: "Then I considered all that my hands had done and the toil I had spent in doing it, and behold, all was vanity and a striving after wind, and there was nothing to be gained under the sun" (2:11,12). He had chosen the popular way of self-salvation and it all turned out to be futile and worthless.

The Preacher's experience only confirms what the Bible teaches us: we cannot find our salvation, our purpose in living by indulging ourselves with material things and fleeting pleasures. This man had worked hard all his life, but his work brought him only things and with these the pleasure was brief and fleeting. So, as far as he is concerned, even hard work was no salvation.

PAINFULLY CONTEMPORARY

The preacher was also made cynical by the evil he saw in the world. "Again I saw all the oppressions that are practiced under the sun. And behold the tears of the oppressed, and they had no one to comfort them" (4:1). Think how discouraged he would feel if he read our daily newspapers and watched our television news!

Although this book may have been written as long ago as the 3rd century BC, the point of view and society of the writer are painfully contemporary. Our society today is probably even much more materialistic and hedonistic than his. So much of what many of us live, work and die for falls under the Preacher's heading of "Vanity, all is vanity."

But, although the preacher speaks our human "last word" on life, it is not the final word, for that comes from God alone: "The end of the matter, all has been heard. Fear God, and keep his commandment; for this is the whole duty of man. For God will bring every deed into judgment, with every secret thing, whether good or evil" (12:13,14). We cannot save ourselves with work, pleasure or self-indulgence. But God can save us, and does.

Free Enterprise...

Two words that business people around the world take very seriously. Members of the Pennsylvania Livestock Auction Association take free enterprise very seriously too. They realize that producers have a choice when it comes time to buy and sell livestock and they are dedicated to making sure that producers can take advantage of the free enterprise system in the best way possible... at the local auction market.

Pennsylvania livestock markets strive to provide you with the kind of service you deserve as a business person and a friend. You can be assured that the honesty, integrity and solid marketing fundamentals found at your local market will ensure nothing less than the true market value for your livestock.

Multiple solutions for double crop acres.

CX 351 Mid-Group III
Multi-race (Rps1c) resistance to Phytophthora allows use on poorly drained soils. Adapted to all row widths.

CX 375 Late Group III
Resists Phytophthora root rot. Excellent brown stem rot resistance. Ideal for no-till and solid-seeded planting.

CX 377 Late Group III
Very high yield potential. Excellent emergence and seedling vigor. Very good standability and shatter resistance.

CX 399 Late Group III
Outstanding yields. Resistance to 16 races of Phytophthora root rot. Very good emergence and seedling growth.

Some may think doubling our soybean line in two years is a big accomplishment. To us, it's just the beginning.

We're pushing onward and upward with higher yields, improved disease resistance, STS™ varieties and Roundup Ready® soybeans.

Fourth Generation To Farm Peach-Vale

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — "This is how our farm looked 30 years ago," Johnny B. Peachey says while holding an aerial photograph of Peach-Vale Farm, located. between Reedsville and Belleville in Mifflin County. Compared to the Dairy of Distinction it is today, the farm in the photograph is missing a second house and a lot of white paint. "I wonder what it'll look like in another 30 years."

Johnny B. might not be able to predict how Peach-Vale will look structurally 20 years from now, but he can be sure of one thing. The conservative approach to business that has served him so well in the past will do the same for his son Robert. Robert started working with his father in 1986 and shares many of his father's views on managing a farm.

"We're slow to jump on any miracle products," Johnny B. explains. "Feed by-products, preservatives, BST — it all costs money and cuts into profits. Our cows are already milking good. We don't want them under more stress."

The Peacheys own 145 tillable acres (plus rent an additional 25 acres) and milk 90 registered Holsteins in a 76-tie stall barn for a 23,319-pound herd average. The farm has come a long way since Johnny B., grandfather (also Johnny B.) rented it in the early 1900s. He rented it for 30 years. His father, John E. Peachey, was born there and rented it from 1932 until he purchased it in 1954.

Johnny B. joined the farming operation in 1968, named it Peach-Vale, and started registering the herd. At that time, the barn housed 40 tie stalls. In 1973, 24 more stalls were added. In 1988, Johnny B. added 12 more stalls and built a manure pit.

Robert now farms in partnership with his father but began as a wage earner after spending one year on the western wheat harvest. He has purchased cows over the past nine years, examining pedigrees and studying cow families. Last year, he purchased half the herd. Robert lives in the main farmhouse with his wife Lisa and children Chelsie, 8, Zachary, 6, and Taylor, 2.

While Johnny B foresaw the marketing advantages of registered cows, Robert is the one who is in charge of the herd's breeding program.

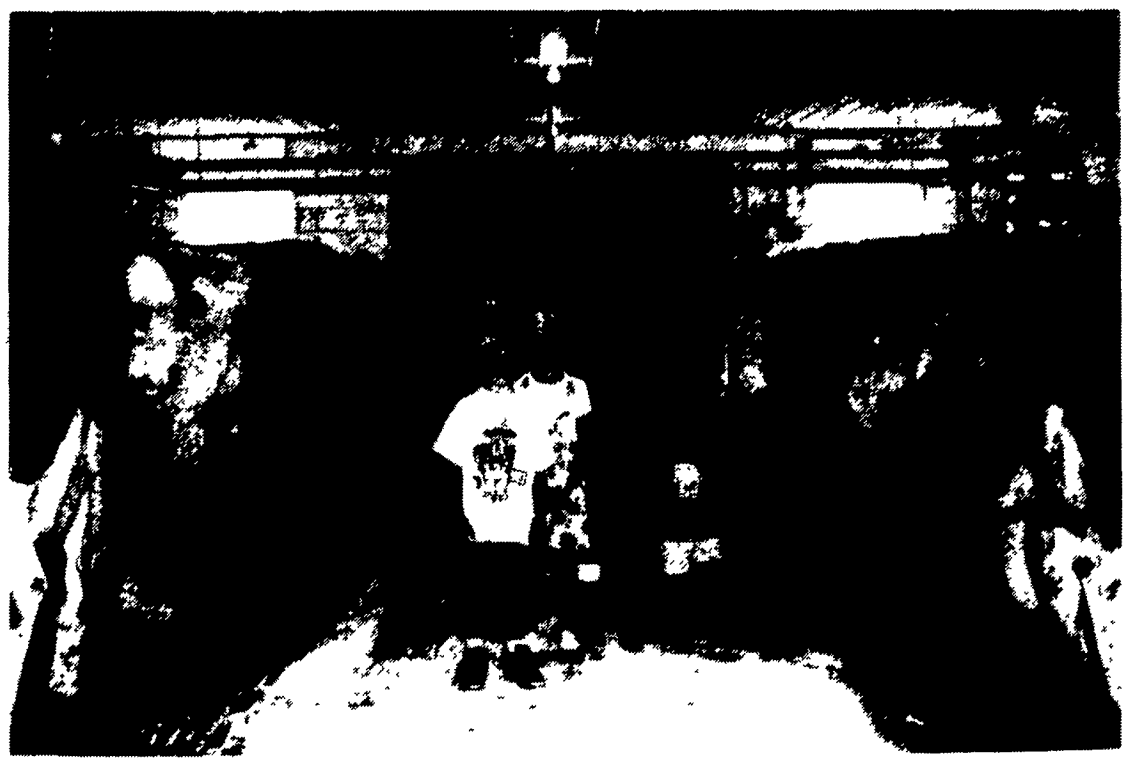
"My goal is for a good type herd. It's better now than it was five years ago. We have more older cows in the herd, and we're not culling as many cows as we used to. The udders are holding up better because we're using more type bulls," Robert explains.

Robert is building the herd around five main bull families. He's seeing a more uniform line of cows with good udders, feet, and legs. Neither Johnny B. nor Robert have any desire to expand the herd, but Robert says he wouldn't mind merchandising a couple of cows each year and sees some extra profit in selling fresh or bred heifers. "I'd like to flush a couple of deep-pedigreed cows and get a couple of Excellent cows in the barns," Robert reflects.

Robert manages Peach-Vale's feeding program too. Because of the tie stalls, the Peachey's can feed each cow individually. The cows in the 70-pound group get one-half corn silage and one-half haylage, two to three pounds of baled hay the first thing in the morning, 18 pounds of high moisture corn, and seven pounds of 36 percent protein. Anything above 80 pounds gets 20 percent top dress. The Peacheyks used to feed one-third corn silage and two-thirds haylage, but have changed their ration for a number of reasons — better herd health, less hay acres, and the availability of more corn silage and high moisture corn storage over haylage storage.

While Robert oversees the feeding and breeding programs, Johnny B. manages the crops — 95 acres of corn and 70 acries of an alfalfa and orchard grass mix.

Taylor, Zach, and Chelsie Peachey (on the four-wheeler) are the fifth generation at Peach-Vale Farm near Belleville. Johnny B. (left) and son Robert are in partnership. Robert's wife, Lisa, helps feed calves and keeps the farm records. The family dog managed to get in the picture too.



Managing 90 registered Holsteins in a 76-tie stall barn enables Johnny B. and Robert to feed and care for the animals individually. Johnny B. and Robert are joined by Zach, Chelsie, and Taylor.

Johnny B. Peachey holds a framed notice of his grandfather's public sale dated 1932.

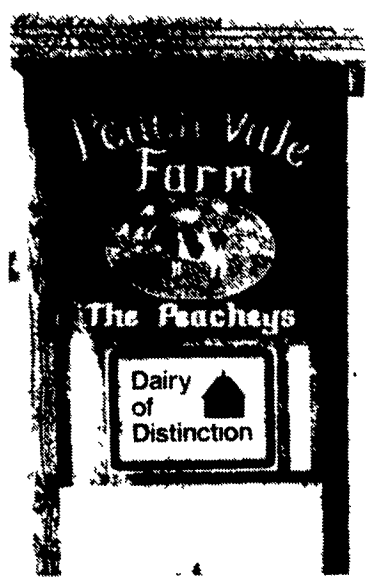
Johnny B. believes good forages are the key to profit.

Lisa feeds the calves each morning, keeps the books, and milks occasionally, and except for Johnny B.'s niece, they hire no extra help. While no major changes are planned for the operation, Robert would like to install a stationary mixer, a bunk feeder, and tunnel ventilation in the barn to reduce the noise.

"We're both picky," says Robert. "We work well together. If you hire someone, you get into Social Security and workman's comp. And you need someone who already knows how to milk. Sometimes it's easier to do it yourself. Maybe we'll get some part-time help this summer."

As it is, each gets one Sunday evening off a month. But Johnny B. still sees the everyday advantage to farming and running your own business.

"There is less physical work than years ago. But there is just as much stress if not more. You're dealing with a bigger operation and you have to stay on top of things. You have to have good nerves. I like managing my own business rather than managing help. This way, I always have a job; I'm never laid off; I'm my own boss; and I'm not working the hours someone else is telling me I have to work. Whatever work we do, we reap the benefits.



Peach-Vale Farm, a Dairy of Distinction, is located in the heart of Big Valley, midway between Reedsville and Belleville, Mifflin County.

Famous Creamery Helps Penn State Alumni Raise Student Scholarship Funds

DAVID HIEBERT
Westmoreland Co.
Correspondent

OLIVER (Fayette Co.)–Dairy products from the largest, and probably the most famous, creamery in the nation, supported an Alumni Society's fundraising effort here on May 9. Penn State's Creamery at University Park provided the 579 half gallons of ice cream and yogurt that were sold to raise finds for a student scholarship.

The most popular of the flavors? Butter pecan which sold 93 half gallons. Peachey Paterno was close behind at 79. In all people could choose from 11 ice cream and 2 yogurt flavors.

Though only 11 options were available at this sale, new flavors are always being created, and visitors may wonder how names are chosen. Some pay tribute to Penn State faculty who have made outstanding contributions to higher education. Cherryquist, for instance, a creamy black cherry and vanilla ice cream, is named for John Almquist, professor emeritus of dairy science and the 1982 winner of the Wolf Prize the highest awarded in agricultural science. Keeney Beany, a double chocolate ice cream with chocolate chunks, pays tribute to Professor Emeritus Philip Keeney, a nationally recognized teacher and scientist in ice cream and chocolate technology. A more recent addition, Peachy Paterno, was named to honor Penn State's famous football coach.

At the morning pick up in Fayette County, a constant stream of supporters came by to pick up their dairy products. For most it was a quick stop. But some stopped to chat with the 7-10 volunteers who were filling the ice cold orders. For John Yukish, President of Fayette campus Alumni Society and campus Advisory Board member, the morning was an opportunity to greet University alumni from as far as Pittsburgh and West Virginia, CRH Catering, Connellsville, provided the refrigerated truck to bring the frozen product from State College for the sale.

Other volunteers included Rita Gumbert, Uniontown, who works on week days in the Fayette campus finance office. She brought her eleven year old daughter Ashely and a friend Tina Bandzuch. Alumni staff, Leslie Stafford and Janet Gibson extended their efforts in the alumni office to this hands on part of the enterprise.

According to the Penn State web site, most visitors to Penn State's Creamery know about its

MARSHA ANN CHESS
Mercer Co. Correspondent

TOWNVILLE (Crawford Co.) — A strong desire to succeed in the dairy industry by growing and increasing efficiency prompted Crawford County dairy farmers Robert J. and Christine Waddell, Townville, to build a new free stall barn and expand their herd.

Waddells are currently milking 280 head of primarily grade Holsteins and are slowly growing to 400. Much of their growth will be internal, but they are buying between 80 and 100 heifers from a neighboring farmer.

They decided to expand because they are outgrowing their current facility.

"We feel it's the direction the industry is taking," said Chris. "Rob is very progressive and likes the challenge." Rob added, "It will help us become more efficient."

Currently, they are in the process of building a new, 206-stall, free stall barn, but they plan to expand it to 400 stalls. They also plan to build a new parlor in two to five years.

Planning for the new free stall barn, parlor, and herd expansion has been ongoing for several years.

"We did a lot of budgeting and planning," Chris said. "We spent money to bring a consultant in, and looked at finances again and again."

In addition to spending a lot of time looking at the financial aspects, they toured farms and considered a wide range of designs.

Rob said he followed a rule-of-thumb when considering changing an operation, "Do everything with the worst case scenario, figure lower milk prices and production than you realistically expect."

Before they started construction they constantly worked to improve their rolling herd average, which is currently 23,000 pounds of milk, and their harvesting system, to get forages off faster..

"Your planting and harvesting set up your feed for next year," Rob said, "so it's important to get things in and off at the right times."

Like most farmers, they are continuously working to improve milk production and cropping efficiency.

Waddells have even planned the move into the new facility to help ease the transition and reduce stress on the animals.

"We plan to move first calf heifers and younger cows first," Rob said. "We're going to try to do everything slowly and right." They hope to begin moving into the new barn by mid-July.

The Waddell family originally came to Apple Shamrock Farms in 1976, when Rob's dad, Bob, bought the 243-acre farm. At that time there were 105 Jerseys and one Holstein on the farm.

First Union Bank believes "The Family Farm is the Backbone of Agriculture." On behalf of all dairy farmers, we are pleased to salute the success of Skyline Acres, near Shartlesville, PA. The Hix family of western Berks County, standing before their newly constructed 450-cow facility, have been in the dairy business since 1946. They currently farm approximately 750 acres and have 450 cows and 125 heifers. Their current herd average is over 21,000 lbs/cow. The Hix family are members of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and Tulpehocken Young Farmers. John is also a township supervisor.

A SALUTE TO DAIRY FARMERS. EVERY MONTH IS DAIRY MONTH WITH US.

June is National Dairy Month and at First Union/CoreStates Bank we feel you deserve credit more than one month out of the year.

Managing a successful dairy operation requires working capital year round. We're here to help you meet your financial needs.

Dairy is a major agricultural enterprise in Pennsylvania and Maryland and First Union/CoreStates Bank is proud to be a major lending source to agriculture.

Maryland Recycles Empty Pesticide Containers

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Virts, D.V.M., announced the kickoff of the 1998 empty plastic pesticide container recycling program. A total of 30 collection days are scheduled June through September at nine sites located throughout the state.

"The response to this program by farmers, commercial agricultural pesticide applicators, and other pesticide users has been very encouraging the past five years. Large increases in participation have occurred since the container collection program was first offered in 1993 and I am anticipating additional participation in 1998. Because of requests to maintain the program in regional areas throughout the state, we have kept the nine collection sites used in 1997," said Virts.

"In addition, the container recycling program will help us meet the commitments of the Chesapeake Bay Toxics Reduction and Prevention Strategy. Rinsing and recycling empty pesticide containers reduce the potential for contamination of ground water and the Chesapeake Bay while saving valuable landfill space. Since 1993, over 140,000 empty plastic pesticide containers have been inspected, collected and processed. The Agricultural Container Research Council (ACRC) will provide a chipper to grind the plastic containers into flakes, which are then transported to a contractor for recycling," said Virts.

Maryland's container recycling program is a combined effort of state, county, and federal agencies and private industry working together to protect the environment. With the cooperation of Mid-Shore Regional Recycling, Kent County Public Works, Wicomico Public Works, Frederick County Bureau of Solid Waste Management, Harford County Public Works, St. Mary's County Public Works, Southern States Oakland Cooperative, Martin's Elevator, Maryland Environmental Service, United States Department of Agriculture, ACRC, and Maryland farmers or pesticide applicators, the program has been effective in reducing the landfill disposal of plastic pesticide containers and in allowing the plastic to be reused.

"With continued cooperation among the participating groups, farmers and pesticide applicators, the program will continue to be successful and will protect the natural resources of the state from potential contamination by pesticides," said Virts.

For additional information, contact Mary Ellen Setting, chief of the Department's Pesticide Regulation Section, (410) 841-5710.

In 1980 they began construction of a free stall barn and over the years they added a new heifer barn, equipment shed, multi-purpose building, and more free stalls. They did most of the work themselves relying on Bob's 25 years of experience in construction.

Rob and Chris were married in 1983 and went into partnership with his parents, Bob and Lorna, in 1985. In 1991 Rob and Chris bought out Bob and Lorna, who are now retired.

Today Rob and Chris own 300 acres of tillable farm land and farm a total of 1,000 acres.

As they look to the future, Rob said, "We are not planning to expand beyond 400 unless one of our children wants to come into the operation."

But, he said, it's too soon to tell, as Josh is 14, Joey's 12, and Katie is only 10.

However, Chris said, "Josh loves farming and he says he's going to farm. He helps out a lot.

"Our goal is a better quality of life," she said. "I want to be able to spend more time with my kids," Rob said. "Here I can see my kids grow up."

Running a farm the size of theirs requires hired help, and running a profitable business and providing jobs is one of Waddells' goals.

They employ five people full time and five part time. Rob said he sees this as one of the biggest changes he has experienced. "It's more managing people than it used to be."

Workers hurrying to get the new free stall barn finished so Rob and Chris Waddell can begin moving cows in mid-July.

Wester Jersey Farm: The Art Of Becoming Farmers

MARSHA ANN CHESS
Mercer Co. Correspondent

JAMESTOWN (Mercer Co.) — Albin and Betty Wester, Jamestown, Mercer County, started dairy farming a little differently than many other farmers.

It all started when they brought a family Jersey cow to their eight-acre home 22 years ago. It grew into a Jersey farm in the early 1980s. Today they milk 57 head and have an expansion in progress.

Westers still own only the original eight acres, but they rent approximately 200 acres on which they grow corn silage and hay. They buy all of their grain and some hay. In the past they bought nearly all of their feed.

Despite their small acreage, manure has never really been a problem.

"We're out of the way up here, so it's not a real problem," said Albin, adding, "We take great pains to keep it off the road and make sure the wind is not blowing toward the neighbors' houses when we spread."

They started farming because it was something Albin had always wanted to do.

"I'm a farm boy," Albin said, "the farm kinda grew on the rest of the family."

Growing up, Wester had worked on Holstein farms, but he really likes his Jerseys. "We think they're the cow of the future," he said.

In addition to being a dairyman, Albin is a retired teacher, an artist, and a builder.

"It's interesting," he said. "I've been all these things and I have a daughter who is an artist, one who is a teacher, a son who is a carpenter, and another daughter who is a farmer (currently a dairy science and pre-veterinary student at Delaware Valley College)."

At present they are in the process of building a parlor and adding onto the free stall barn with plans to milk 100-150 cows in the future.

"We're growing slowly, doing 90 percent of the work ourselves with help from our son. It's enabling us to avoid taking on a lot of debt."

In addition to building the new parlor and expanding the free stall barn, Wester is working on an art studio in which to paint portraits. He hopes to have time to spend painting after they get the parlor up and running.

Westers run the farm themselves with the help of a girl hired part time, and Albin's right hand "girl," a border collie named Esther.

As they look to the future, they hope to get into merchandising and have that as part of their income. To reach that goal they've been working to improve the genetics of their herd.

"We started with some not very good cows," Betty said. "They were all grades, but we put them in genetic recovery and really focused on our breeding program."

It has worked. Their herd averaged 51 pounds per cow on their most recent test day.

Both Albin and Betty feel they appreciate good cows more now than they would have if they had them when they started.

Westers are not the only ones who have noticed their success. They received the Pennsylvania Jersey Management Award in 1994.

It hasn't always been easy, getting up at 4 am.. and learning as they go, but they have survived. Albin laughed and said the biggest challenge sometimes has been not running away.

"I didn't know anything about farming when we first got married," Betty said, "I was afraid of anything larger than a terrier.

"One thing that really helped us learn was 4-H. Our youngest daughter, Leanna, got involved in 4-H and I had to take her. 4-H helped build our interest and taught us about animal care."

Now, Betty said she has complete confidence in her ability to work with the cows, although she feels there is always more to be learned.

"In some ways building from scratch has been good," Albin said, "but it would have been nice to start with one big barn instead of having to keep building on."

One advantage they feel they had was not having any bad habits or being set in their ways.

Ablin said his advice to others wanting to get into the dairy business is to hang around good farmers and learn from them.

"Keep your ears open and listen," Betty said. "Think positive," Albin added, "We're very positive."

Albin and Betty Wester along with grandson Gus, and Al's right hand dog Esther take pride in their Mercer County Jersey Farm.

MARSHA ANN CHESS
Mercer County Correspondent

Marsha Ann Chess is a December 1997 graduate of Penn State University with a degree in dairy and animal science.

A Mercer County correspondent for Lancaster Farming, she is employed on her family's Pleasant View Farm, in Fredonia, Mercer County, where her duties include milking, and calf and heifer care and management.

When she is not working on the farm, she enjoys horseback riding, reading, exercising her Shetland sheepdog, writing, sewing, and swimming.

While in college, she was active in the Penn State Dairy Science Club, Delta Theta Sigma, the College of Agricultural Sciences Student Council, and was a member of collegiate 4-H.

She competed in public speaking/presentation contests and was on the 1995 Penn State dairy judging team.

She served internships with the Jersey Journal and Pennsylvania Farmer magazines in 1996 and 1997.

Chess was active in 4-H for 11 years, with projects in dairy, dairy goat, horses, dog care and training, and veterinary science.

She was a member of her county 4-H council, and also served as a member of the Penn State 4-H Ambassador state team, as well as a junior advisor.

In addition, Chess was Pennsylvania Jersey queen from 1992-1993, and the Mercer County dairy princess from 1993-1994.

In other pursuits, she won the senior division of the All-American Jersey Youth showmanship contest and placed seventh in the Jersey youth achievement contest.

In 1991, she was the state 4-H award winner and delegate to the National 4-H Club Congress.

Chess said she takes some pride in the fact that she has worked with all six breeds of dairy cattle, and said it gives her a chance to assess the comparative strengths and weaknesses of each breed in order to evaluate merits fairly, although, she said she considers her Jerseys and Brown Swiss to be personal favorites.

famous ice cream, sherbert, and cheeses, but they may not know that the Creamery processes about 3.5 million pounds of milk each year. Visitors may also learn that about half of that milk comes from a 175-cow herd at the University's Dairy Production Research Center. The rest is purchased from an independent milk producer. Some 1995 production stats for the creamery's contribution to the university's dining halls include;

– 160,000 gallons of 2 percent milk

– 60,000 gallons of lowfat chocolate milk

– 80,000 gallons of skim milk

– Still more milk was sold to the public from the Creamery salesroom.

– The Creamery also made

– 5,000 gallons of sour cream

– 15,000 pounds of creamed cottage cheese

– 100,000 pounds of cream cheese

– 30,000 pounds of cheddar cheese

– 21,600 pounds of yogurt

– 130,000 gallons of its famous ice cream, frozen yogurt, and sherbert

– According to a University brochure, getting ice cream at the Creamery has been a tradition since 1896. According to the Fayette volunteers filling orders meetings at University Park might be late getting started, if participants had not allowed enough time to for picking up their ice cream. On football weekends people line up as the salespeople dip several thousand cones. Creamery ice cream is so fresh that only four days, on the average, elapse between the cow and a dipped cone. This rich ice cream has a butterfat content of 14.1 percent. Some flavors include pure vanilla from Madagascar. An important extract flavors the peach ice cream, and fruit and nuts from the Pacific Northwest flavor other varieties.

Purpose of the sale

– This alumni group, based at the Fayette Campus of Penn State, aims to provide an annual scholarship for student aid. This Penn State location Their goal to start the endowed annual grant is $10.000. After this fund raiser, they are about half way there.

– The scholarship money will be used toward the student fees for an academically qualified person.

– Though the alumni society viewed this primarily as a fund raising effort, it took a sought after product to crate appeal for consumers, In light of the popularity of dairy products, especially those from the University Creamer, these volunteers filling the orders projected that the ice cream to be eaten quickly one it arrived at home.

– According to Leslie Staford, their next fund raiser will be September 5. For those interested, tours of the University Creamery may be arranged Monday through Friday by contacting Manager Tom Palchak at (814) 865-7535 or the Department of Food Science at (814) 865-5444.

– In addition to the kind of scholarship this alumni society offers, the College of Agricultural Sciences awards over $800,000 in scholarships annually to approximately 450 students. Freshmen who are accepted into the Schreyer Honors College can get special awards.

Members Approve Land O'Lakes, Dairyman's Merger

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — As the vote tally was completed (May 28) at Minnesota-based Land O'Lakes and California-based Dairyman's Cooperative Creamery Association, members had given overwhelming approval to a merger of the two cooperative effective July 1, 1998.

The organizations have been business partners since 1983 when Dairyman's began producing butter for Land O'Lakes. Today, Dairyman's has 240 producer-members and processes more than 4 billion pounds of milk annually at its facility in Tulare, Calif. — the nation's largest, single-location dairy plaant. As Dairyman's joins Land O'Lakes, it becomes an operating division of the cooperative's Dairy Foods group. Together, the merged cooperatives will have annual sales of about $5 billion.

"This is a historic and exciting moment in the development of our member-based, market-oriented cooperative system," said Jack Gherty, president and chief executive officer of Land O'Lakes. "Through unification, we will combine our respective strengths in marketing and processing to create a stronger, national cooperative. Together, we have the talent, focus and resources to continue to add value to our members' milk by building our market share, particularly in the heavily populated West Coast area, as well as serving some emerging international markets."

Jack Prince, president of Dairyman's said, "Over a period of nearly 90 years, the members of Dairyman's have developed a strong pride in both the heritage and the vision of this cooperative. Today, we are choosing to broaden our vision as we unite with a premier, national marketer of value-added dairy products. At the same time, we are preserving and expanding our heritage by joining forces with other dairy producers from throughout the Land O'Lakes system. This is a very positive move occurring at the right time in our history."

Land O'Lakes is a food and agricultural cooperative owned by farmers and ranchers in 27 states. It is headquartered in Arden Hills, Minn. and it markets branded dairy products across the U.S. Dairyman's is a dairy processing cooperative owned by 240 producers in California's Central Valley.

It is headquartered in Tulare, Calif. and manufactures a wide variety of dairy products.

mium to farmers whose farms exhibit a high standard of environmental protection, as well as serving as a source of cost-share money to help other farmers achieve such standards.

The Chesapeake Milk program is to be a one-year pilot program that took some time in the making.

A couple of years ago, during a press-education outing on the Chesapeake Bay Foundation's retrofitted skipperjack oyster boat, a concept was presented by the DPN that ideally would set up a pathway by which consumers could directly support local, environmentally conscientious dairy farms, as well as support local farmers wishing to undertake environmental projects without going through federal programs.

Dairy Network Partnership (DNP) had formed in 1995 in an attempt to create a cooperative and coordinated effort to secure more money for environmentally conscientious farmers, and thus to help save family farms and farmland, and encourage effective environmental stewardship.

The effort started with the "green" groups, mainly Rodale Institute, an organization started years ago to promote the healthy soil/health crops/healthy people relationship concepts of the founder of the Rodale businesses.

In addition to Rodale Institute, DPN-member groups include the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA), a group with the expressed goal of creating environmentally balanced farming operations (nutrients in equals nutrients out, or vice versa); the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, which has a goal of restoring the Chesapeake Bay and its freshwater sources; the United States Environmental Protection Agency; and Penn State University Extension.

At the time, the only non-conservation group was Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, which had joined the partnership in order to be in a position to possibly increase profitability and thus sustainability for its members through niche marketing.

Since then, ADC merged into the national Land O'Lakes Inc. cooperative (which recently completed another merger boosting its size and milk volume control), and has dropped out of the partnership.

In the meantime, the project has continued through the efforts of the independent DPN, which has three staff members: Lori Sandman, project manager; Leon Weber, on-farm coordinator; and Shelby Evans, research technician.

During that sailboat tour of the Annapolis area of the Chesapeake Bay, the term "green" was used to characterize the concept of marketing milk to consumers who have a strong interest in supporting environmental conservation on local farms.

Surveys and polls, as well as ancedotal evidence, apparently had been used to support the notion that if the group could bottle it and get it into the retail dairy case, the public would buy "green" milk to support farmers, as long as the consumers could be sure that the farmers were going to get the money, instead of the middlemen.

However, the concept stayed quiet for many months.

The initial reaction to the concept was that it had some obstacles to overcome: the thought of "green" milk didn't sound very appetizing; getting any milk into retail shelves is difficult as its is, as chain stores reportedly haggle over differences involving small percentages of a cent, much less being involved with a product that carries a sort of "deposit" and potentially more work for the grocer and his accountants.

Nevertheless, the concept was discussed, through it was clear that details needed to be worked upon.

In the meantime, with little publicity, the project has been worked out the point of announcing a go-ahead pilot run.

The program of DNP under which the Chesapeake Milk project is being carried out is called the Environmental Quality Initiative and carries the slogan, "Your choice makes a difference."

The EQI program has its own mark — an painted representation of a pastoral farmstead inside a circle, with the capitalized words "Environmental Quality Initiative" encircling it.

According to promotional materials, "During a one-year test market, the Enviormental Quality Initiative mark will be found on cartons of a new milk line known as Chesapeake Milk.

"Additionally, the mark will be found on select Natural by Nature organic dairy products. These products will be sold at regional grocery markets in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia.

"By participating in the Environmental Quality Initiative, these retailers are taking a lead role on behalf of the environment. They are providing their customers with a chance to make a difference.

"Each time a customer purchases Chesapeake Milk, 5 cents per half gallon will be returned to dairy farmers in the region who are achieving a high standard of natural resource protection.

"The money will also be used to assist other farmers in enhancing environmental protection practices on their farms."

The promotional text goes on to announce that the EQI program is to include on-farm demonstration events, consumer education and outreach programs, and technical assistance for farmers.

DNP intends to identify those farms with qualifying environmental standards of protection through the use of an "environmental farmstead evaluation," described in the promotional material as, "... an objective, standardized scorecard that measures environmental management on Pennsylvania dairy farms."

Initially, producer participation in the EQI program project is being limited to producers sending milk to Sunnydale Farms in Brooklyn, New York; or Natural Dairy Products Corporation in West Chester, Chester County, the producers of the organic milk, labeled Natural by Nature.

After a year of operation, the intent is to open up the project and to make the EQI mark available for geographic regions and commodities in addition to that produced on southeast Pennsylvania dairy farms.

According to DNP, while Sunnydale is the processor involved in the pilot program, other processors are welcomed to participate in the program.

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Promotion

vania, Delaware, New Jersey, and Maryland and Virginia.

The other two organizations are dairy councils which have promoted dairy products through seeking to promote better nutrition.

Dairy Council Inc. is an older organization based in Southampton that was created during the Great Depression to provide nutritional help and promoted milk through school programs to Philadelphia-area children suffering from malnurishment. After the milk promotion funding became available throug the dairy farmer check-off program, DCI qualified as a recipient.

Also included in the merger is Dairy Council of Greater Metropolitan Washington D.C., that serves a similar function there.

Technically and legally, there has been no merger between MAMMA and either of the dairy councils.

Because of tax status differences, an official "merger" was sidestepped, and instead, MAMMA operations are being "consolidated" with those of the two dairy councils, which have merged.

The merged dairy councils have been renamed Middle Atlantic Dairy Council Inc. (MADCI).

MAMMA is now the Middle Atlantic American Dairy Association (MAADA).

The two groups are to work together, share the same staff and be overseen by one manager and one board of directors. The official date for the "consolidation" is July 1.

The new chief executive officer of the consolidated effort is to be Bret Rigby, of Alexandria, Virginia, who until recently worked for the U.S. Department of Agriculture to oversee dairy promotion activities, such as the programs of Dairy Management Inc., and National Fluid Milk Processors Promotion Board, as well as state and regional checkoff-funded programs.

Prior to working for the USDA, Rigby was involved in a consulting business that developed marketing materials and strategies. He has a master's degree in international business administration from George Washington University, and a bachelor's degree in political science from Brigham Young University.

The new board of directors numbers 13. Combined, the three independent programs had almost 50 directors reviewing operations.

According to the news release, "Mr. Rigby will be charged with bringing all dairy council and promotion programs in the Mid-Atlantic area into one integrated and coordinated marketing program."

Although the official announcement of the merger wasn't made until Wednesday, the 13-member board of directors overseeing the new groups held their first organizational meeting Tuesday in Gettysburg at the Eisenhower Inn.

Included on the downsized board are H. Wallace Cook of Delaware; David Noss from Port Royal; Ivo Otto Jr. of Carlisle; Charles Schilling of Petersburg; Robert Winner of New Jersey; Steven Graybeal of Peach Bottom; John Hardesty of Virginia; David Weitzer of Maryland; Jerrel Heatwole of Delaware; Kenneth Balmer of Elizabethtown; John Gillam of Virginia; Raymond Johnson of New YOrk; and Donald Duncan of Robesonia.

In an election of officers, the board selected Hardesty to be its first chairman, Schilling to be vice chairman, Winner as secretary, and Gillam as treasurer.

The board members represent certain dairy production groups, though the milk promotion agencies receiving funds are autonomous.

Of the board members, Cook, Noss, Otto, Schilling and Winner are from Land O'Lakes Inc. Eastern Division; Graybeal, Hardesty and Weitzer are from the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association; Heatwole for Dairy Farmers of America and Cumberland Valley Milk Producers; Balmer for Mt. Joy Farmers Cooperative; Gillam for the Valley of Virginia Cooperative; Johnson for the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc.; and Duncan representing independent dairy farmers.

The three headquarters offices of the three groups are being maintained until site selection and staffing requirements have been decided.

For years the three groups functioned with dairy farmer supplied funds through frequently conducted promotions bearing the same message to the same audience.

The dairy promotion groups compete with each other for promotion dollars and historically have not been willing partners in sharing specific strategies and plans, even when the potentially were causing sometimes embarrassing and publicly confusing duplications of effort.

The Mid-Atlantic dairy promotion group is to go by both names — Middle Atlantic American Dairy Association, and Middle Atlantic Dairy Council Inc.

Farmland Trust Seeks Director Of Development

Lancaster Farmland Trust, a private land trust working to preserve Lancaster County farms, seeks a director of development to further its extensive fund-raising efforts. The position reports to the executive director and is responsible for all development activities.

The position focuses on building organizational support through major gift fund-raising, planned giving, membership development, and public relations. A development assistant provides support for special events, community outreach, membership correspondence, and volunteer coordination.

Candidates should be flexible, creative and able to work in a fast paced non-profit environment. Three + years of experience in development or a related field, a college degree, and good computer skills are required. Salary and benefits are competitive. NSFRE membership a plus.

Interested applicants should send a letter, resume and two writing samples by June 15 to: Executive Director, Lancaster Farmland Trust, 128 E. Marion St., Lancaster, PA 17602.

Tobacco Blue Mold In Lancaster, Producers Should Spray Now

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Tobacco Blue Mold this week has been confirmed on three operations in Lancaster County and samples have been sent for further testing to determine if the strain is the fungicide-resistant variety.

Lancaster County Extension Agent Robert Anderson on Wednesday said that growers need to adopt stringent fungicide application programs.

He also said that, while it may take some time for the tests to confirm pesticide resistance, based on the fact that other tobacco states have reported the resistant variety, and that two of the operators with the infected plants treated their beds earlier this year with Ridomil, the traditional fungicide used (although labeling for the newer version wasn't extended for tobacco beds), its seems likely that it is the resistant variety.

He said there is a "... 99-percent chance Ridomil will not control it."

Last year, resistant Blue Mold became a problem in the area ahead of when expected because of a grower importing transplant-sized tobacco from North Carolina.

The blue mold is a problem in the Southern states, where raising transplantable-sized tobacco for sale to farmers to plant in their fields is big business. It is believed by some in the tobacco industry that the continuous production in floating beds in the South and the dependence there on Ridomil helped to accelerate the resistance in the fungus.

Blue Mold does not overwinter in Pennsylvania, but its spores are carried into the state with storm fronts eminating from the South. A reporting system has been set up among cooperating tobacco raising states to track the progress of the disease as an early warning service.

Anderson said it is believed that Blue Mold arrived naturally this year via storms, though it is two to three weeks ahead of when expected.

"This year, no (out-of-state) transplants came into the county that I'm aware of," Anderson said. "We're assuming it blew in on storm fronts about two to three weeks ago. It's been in Kentucky about four weeks."

The timing is critical as many plants still have to be transpanted from beds to fields.

"The three locations (where Blue Mold has been confirmed) were not on a real stringent fungicide application program," Anderson said, "which reinforces the need for a stringent fungicide program, especially with the floating beds."

Anderson said that, at this point, growers can begin spraying their tobacco beds with one of three fungicides:

- For fields and beds, Acrobat MZ, which recently received a Sect. 18 label, can be applied at a rate of 1 to 2 teaspoons per gallon of water.
- In tobacco beds, Ferbam, at a rate of 2 to 3 tablespoons per gallon.
- In tobacco beds, Diathane DF, at a rate of 1 teaspoon per gallon.

All applications must ensure thorough coverage of the plant.

The fungicides are surface protectants and Blue Mold not only affects the part of the plant that it enters, but travels throughout the plant and becomes systemic.

After tobacco plants spike and are topped, for some reason still unknown, the spread of Blue Mold and its affect on the plant is curtailed.

Anderson said that if growers find they have bed plants with Blue Mold, and some have already been transplanted to the field, then the producer needs to spray in the field, as soon as they green up. He said that with the wind and dry weather up until this weekend, that some transplanted tobacco didn't look well.

He said that beds and any fields with plants displaying symptoms such as yellow spotting on the leaf top with a blue-gray mold growing under the leaf (best observed in the morning with the dew still on plants) should definitely be sprayed.

In some cases, growers may want to consider destroying plants and starting over.

"North Carolina recommends destroying beds if growers see it," Anderson said, adding, however, that advice most likely would not go over well in Pennsylvania. Instead, growers must decide if the problem is controllable and that a saleable crop can be raised.

"If, even after spraying, you see active mold, it has probably gone systemic, and when transplanted to the field, the plants grow crooked," Anderson said.

"If that happens, you probably should not even try to save it. I hope we get it early enough to keep it from becoming more of a problem."

As of this week, Anderson said there is no emergency meeting scheduled to make producers aware of the problem. It is hoped that those who learn of the problem here or elsewhere tell other growers.

Depending upon weather, if there is to be a meeting, it would probably be in the near future, Anderson said.

Last year, in order to help producers protect their plants, Extension researchers in cooperation with a spray equipment manufacturer, designed a special spray head assembly in order to achieve complete protection of the plant, which includes the under-leaf area.

Since plants are still small, such a boom sprayer-head assembly isn't needed, but producers need to make the fungicide applications thorough.

Anderson asked that those discovering Blue Mold in their plants to please call him so he can track the progress of the disease and help the industry protect itself. Anderson doesn't publicize the names of growers with the problem, but will help provide information to control it.

Those who discover Blue Mold in their plants should report it to Anderson at (717) 394-6851.

In other news, Anderson that overall plant diseases and problems have been fairly slight this year. He said there were some early insect problems, such as the flea beetle which attacks young corn, tobacco and potatoes, but he suspects that pest population is on the decline for the year and should soon be out of the way.

Other problems, such as pear thrips, have not seemed to have been a problem for fruit growers.

Subsidized Barley Sale Gets High-Level Action

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A letter sent to European Commission President Jacques Santer by U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright protested the sale of subsidized European barley to a U.S. company. A follow-up announcement by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) that it will subsidize 30,000 metric tons of U.S. barley exports to Algeria, Cyprus, and Norway under the Export Enhancement Program (EEP) underscores the gravity of the European action, according to National Farmers Union *NFU).

"The fact that the state department has gotten involved in an agricultural trade issue indicates the seriousness with which it views the European use of export subsidies to sell agricultural products to the United States," said NFU Government Relations Vice President Tom Buis.

Subsidization of exports is not a new European practice, but until a month ago, the subsidies were used only for sales of agricultural products to countries with deficits of the commodity being transacted. Last month's news of the purchase of 30,000 metric tons of European barley by a U.S. company through use of a $50-per-metric-ton export subsidy brought cries of protest from agricultural producers. The United States is a net exporter of barley and many of the other commodities exported by European countries using subsidies.

"The use of export subsidies to sell to a market which has a surplus of that commodity underscores the shortcomings in our current international trade agreements," Buis said. "No farmer I know objects to fair trade, but we cannot be pitting our farmers against the treasuries of foreign governments."

NFU is pleased that the subsidized barley sale is being given the highest level of attention and that the Department of State is working with the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Trade Representative to determine an appropriate response to the European Union action. The Europeans are contending that the sale is legal under current trading rules, but such action has never been tested.

"This is a very serious situation, the outcome of which has ramifications for all U.S., commodities. It must be dealt with immediately and also should be a top priority for future trade negotiations," Buis said.

Lancaster Dairy Princess Pageant

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Dairy Princess Pageant will be held on Saturday, June 13 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. The evening begins with a reception at 7, followed by the pageant program at 7:30 and concludes with an ice cream sundae social. The public is invited.

Two young ladies will be vying for the honor of Lancaster County Dairy Princess. They are Jamie Horning of Stevens and Audra Wood of Quarryville.

Jamie's parents, Paul and Shirley Horning, operate a dairy farm in Stevens. Jamie is an Ephrata Senior High student, active in FFA and 4-H activities and works part time at Key Aid ACE Hardware.

Audra is the daughter of Barbara Wharton and she works at Red Knob Farm in Peach Bottom, assisting with their 450-cow dairy. She is a reporter for the Solanco FFA chapter and an active participant in the Union Presbyterian Church Youth Group. She is interested in social work and agri-business.

Also participating in the evening's program will be the new Dairy Ambassadors and Dairy Darlings. The Dairy Ambassadors are: Jill Hoover, Laura Hess and Laura and Lisa Blank. The Dairy Darlings include: April Shaub, Amanda Royer, Nicole Welk, Allyson Longenecker, Kendra Neff, Kimberly Becker, Emily Mellinger and Valerie Balmer.

June 15 Deadline

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — The Schuylkill County office of the USDA Farm Service Agency is reminding farmers that June 15 is the deadline to report crop acreage in order to remain eligible to participate in a variety of federal programs.

The agency's reminder applies statewide.

"Acreage reporting ... is a step in the right direction for farmers striving to achive the best possible farm management techniques," according to the USDA FSA news release.

Reporting is required for those who participate in the commodity loan program or the 10-year Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), as well as those who intend to or have planted fruits or vegetables on land included in the seven-year flexibility program.

The deadline for reporting planted small grain acreages is June 15.

For those who like to see a photograph prior to making the reporting visit should contact their local FSA office.

For those served by the Schuylkill County FSA office, call (717) 622-1555.

Her Dream Came True In Dairy Expo Show Arena

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

EAST BERLIN (York Co.) — At a Central York 4-H Dairy Club meeting last year, members were asked to respond to roll call by sharing one of their goals.

Amy Trimmer, veteran exhibitor at 17 and owner of her own herd of 15 registered Holsteins, gave the request some thought, then confided to other club members her long-time dream. Her goal as a junior dairy exhibitor was to show an animal at the World Dairy Expo, held each October in Madison, Wisconsin, and considered the international, premier, all-breed dairy cattle show.

Last October, Amy's dream became breathtaking reality, as judges at the show beckoned her to lead JCY April Starbuck-ET out at the head of the parade of about three dozen of the nation's best spring yearlings.

As the young exhibitor cooly and professionally led her beloved animal before the audience of thousands of dairy enthusiasts, a wave of applause burst from a support group of proud friends and fellow Pennsylvania exhibitors.

"It's a big show. I was nervous," quietly admits this junior exhibitor, whose first turn around a show arena came when she was 3, at the halter of a junior calf in the York Holstein show's popular Kiddie Klass.

Amy, a sophomore at Spring Grove Area High School, is the daughter of Larry and Shirley Trimmer, Admire Road, East Berlin. The family's home is located adjacent to the farm owned by Shirley's parents, Rodman and Jane Thompson.

The Thompson family's "Coredale" herd of registered Holsteins was a long-time staple of the regional show circuit, until the family retired from dairying a few years ago. Heifers continue to graze in the farm's pastures and make their mark in regional show competition, many of them junior project animals owned by Amy and her brother Chad.

It was through a long-time friendship with the Jaye Young family of Franklin County — a friendship rooted in cattle shows — that Amy came to be the owner of the All-American heifer. The Coredale herd show string for several years often included 4-H animals owned by Troy Young, who helped care for the combined group of cattle. One of them, JCY Starbuck April, was a particular favorite of Shirley Trimmer.

"Everyone wants that special cow; I always told the Youngs we would like to have an April," Amy's mother, Shirley, recalls.

When the April bloodlines were rematched in an embryo flushing and a heifer calf born, Jaye Young offered to sell it to Amy for a junior project calf.

Amy has always spent long hours working with her cattle on her grandparents' farm, frequently walking them to a nearby woods and back for exercise and halter training. After weaning at two months, the new calf joined Amy's group of show cattle.

With the opportunity to name her new calf, the Trimmer's took the name of the original April they had so admired, through switching the sire's name to last on the registry application.

JCY April Startuck-ET was official.

Her first show season, in 1996, was a commendable one, but not spectacular. April and Amy took third and fifth places as a junior calf. But seasoned judging eyes saw more in the calf, and suggested Amy just keeping her along and give her time to develop.

She started the 1997 season by taking the junior blue ribbon in her class at the Pennsylvania Spring Holstein Show in Harrisburg, and second in the open show placings.

Slightly over-conditioned due to Amy's admitted tendency to "baby" her and slip her an extra scoop of feed, she was nevertheless assessed as a well-balanced heifer.

"She eats anything and everything," grins Amy of her growthy show heifer.

A quick follow-up appearance at the Ohio Spring National earned April another open class second place out of a class of 36 head. Later, she took wins at both the York 4-H Roundup show and the county's Holstein show.

Amy Trimmer has amassed awards for her All American and Junior All American spring yearling show heifer, many of them displayed in the kitchen/dining room of the family's country home.

The Trimmers, Amy and her dad Larry seated, mother Shirley and brother Chad standing, with photos and videos recount memories of the successful 1997 show season.

Meanwhile, despite rapidly-increasing interest in this tall, growthy, stylish yearling, and her consistently-impressive show wins, the Trimmers did not succumb to the lure of allowing a professional to be at the halter. April was Amy's heifer and Amy was going to be her leadsman.

"I wouldn't let anyone else show her," insists Amy of her "baby."

Pennsylvania Holstein president Jim Burdette, Mercersburg, took an early interest in Amy and April, encouraging her to consider taking the yearling all the way to the Expo show at Madison and to personally be at the halter.

More encouragement came from former York County Holstein breeder Paul King, now retired in West Virginia, but still called on frequently as a cattle show official. King, after judging April at the local show, further encouraged Amy to consider entering national competition.

After April took the junior division junior honors and open show honorable mention at the Carlisle Southcentral Holstein Champion Show last August, the Trimmers made a decision. They promptly entered April in the World Dairy Expo.

A few weeks later, she won her class and was reserve junior champion at the Maryland State Fair. In late September, April added to her honors with second-placings at both the Pennsylvania Fall Championship and Eastern National shows at Harrisburg.

Meanwhile, Amy continued to resist buyers for her heifer, she was determined not to sell April at any price. Showing at the Expo was her dream and April was the best chance she might ever have at that goal. As a counter to the increasing pressure of the show season successes on Amy, and to keep April in good shape, the pair walked, a "good half-mile" every day.

Getting April to Madison was the next hurdle for Amy, who reluctantly loaded her on a truck for the long trip west.

Orchard Tour Highlights Nematode Control, Unique Trellis Systems

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

SHARTLESVILLE (Berks Co.) — Orchard growers who want to replant certain areas of their fields should first consider possible nematode problems that can prove devastating to new plant populations, according to a Penn State nematologist.

Dr. John Halbrendt, Penn State associate professor of nematology, spoke to more than 75 fruit growers and agri-industry representatives Thursday evening during a Southeast Pennsylvania Fruit Growers twilight meeting and tour. The meeting, sponsored by Penn State, was conducted at Stoudt's Orchard in Shartlesville.

Halbrendt reviewed some evidence of nematode damage and resultant tree loss to plum and peach trees at the orchard, which encompasses 45 acres. Nematodes are parasitic worms that feed on the roots of trees — and allow diseases to take over.

Of all the pest problems orchards can face, the nematode problem is the "most neglected because they're invisible — they're microscopic," said Halbrendt. And what is most disconcerting, according to the Penn State nematode expert, is that "by the time you have the problem, it's usually too late to do anything about it," he said.

In plum trees and other types of stone fruit, the dagger nematode is usually the culprit. The nematode is a vector of the tomato ring spot virus, which is carried by broadleaf weeds (including common dandelion). The dandelions and other weeds aren't affected by the virus, but stone fruit trees are.

The classic symptoms can be deceiving, according to Halbrendt. The tree can look like it has girdled roots. The leaves appear small and pale. Usually, a tree that's infected can last a couple of summers and then collapse and die, he said.

Many growers believe that girdled roots were the problem and simply plant another tree — only to see that tree infected.

Another syndrome that peach trees can exhibit, infected with another type of nematode, is peach tree short life. This disease is attributed to the ring nematode, which prefers sandier soil.

Peach tree short life can be found on also on apricot and plum trees.

Halbrendt cautioned growers that if a few trees show symptoms, it may not be worth worrying about. A few isolated, dead trees won't mean that the problem will spread. But the real concern is if whole orchards are in a replanting cycle, it's best early on to scout for nematodes and plan a couple of years ahead to fumigate, use green manure crops, or simply rotate to a non-orchard type crop to solve the problem.

One system, which replaced a whole row of old Red Delicious apple trees, included new JonaMac seedlings planted in April using pre-installed 6-foot wooden posts. The posts hold a retractable 12-gauge high-tensile wire system separated at one- foot intervals. The wires were installed in the spring. Dale Stoudt checks out the system.

When growers start to plan the replanting could be the "perfect time to start thinking whether there's a nematode problem," he said.

Like a typical soil test, Penn State accepts soil samples obtained from nearby, healthy trees to determine if a nematode problem exists. The Biglerville laboratory can conduct an assay — but the form must be filled out completely. Also, many different samples, including about 20 subsamples, are needed. Batches must be extracted 8-10 inches from the soil within the canopy area of a living tree (using a soil probe) and mixed together. From this, a 1-pint (100 cc) extraction of soil will be analyzed by the lab.

The material should be immediately cooled down and kept cool until it is delivered to the lab.

"The more information you give me," said Halbrendt, "the better chance I can give you a better answer."

The lab submission sheet must include previous crops. Also, a soil fertility test will be conducted to see if a possible nutrient deficiency could mimic a nematode problem. And the "history of that site influences the nematode problem that could be there," said Halbrendt.

The suggestions provided by Penn State are merely a guide for the grower to determine his or her own plan of action.

But it's important to plan early. Submit the soil samples one or two years ahead of planning to replant. "You have to think of nematode control ahead of time," Halbrendt said.

For nematode control, the best time is the fall. The second best time, he said, is the spring.

The suggested soil fumigants include methyl bromide, which is legal to use until the year 2001. Also, another one to use is Telone or Telone-17 manufactured by Dow AgroSciences.

A good green manure crop is the Dwarf Essex variety of rapeseed. When the green manure decomposes, chemicals are released into the soil that kill the dagger nematodes. Growers should plant the rapeseed in the spring, allow it to grow to a good vegetative stage with a lot of biomass, and cultipack it into the soil in September. The important thing, according to Halbrendt, is not to simply cut it and let it lay, but to turn it into the soil immediately.

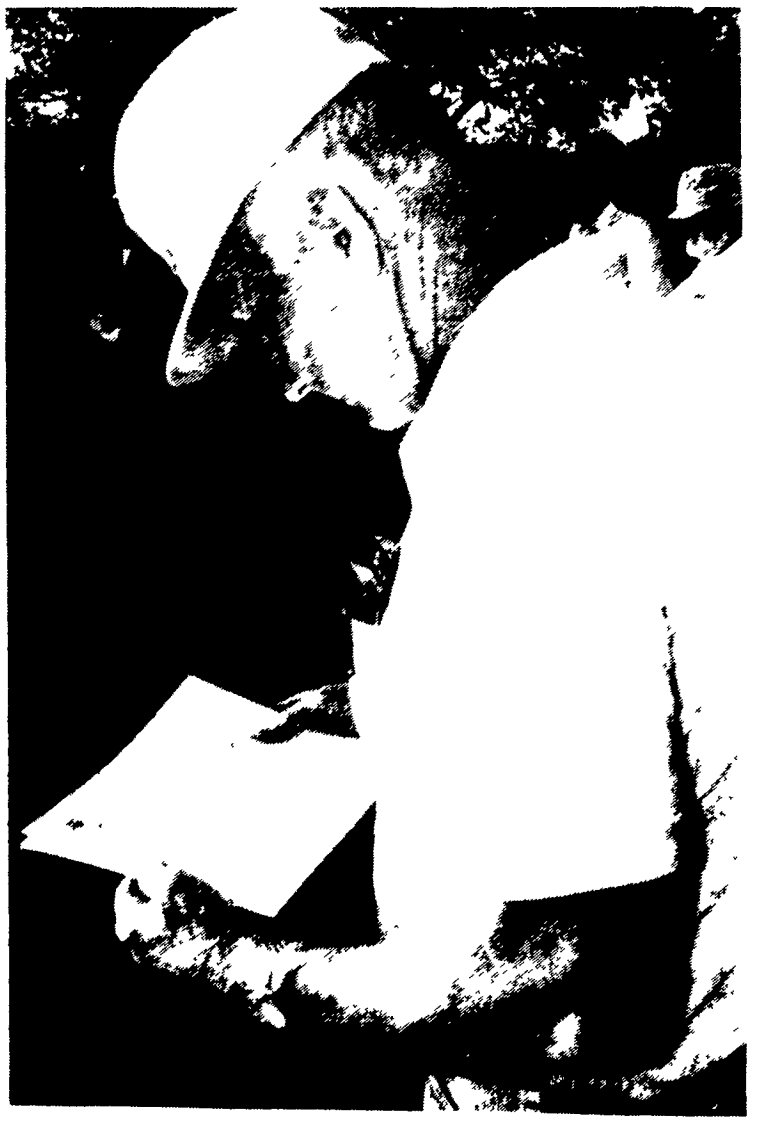
Growers should realize that rapeseed could become prevalent in the orchard, but is sensitive to 2,4-D herbicide.

The orchard includes about 15 different varieties of plums on five acres, according to Bob Stoudt. Also, sweet cherries were planted, with a few. different varieties.

"It's great that he's trying new varieties of plums and cherries," said George Greene, associate professor of pomology at Penn State, who spoke at the tour. "Every orchard needs to be a little bit of an experiment station."

In all, the orchard is comprised of 45 acres, 30 of which are in stone fruit and 15 in apples. There are about 25 different varieties of apples, according to Dale Stoudt.

According to Bob Stoudt, who operates the orchard with brother Dale, of the 30 acres in stone fruit, 20 are in peaches, five in nectarines, and five are in plums. The Stoudt Orchard began about 40 years ago with Harvey and Ann Stoudt, parents of Bob and Dale. The Stoudts operate a retail stand at the intersection of Old Rt. 22 and the entrance ramp to I-78 in Shartlesville.



Elwood Moyer, Bernville, looks over a soil test form for nematodes at the twilight meeting.

Only five percent of the fruit is sold wholesale, at Leesport, Renningers, Roots, and Green Dragon. The rest is sold retail.

Dr. Ken Hickey, plant pathologist, spoke about the various diseases that can infect the stone fruits, including brown rot, bacterial spots, and blossom blight. He also spoke about controlling fire blight in apples.

Dr. Carl Felland, extension entomologist, said that there weren't many harmful insects to be found at the orchard, which keeps clean canopy areas and rows. The region is about two weeks ahead of schedule because of the unseasonably warm weather, and nine days ahead of normal in insect populations. There has been plenty of insect pressure on many orchards, he noted, but there are a lot of natural insect enemies in the orchard.

There is no evidence of white apple leafhopper. "There are real good examples of integrated pest management here," he said.

One of those is the presence of the big orange ladybird beetles, which are natural aphid predators.

Dale Stoudt reviewed some of the unique trellis systems designed on the orchard. One system, which replaced a whole row of old Red Delicious apple trees, included new JonaMac seedlings planted in April using pre-installed 6-foot wooden posts. The posts hold a retractable 12-gauge high-tensile wire system separated at one-foot intervals. The wires were installed in the spring.

The wire trellis system works best on about 14-foot row spacings. The trellis system allows the limbs to be tied down horizontally to allow more sunlight, more fruit, and better fruit size, in addition to ease of harvest.

Dale Stoudt also showed a "bed" system of staggered Mutso (Crispen), similar to a Golden Delicious but with a huge (1 pound of fruit or better) size. Also, Stoudt provided information on an old Summer Treat (Red Delicious-type) rootstock, more than 13 years old, that two years ago was grafted with the Mutso variety.

State Crop Survey

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) – State Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. today announced that representatives of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS) are to be contacting approximately 1,5000 Pennsylvania farmers early this month as part of a nationwide agriculture survey.

"I encourage producers to cooperate by providing survey information," Hayes said. "Accurate answers about the 1998 crop season can reduce uncertainty in the marketplace and provide a benchmark for the crop year."

This survey provides the basis for estimates of this season's crop production and is one of the largest and most important conducted annually by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS).

Producers rely on the data to reach valid production, marketing and investment decisions. Industry analysts, extension agents, farm organizations and lenders use the information to better serve the needs of farmers.

For more information, contact W.C. Evans at (800) 498-1518.

Her Dream Came True

Mixed with nervousness about the upcoming show and the long trip was disappointment that her grandparents would be missing from the sidelines of her first major show. Neither would the Youngs, who had also watched April mature on the show circuit, be able to attend the Expo.

After arriving in Madison and finding April comfortably settled in the barn, Amy took the advice of several show professionals to observe the show process, see how it eas done — and then get a good night's sleep.

"It was a big ring and lot of people, but it really wasn't that bad," Amy remembers of the show that more or less passed in a blue of excitement that next day. "April didn't behave real well in the ring. She side-stepped from all the people and was very alert, like she wanted to see everything that was going on.

"It seemed like judging took forever," remembers Amy of the thoroughness of judges Brian Garrison, Ohio, and Dennis Patrick, Maryland, in assessing the nearly 40 head in the Expo's spring yearling class. "April was the second one pulled out, so then we stood there and waited.

My heart stopoped when they finally motioned me to lead off. And everyone clapped. "Those are two of the memories that stand out for Amy about the monumental experience of a dream coming true at age 17.

Around Amy's neck was placed, Olympics style, a blue ribbon with a medallion.

Though Amy didn't know it at the time, the dream was not yet over.

April was returned to the barns and Amy finally relaxed while the remaining heifer classes were exhibited.

Then, she and April re-entered the arena for the heifer championship, the only junior division animal to be included among open-class contenders for the junior honors. April finished as the junior division junior champion and earned a third-place honorable mention in the open class runoff.

Then it was time to share the dream, with calls home to their family and to the Young family. Finally, still in near-shock, Amy, Shirley and a host of friends and supporters went to dinner together, then hosted a celebratory party in the barns.

"I was back home until it all really hit me" says Amy. She relives her dream periodically with a video of the event that Shirley taped, along with videotapes of classes and winners put out by the Expo. The Trimmer kitchen and dining area overflows with show memorabilia, many of them April's winnings, from the director-style chair and thermal cooler to the prized Expo ribbon.

"When Amy leaves home, we'll have to redecorate," teases Larry Trimmer of their daughters' bounty of cattle show awards. One item of memorabilia not on display, though, is the purple shirt.

Purple is a favorite color of Amy's and she wanted to wear

cows every day," Hileman said, "so I spend my time managing labor and capital."

The Hilemans are especially cognitive of the importance of a good labor force and work diligently to provide good working conditions and satisfied personnel. They are not afraid to be creative. That's why they now milk the noon/midnight shifts. The employees actually work a little less time and they have their evenings free.

"My management style is to give the workers their duties and let them decide how to accomplish the tasks," Hileman said. "They may not do it exactly like I would do it, but if the end result is satisfactory, I'm satisfied."

Three of the employees do not have a farm background.

Hileman is very optimistic about the dairy industry. Along with the superior genetics that have been bred into today's cows, he sees the new milk promotion efforts as very positive. Such things as flavored milk and packaging milk in containers that are more convenient for a fast paced world cause Hileman to believe we can sell more milk. In addition, developing countries are willing to spend more for food so this will help with the export business too.

"Demand will increase and that will help the price to increase," Hileman said. "We are on the threshold of being able to take advantage of the growing export market. New Zealand does a good job, but they are a very small country. The potential for us to get a lot better is there and the technology is now available to help us take advantage of efficiencies."

In dealing with the environment and neighbors, Hileman believes in common sense.

"The farmer should not put himself in an adversary position with regulatory people," Hileman said. "I am a long way from the Chesapeake Bay, but years ago, I had the Soil Conservation Service draw up a plan for our farms based on the rules and regulations that were set forth. Actually, it's a plan we can easily live with.

"It's a lot of common sense. We don't spread manure all winter on a five acre field next to the barn and beside a stream. Evidently some people do this, but we soil test every year and we haul the manure far away where the nutrients are needed."

Hileman likes to farm. He likes to be his own boss. The farm has been good to him over the years.

"Farming has paid a lot of bills over the years," Hileman said. "I have spent a lot of time at it. I don't know if I would have put as much time into some other business, but I can't see myself doing anything else. There are no secrets. I was blessed with good management skills and I recognized this early in life.

"It's easy to overextend yourself because there is a lot of money out there that can be borrowed. feed costs are especially important to watch, and over capitalization of machinery will cripple you financially. We are blessed in this area with good custom operators that get the planting and harvesting done, and this helps us to save on our investment in equipment."

As for the merger that took Atlantic Breeders cooperative under the umbrella of CRI, Hileman says efficiencies for members are already evident.

"When you merge, it boils down to people. You hate to lose good people, but you just don't need as many on the staff in the merged cooperative. Obviously this is one of the major savings we see from the merger. We also were able to reduce insurance costs. And with the information technology, we were able to replace many computers with one or two at CRI headquarters.

"One of the things that has bothered me is that agriculture cooperatives in the Northeast do not have a history of cooperation. I would love to see more of this cooperation take place. I belong to a breeding cooperative, Genex, that provides excellent genetics and services for dairymen to breed cows that are competitive, proficient, and long lasting. This helps the dairymen compete with neighbors at home and around the world.

"I also am a member of a DHIA cooperative that helps me manage my farm and provides the information USDA uses to provide bull proofs for my other cooperatives.

"And I am a member of an animal identification organization that happens to be the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, but it could be any of the other breed organizations.

"So I am a member of three cooperatives that provide services and information that by necessity are dependent on each other. Wouldn't it be nice if all three of these type organizations came together under one umbrella so I didn't have to pay three membership fees.

"If you really want to dream, we could throw in a milk marketing cooperative and a few farm credit associations and really realize efficiencies.

"Actually, the greatest obstacle to this cooperation is found much more in the board rooms than in the membership.It's understandable that people who have a lifetime experience with these organizations want to perpetuate what they or their fathers have helped to start. But it's a fine line between doing what is best for the cooperative and what is best for the members. Take Atlantic Breeders for example. We all liked the beautiful headquarters along Route 283 in Lancaster. And if we would have done what was best for the cooperative,we would have tried to preserve the organization for a while longer.But for the good of the members we chose to let Atlantic Breeders die so the members could continue to survive.

"For those who say the local membership has lost voting power, this is a perception that isn't a fact. In Atlantic, for example we had one director representing 500 members. In Genex, we have one voting delegate for every 100 members The ultimate power is with the delegates so members actually have more representation than they did before the merger.

"I am very optimistic about the future of the dairy business. We can't do much to change the price of milk. But there is a lot of things we can control. We can take advantage of the technology, the information that will help us think and plan ahead with anticipation 10 years into the future.

F.O. 4 April Milk $14.27

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Acting Market Administrator David Z. Walker today announced an April 1998 weighted average milk price of $14.27 per hundredweight.

The weighted average differential price as $2.33 per hundredweight and the producer nonfat milk solids (NFMS) price was 77 cents per pound.

The weighted average price was down 11 cents from March but was 71 cents higher than a year earlier. The producer NFMS price was down 12 cents from last April.

The nonfat milk solids price, applicable to handler payments, was 77.27 cents per pound for the month, down 12.23 cents from last year. The gross value of April producer milk, adjusted to 3.5 percent butterfat was $80.5 million, compared to $80.6 million a year ago

Mr. Walker said that producer receipts totaled 567.9 million pounds during April, a decrease of 29.5 million pounds from last April and the average daily delivery of 4,135 pounds per producer increased 426 pounds or 11.5 percent from a year earlier.

A total of 4,579 producers supplied Order 4 handlers during the month, a decrease of 790 from a year ago.

Class I producer milk totaled 219.3 million pounds and was down 32.5 million pounds, or 12.9 percent from last April. Class I milk accounted for 38.61 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 42 15 percent in April 1997

The average NFMS test of producer milk was 8.70 percent, down from 8.71 percent the previous year The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.66 percent, up from 3 62 percent in April 1997

Shirleys Enjoy Rotational Grazing

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

SILVER RUN, Md. — Glenn Shirley and his father Henry milk about 80 grade Holsteins on their dairy farm at Silver Run in Carroll County.

Until three years ago the father and son farmed conventionally, but in 1995 they made the switch to rotationally grazing the herd.

After doing a lot of reading and research, and some experimenting of their own, the Shirleys seem to have come up with a system that works well for them.

Glenn, who is also president of the Carroll County Farm Bureau, says implementing the grazing program came about in steps but really started in full force in 1995.

The decision to make the break from farming traditionally involved several considerations for the Shirleys.

One of the main motivations was pretty basic; he and his father decided they really didn't like growing corn.

"A lot of the jobs associated with growing corn neither Dad nor I particularly liked to do," Glenn said. "And we weren't satisfied with the yields we were getting. We put a pencil to paper, and we wondered if we could just grow a lot of alfalfa. Then we started in rotationally grazing. We still grow some alfalfa, but I think we're tentatively working away from that."

The last time thye planted corn was in 1994.

"The scariest part about it is when all your neighbors are planting corn, and you're not!" laughed Henry Shirley of the decision to graze the cows.

The Shirleys were also at a point where they were getting ready to have to make a big financial investment in replacing a lot of equipment.

Glenn's mother, Pat, is active on the farm and milks the cows. His wife, Debbie, a computer programmer, stays home to raise the couple's two daughters, Barbara, age 8, and Ruth, age 6.

The Shirleys' farm is 400 acres, including a woodlot of about 120 acres. Glenn estimates cultivated land, including pasture, at 200 acres. There are nine pastures centrally located around the barn, in pie-shaped pieces.

Cows exit the barn and go down a short lane and then into a common area and out whichever gate Glenn has opened for them.

Two concrete waterers with captured springs allow the cows access to water when they are turned out.

Later in the summer when the grass is growing slower, Glenn and his father fence off strips in another area that used to be corn and alfalfa fields, but in the meantime they take a first cutting off those strips and bale it.

There is perimeter fencing up around the farm consisting of two strands of electrified high tensile wire. The strips that used to be in corn and alfalfa are partitioned off with temorary electric tape.

"We square off about an acre with fence, and those are nighttime pastures, because there is no shade," explained Glenn.

Glenn said having the barn centrally located helps. "There are some other places I'd love to pasture, but it's just too far from the barn," he said.

The cows have access to hay in the barnyard at all times, but often ignore it for days at a time, according to Glenn. There is a computer feeder and four stalls in the barnyard. Currently Glenn is feeding an 8 percent custom ration.

"Right now the grasses are at least 20-22 percent protein so giving them any more protein would be ridiculous," he said, "Over winter we feed a 14 percent ration, and that's about the highest."

"The thing I'm real excited about now is we bought bale wrappers to make hay silage," Glenn said. "We tried it last year, and what we got (with the drought) I really liked. I'm hoping to get more this year."

The Shirleys are experimenting with different grasses for different conditions. They've had success with Matua Grass, a grass from New Zealand.

"What impressed us about that was last year with the drought, two of the strips were in Matua Grass, and we kept going back to those two strips," said Glenn. "It tends to do real well under dry conditions, and it's very forgiving in terms of management. Even if it gets old, the cows seem to like it.

"Matua is darn near as expensive as an acre of alfalfa to establish, so you have to weigh that against itself when looking at how many years a stand is going to last," he said.

They have also experimented with Alfa-graze alfalfa, some New Zealand pasture grass mixes, and Marshall rye, looking at establishment cost and performance. Regular Orchardgrass seems to score a lot of points with Glenn.

He said, "I'm starting to think that Orchardgrass is really a pretty good deal. It seems like one kind of grass that really wants to grow around here. It's completely free of pests. And you can bale it and wrap it in plastic when it's a little overmature." He tried Switchgrass and Bluestem the first year, but didn't get very good stands from either.

The cows seem to be happy with the system. Even out in the pouring rain the day the picture for this story was taken they were spread out evenly over their pasture grazing.

"That's what we like to see," said Glenn. He said there was, however, a definite learning curve with the cows when they first switched to grazing. In summer, the cows do their vast majority of eating at night, when the sun has gone down and they have a little bit longer period of time in the pasture.

The herd is not on test; Glenn estimates his rolling herd average might be around 17,000 pounds of milk.

They are experimenting with crossbreeding some heifers with Milking Shorthorn, Ayrshire, Dutch Belted, and Norwegian Red (a polled dairy breed) to see if they are suitable for grazing.

"We're looking for a trouble-free cow, as opposed to breeding for increased milk production," said Glenn, "a cow that will breed easy, have less cases of milk fever, be good foragers. We're not looking for milk production per cow as much as we're looking for milk production per acre."

Glenn said that although there is a lot of information saying when cows should be rotated, his formula is pretty simple. "We watch the cows, we watch the grass, and we watch the milk in the tank.

"I don't think we're any kind of authority on it," said Glenn. "We're more like an average sized farm with average production who just tried it. And it worked."

From the left, Glenn and father Henry Shirley operate a family dairy farm in Silver Run Maryland using grazing techniques.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

Governor's Office

PROCLAMATION

JUNE DAIRY MONTH
June 1998

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania's dairy industry is the leading agricultural industry in Pennsylvania, contributing 38 percent of all agricultural income and generating nearly $1.67 billion in revenues to the economy of this Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, our 10,500 dairy farm families with their 644,000 cows produce 10.6 billion pounds or seven percent of the nation's total supply of milk annually, ranking Pennsylvania fourth in the nation in milk production; and

WHEREAS, June Dairy Month offers an opportunity to recognize both farm families and the food processors who provide consumers with a wide variety of fresh wholesome dairy products which supply essential nutrients and are a vital part of a healthy diet; and

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania's General Assembly on April 29, 1992, designated milk as Pennsylvania's official beverage; and

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania is proud of its dairy industry and the important contribution it makes to our economy and the welfare of our citizens. We salute dairy farmers and their families for the strength and vitality they bring to rural communities throughout the Commonwealth, and their commitment to using the most modern technology for maximum efficiency.

THEREFORE, In recognition of our thriving dairy industry, I, TOM RIDGE, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby proclaim June 1998 as DAIRY MONTH in Pennsylvania. I urge all citizens to enjoy the Commonwealth's official beverage and other dairy products while recognizing the industry's contributions to our economy and our health.

GIVEN under my hand and the Seal of the Governor, at the City of Harrisburg, this first day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-eight and of the Commonwealth the two hundred and twenty-second.

me plan for all of my promotions, chaperoned when needed, and supported me in all that I have done this past year, thank you also. You all mean the world to me.

To the local and farm papers that have printed my articles, thank you. To all of the schools that have allowed us to share with their students, thank you. To the stores that we have "invaded," especially Ard's and Boscov's, thank you. To Big Country, and Wheels Radio, thank you. And finally to all of the groups, both farm and non-farm, that we have spoken to, thank you for giving us a chance.

More than anything the group of people that I have to thank are all of the area dairy farmers. Without you there would be no dairy princess program, and there would be no opportunities like this for young ladies who care for your industry. With your help we learn to be the best we can, and realize our abilities. Thank you for allowing us to shine.

Although my reign as princess will soon come to a close, I will still hold the dairy industry very close to my heart. I am sad that I must end such a fun and educational year, but I am glad that I will be passing on this honor to another deserving young lady on June 13, and I hope that she too, will find the joy that I have.

Thank you all, for giving me a chance.

Jodi Musser
SUN Area Dairy Princess

Editor:

As my year as the Beaver-Lawrence County Dairy Princess is very quickly coming to an end, I have been giving a lot of thought about the fact that at one time I had no interest in devoting a whole year to milk promotion. Through various turns of events, I changed my mind and decided that maybe I could be a representative for the dairy industry, try to do a good job and have fun too.

It has been a very rewarding experience and one that I am glad that I did not pass up. When small children, and even some adults ask why they should drink their milk, and you can tell them exactly why and what nutrition they get from drinking milk, then they look at you as if nobody ever told them before, it is all worth my time.

I feel very honored to have been the spokesperson for the Beaver-Lawrence County area this past year. I have met an enormous amount of people, from the very young to the senior citizens at Grange meetings and dinners. This has just been a tremendous year of learning and serving my community in a very different way.

The real reason for this letter is to encourage any young lady with even the slightest interest in getting involved to do so. You won't regret it ever. I have overcome public speaking jitters, speaking to people I don't know, and I learned to make lots of new friends. I have fellow dairy princess friends all over the state, and best of all you get to see them more than just once during your reign.

As a dairy princess you become a role model and someone for the little children to look up to. Personally I think they are the best part because they aren't afraid to ask you anything. And they do.

Our county "Tea" has already taken place but any girl age 16 to 24 is still eligible to run. Your County Extension would probably be able to put you in touch with someone in your county.

I think it would be a tremendous feat to have a Dairy Princess in every county in this great state of Pennsylvania promoting the Dairy Industry. After all milk is our state beverage.

And to my county committee, and to all people all over Beaver and Lawrence County who opened their doors, meetings, radio stations, businesses, and classrooms, a big thank-you. You made my duties easier and gave me many memorable moments. My scrapbook holds a lot of those moments in pictures. Thank you to my school administration for being so understanding of my responsibilities and allowing me to miss so many days. I attend Wilmington Area High School and they have all been so very supportive. Many thanks to those across Pennsylvania who have invited your local Princesses in for a visit.

One last word . . . Don't forget to drink your milk!!!

Her Dream Came True

something purple for good luck. Exhibitors are expected to wear white show slacks, but shirt color is optional. Unable to find an appropriate one in Madison, Amy finally borrowed a purple shirt from showstring crew member Deanna Bendig. Amy has kept it as a souvenir of the day her dream came true.

Recently, Amy broke into tears again as she loaded April, who earlier this year was named both All-American and Junior All-American Spring Yearling Heifer, into a cattle trailer. Due June 1, April was moved to Em-Tran in Elizabethtown for calving. Shirley, who is employed part time at the embryo transfer and cattle reproductive facility as a vet technician/lab assistant, keeps a close eye on the mother-to-be during her work days.

"I want a heifer but it's OK if it's a bull," says a philosophical Amy about the impending birth.

Then may come the biggest decision of her junior cattle owner career. After fending off for months an array of interested buyers, the Spring Grove High School sophomore may finally part with her beloved April and bank the proceeds toward her college education. But Amy first wants to see how her prized heifer calves out and develops after freshening, before making the biggest dairying decision of her young life.

Only time will tell if Amy Trimmer parts with her beloved JCY April Starbuck before the upcoming show season. But the memories of a dairy showring dream come true in the Expo ring at Madison will remain with one York County junior exhibitor forever.

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — After a weekend of entertaining company, Judy and Luke Kurtz and daughter Tammy, 16, kicked off their shoes and sank into the family room furniture to relax and munch on some popcorn.

The calm was interrupted when son Jon, 20, burst through the door and screamed, "Tornado! Get to the basement!"

Dazed by his unexpected alarm, instead of going to the basement, the family ran outside where they spotted the funnel-shaped cloud swirling toward their silos.

As the family rushed to the basement, Luke yelled that he was going to close bedroom windows. He surmised that the tornado would kick up a lot of wind and dirt, but never anticipated disaster.

Concern for his dad drove Jon to rush up the steps in an attempt to coerce his dad to forget the windows and go to the basement for shelter.

When Jon reached the top of the bedroom stairs, he went to the bedroom on the right. Immediately the door slammed behind him. Jon, a strong, muscular 20-year-old, tried to open the door but the wind suction kept him from budging it. In the meantime, Luke, unaware that Jon had followed him, realized the impending danger and ran back to the basement.

Jon heard the barn collapsing, the wind shrieking, the thud of falling trees, and glass splintering. As the roof and attic above him tore off, the door opened and Jon ran for the basement admidst flying glass and debris.

A large air conditioner crashed to the floor as he ran past it, but he made it to the basement without injury.

The family huddled together in the middle of the basement, their arms wrapped around each other. crying, praying — flying debris stinging their legs.

Then it was over.

They ventured up the basement steps, through the dining room and kitchen to the outdoors. They had expected damage, but not the devastation they saw.

Splintered timbers, uprooted trees, twisted metal, and clothing were strewn everywhere.

Only the stone-gabled ends of the barn stood upright. Two of the four silos had disintegrated. Four of their cars were demolished beneath the crumbled concrete block walls, fallen garage doors, and roof.

But the most shocking part was the house.

"It wasn't until we were outside and looked up that we realized the upper part of our house was gone," Judy said.

As they examined the wreckage in greater detail, they realized how much worse it could have been.

"If the storm had come an hour later, we would have been in bed— and dead," Judy said as they surveyed the master bedroom. The brick exterior walls and chimney had landed in their bedroom, from which more than five tons of bricks were removed during cleanup.

Tammy's bedroom walls and furnishings were also gone, her bed found in splinters.

The bedroom where Jon was trapped during the storm and a spare bedroom were the least damaged.

Hundreds of friends, neighbors, and strangers came to help clean up at sunup the following day.

Most of the property's trees lay uprooted. The few that stood were stripped of most of the limbs and leaves and bore evidence of the storm's viciousness. A shredded patchwork quilt hung from a branch, twisted metal and tin were wrapped around a limb, and a golf club hung precariously. Splintered wood, clothing, crumpled tin, twisted metal, and yarn lay strewn across acres of farm land.

Throughout the day, the idiosyncrasies of the storm continued to amaze people.

A thin piece of paper had penetrated a tree trunk crosswise. It was so tightly ingrained that it could not be pulled out.

A large piece of equipment would be gone while beside it a much lighter piece remained untouched.

Luke was concerned about his office where all the records for his high moisture corn business were kept. Amazingly, even though large items had been swept away, the papers lying on his desk were still there just as he had left them. The computer and its records were intact.

"Things are just things. They can be replaced. But we have each other. That's the most important," Judy said.

Still, the loss carries a great deal of aching. "Losing your house is almost like losing a best friend," Judy said. "Everyday I had cared for it, cleaned it. It held so many memories."

Those who know Judy know how much she transformed that 1860's house into a showcase of primitive country decor. With antiques, collectibles, and her sewing expertise, Judy had an eye on how to bring out the most appealing features of the home.

Despite her extensive decorating ability, for which folks traveled great distances to admire, the home was better known as a great place to gather for fun and fellowship.

Their home was the place for large gatherings of family and friends. Overnight and week-long stays were common, and many refer to Judy as the most hospitable hostess known.

So this house was no ordinary house. Not only does the family mourn, but also those who have been guests.

"I can't believe it," said Dr. Clair Martin, president of Cumberland University, Tenn. "We were there for the weekend. Everything was so beautiful. It was so peaceful to sit under the trees and see miles of open farmland. I told them that they could get a million bucks for the place if they were to advertise it with contents intact in the "Wall Street Journal."

Despite the traumatic loss, the family remains upbeat, focusing on the good, believing that God has a purpose in everything.

Still, the void is felt in unexpected moments for the family.

Two days after the tornado, Judy called her dentist to ask about what to do about some pain she was feeling in her mouth from recent dental work. The receptionist said the dentist was busy and asked Judy for her telephone number in order to return the call.

Reality swept over Judy. "I have no telephone. . .I have no house. . .I have no car," she sobbed.

But moments later, Judy's sense of humor prevailed as she said, "You know, I always wanted central air."

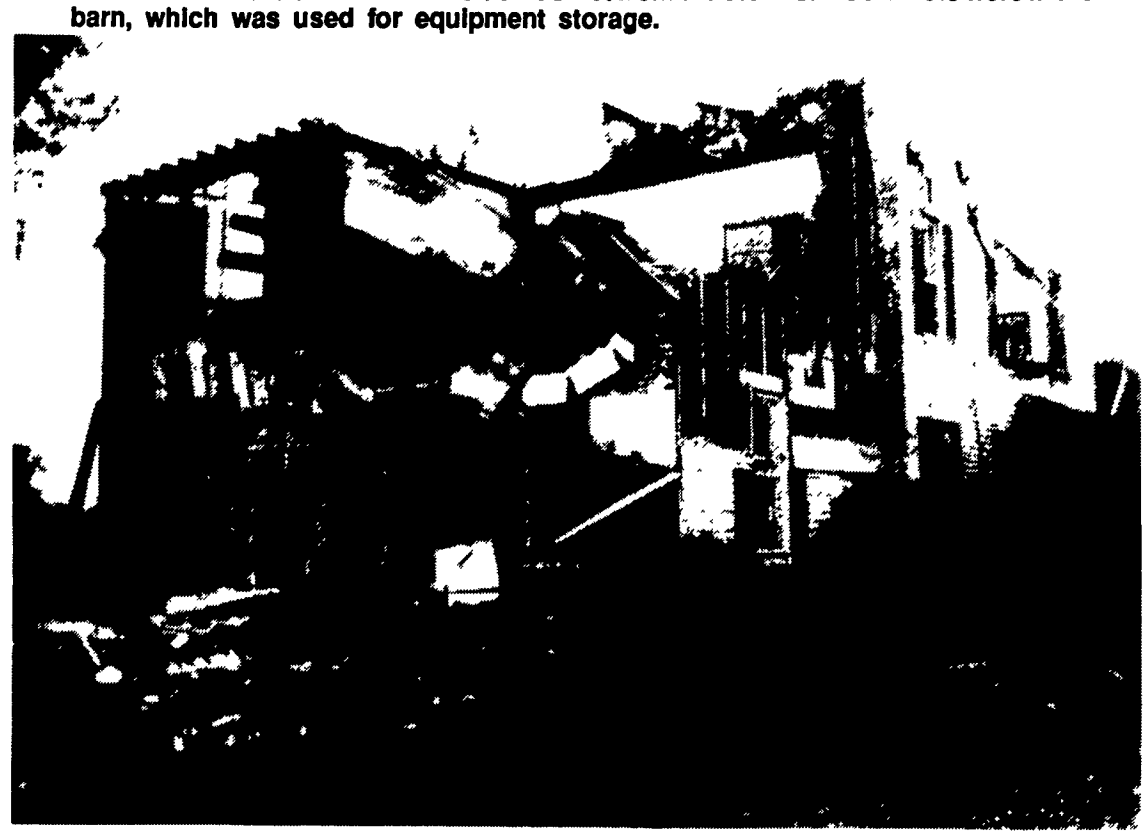
The toil of cleaning up continues.

Everyday volunteers show up to sort through the debris, to comb the fields, to move endless equipment, furnishings, and to salvage

(Turn to Page A41)

Three of the family's car are demolished from the rubble that landed on them during the tornado, another car was damaged. Amazingly, Tammy's car, which was parked in a wooden shed against the barn, was undamaged.

Only the stone gable ends remain of the barn. Two silos collapsed. The two that remained standing have outer damage on the elevators and other parts but appear to be stable. However, a few days later, it was discovered that the silo roof was peppered with holes and the corn stored inside was wet from the storms. No animals were in the barn, which was used for equipment storage.



The room to the left is where Jon was trapped during the tornado. The right-front bedroom was Tammy's. Her bed lies in splinters beneath the rubble.

No House, No Barn, No Cars 'But We Have Each Other' the remains.

Everyday neighbors prepare meals for the hundreds of volunteers. It's a great sacrifice of time and money. While they worked, they shared memories.

"This valley has had its share of disasters," said Phoebe Bitler, a neighboring farmer. "There've been fires and wind storms. Everyone works together to clean up."

In fact, the Kurtz family had a previous disaster exactly 18 years ago when 32 of their dairy cows were killed when lightning struck a power line that crossed the meadow where the cows were grazing.

The Kurtz farm wasn't the only Berks County farm hit by tornado or storm. At the Mertz family dairy farm, within eyesight of the Kurtz farm, neighbors also were helping clean up.

The Mertz farmstead had its house roof ripped off and some exterior damage. A cow had died from the shock.

Most neighboring places had no damage. However, three miles away, the tornado heavily damaged 20 homes in a two-block area of the village of Lyons.

Although the Kurtzes' neighbors reportedly heard the sound of a rushing train that is affiliated with a tornado, the Kurtz family could not recall or describe any impending noise.

There are endless decisions to be made and sleepless nights, but the Kurtz family will survive this, stronger and happier than ever.

How do I know?

Because Judy is my sister. She is always bubbly, seeing the bright side of things—always helping and caring for others, always making things beautiful. Her husband Luke is strong, hard working, dependable. I think of Jon, who risked his own life by leaving the safety of the basement to rescue his father, and of Tammy who so closely mirrors her mother's personality, a 16-year-old who claims her mother as her best friend.

I love my sister, Luke, Jon, and Tammy. I want the best for them.

And so does the God in whom they put their trust. He promises, "I know the plans I have for you. Plans to prosper you, and not harm you. Plans to give you a future, and to give you hope."

Gov. Ridge Requests Aid For Storm-Ravaged Counties

On Sunday night and again on Tuesday night, a series of tornadoes and severe thunderstorms raced across the state, leaving a trail of disaster in Allegheny, Berks, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Monroe, Montgomery, Philadelphia, Pike, Somerset, and Wyoming counties.

At least three Pennsylvanians were killed, hundreds hurt through injury or damage to property. Numerous farms throughout the state had buildings destroyed or received significant damage.

Gov. Tom Ridge issued a disaster emergency declaration for those counties. He requested President Clinton for a presidential Major Disaster Declaration to trigger state and federal financial assistance for eligible victims of the storms.

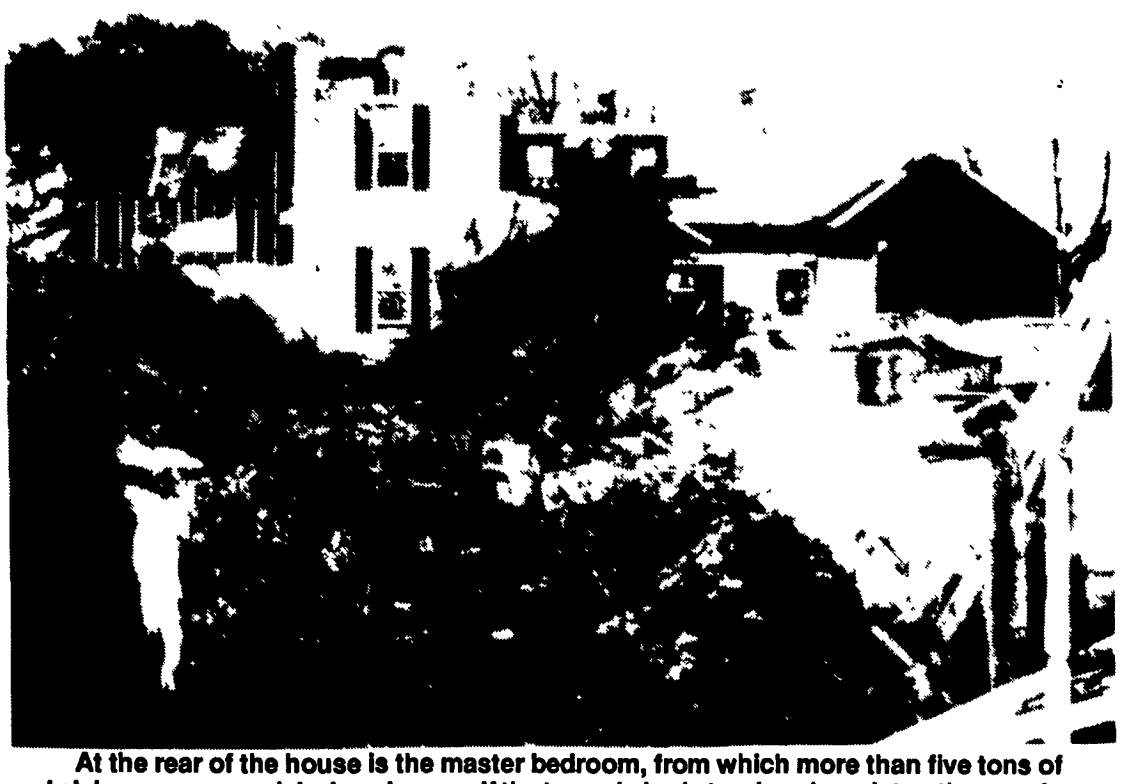
Marko Bourne, press secretary for Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency (PEMA) said that preliminary and cursory estimates were being made of the damage to establish that a disaster has occured.

After the initial findings are received and a rough estimate is made of the loss sustained, it takes more time for all the specific tangible lossess to be reported, and the total adjusted for a more accurate assessment of loss.

Bourne said that the initial raw number is to be used to help support the state's case of suffering a disaster to receive further assessment effort from the Federal Emergency Management Agency. He said assessment teams would be in the field for the coming week.

Although the people of communities with storm damage don't need a technical analysis to know that the storms were disastrous, the assessment is a prerequisite for federal aid.

During cleanup, a hole is dug in which to bury debris. In the distance is the Mertz farm, where the house roof was taken off and some other damage. A cow collapsed from fright, but other than that the herd was undamaged.



At the rear of the house is the master bedroom, from which more than five tons of brick were removed during cleanup. If the tornado had struck an hour later, the couple no doubt would have been in bed and faced instant death from the bricks that scattered a three-foot-high layer over the room. The clothes remained hanging in the bedroom closet, only one example of many idiosyncrasies of tornado behavior.

Glass-Bottled Milk Remains Tradition At Oley Dairy

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

OLEY (Berks Co.) — Years ago milk delivery trucks made their way into the winding roads of resident neighborhoods.

Today, instead, people from a nearby community take turns making the rounds, picking up the trademark glass bottles and coming into the Oley Turnpike Dairy store to receive fresh bottles of milk.

To the neighbors who collect glass jugs for friends in the nearby towns of Boyertown, Birdsboro, Exeter, Oley, Douglasville, and Jacksonwald, Oley Turnpike Dairy is home to what consider the best product — glass-bottled milk fresh from the farm.

Neighbors know what to expect from the dairy, located on the Oley Turnpike Road. Ice cream is made and named — all 51 flavors.

It's the same for deli treats. Ask anyone who has ever sampled "The Silo," "The Udder," "The Plow," or "The Tractor." The dairy store owes its rich heritage to the people of the Oley Valley.

Thomas Rose, a partner in the family business who is in charge of the ice cream parlor, noted some of the challenges of taking over a family business going back 28 years.

"The owners who decided to get out of the dairy store business sold us a very valuable enterprise," said Rose. The prior owners, Eugene and Darlene Moser, decided to give up the dairy store. Eugene still farms and Darlene takes care of their antique business.

David Reichert, brother-in-law to Thomas Rose, rents the barn and owns the cows of the original dairy that supplies milk to the store. The farm encompasses about 425 acres and is comprised of 52 Holsteins, including registered and grade. About 80,000 pounds of milk per month are used by the dairy store.

But the farm store remains the centerpiece to the dairy business. It is owned by the Reichert family and spouses, including David Reichert, president, and wife Beth. Vice president is Carl Reichert, Jr. with wife Carol. Treasurer is Diane Rose, wife of Thomas Rose. Secretary is Jennifer Blair and husband Charles. The spouses are also shareholders in the company.

The family business was purchased in February this year from the Moser family.

Since then the farm store has added a deli and bakery.

But one tradition stays the same — refilling the store's glass bottles with whole, 2 percent, or skim milk. The bottles are often brought in by a friend or neighbor. At one time, recalled Rose, one person brought 20 bottles in to be refilled for his neighbors.

The dairy charges a $1 deposit on each bottle. A half gallon of milk is sold for $1.10 in glass bottles. The store also carries various plastic cartons, including pint, quart, half gallon, and gallon sizes.

Also, Oley Turnpike Dairy makes and freezes its own ice cream, which it sells at the store parlor.

They also mix their own concentrated orange juice, iced tea, and lime and grape juices. They don't mix apple juices.

Thomas Rose knows how to operate the business from the ground level.

"I have several years of experience in a retail background. I sold clothing at the Bon Ton," he said. At Bon Ton, Rose was the division sales manager.

Many other owners have experience in various parts of retail food sales. Jennifer Blair, who works full time, has deli experience. Carol Reichert has experience with baked goods. Carl Reichert loves animals and cares for the huge petting zoo open to the public, behind the store.

Rose said the petting zoo is home to several different types of pygmy goats, llamas, alpacas, emus, rheas, and several exotic monkeys and birds. Also included is a dairy calf.

Each of those who work in various aspects of the store "brings talent and experience" to bear, according to Rose. With all the work that needs to be done, all stay busy. The store is open year-round.

"Our hats are off to Gene and Darlene, who did all of this for 28 years by themselves," Rose said.

The ice cream parlor is the "icing on top of the cake" for the store's success, Rose noted. People come as far away as the Reading Airport to buy one of 51 flavors of homemade ice cream.

An employee, Curt Payne, makes all the ice cream. He's been doing so for 25 years. "The man is an icon," said Rose.

The store also sells fresh produce in season. The produce is from the Leola Auction in Lancaster County. They also purchase from Kutztown Auction.

The "focus" of the enterprise is the look of "country" to the store, said Rose. That includes homemade baskets, artwork by an artist named Bob McGee from Bechtelsville, and wrought iron candles.

The store is home to tour groups through the spring. During April and May, many preschoolers come to visit. They receive a guided tour of the zoo, visit the animal house (open only a couple of times each year), and sample a free serving of ice cream. More than 100 schools, including head start programs in Pottstown and Reading, visit the dairy.

And don't forget Bessy the Cow.

Bessy is a large plastic Holstein that used to sit on the roof of the store. Now, because of "leg problems," Rose noted, Bessy sits next to the deli counter. Lots of customers bring their children to visit her.

"I remember this cow with my parents when we used to visit here," said Rose. It was on the roof — until it fell over.

"Families bring their children here to have a good time with the family," he said. "We try to stay family-oriented."

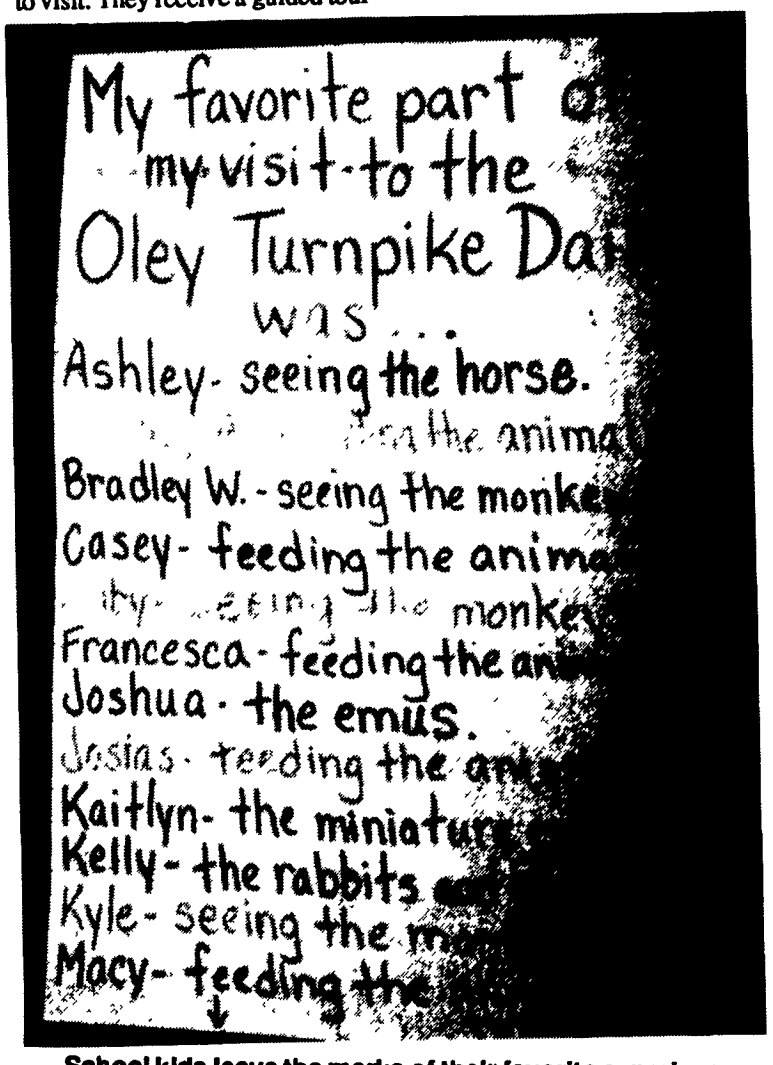
The ice cream parlor is going through some minor renovations, including changing seat cover colors and some work on the counter top.

But the store remains a dairy. Maybe it has something to do with the milk.

"I'm a heavy milk drinker," he said. "Milk tastes better in a glass bottle."

Store hours are regularly 7 a.m.-8 p.m., and, when the season develops, will be open until 10 p.m. The store is open seven days per week all year long, except for Easter, Thanksgiving, and Christmas.

Visitors to Oley Turnpike Dairy recently stand next to Bessy the cow. In back, Frank Natale with granddaughter Heather, 1 and Gabrielle, 5.



School kids leave the marks of their favorite experiences at the dairy.

JACOB GUFFEY
Bradford Co. Extension
Agent - Dairy

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — This time each yeare our dairy industry receives special attention as June is recognized as Dairy Month.

Dairy promotion committees conduct dairy festivals and select county dairy princesses who promote our number one industry.

Pennsylvania dairy families are special people, continually being challenged to produce milk more efficiently.

This past January and February, I volunteered, through Citizens Network for Foreign Affairs, for an assignment working with dairy farmers and a milk handler in Moldova, which is a former republic of the Soviet Union. My partner was Mark Rogers, a Vermont dairy farmer.

As I compare the Pennsylvania dairy industry to the Moldova one, I am more appreciative than ever of the management capabilities of our dairy families.

Moldovan dairy cows average about 10 pounds of milk per cow per day. We have challenges, and we are not receiving enough for our milk, but we are much better off than the Moldovans.

You may ask, "How can they keep their cows from producing more milk?"

They really would like to increase production. Many times we were asked, "How can we increase our cows production?" One can list many reasons as to why the Moldovan dairy industry is in the position it is today. But, most if not all of the blame rests with the former communist government which stifled progress in all areas.

The cows are of no particular breed and conformation wise resemble our dairy cows of many years ago. As I understand under the communists, dairy farmers were required to use AI. However, the farmers did not have a choice of bulls, with the same bull of questionable genetics, being used for two years. As a result, their genetic progress stopped.

Here in the U.S., we have a wide choice of bulls through AI that enable us to select the genetics which will help increase milk production and our net farm income. Yes, not everyone takes advantage of this opportunity, still persisting in keeping a herd bull which in most situations does little to help increase our income. Those herds are slipping backwards.

The Moldovan dairymen would like out options. We were able to convince those in Moldova to order U.S. dairy semen.

The daily feed intake for a milking cow in Moldova consisted of dry, whole stalks of corn fodder, without corn grain, plus over mature grass hay made in late August.

On most farms, the feeding of grain, salt, minerals and vitamins was non existent. Very poor grass pasture was utilized in the summer. The cows were very thin.

Occasionally we met a farmer who was feeding a little commeal plus sunflower cake, but most cows were eating just enough to maintain their body and not enough to produce much milk.

Services such as forage testing and feed programming for balanced rations were unheard of in Moldova. We developed simple fact sheets to help them learn how to improve their feeding practices. Here in Pennsylvania, we would have a healthier, more profitable dairy industry if the use of these feed programming services was expanded.

Cows were milked by hand even on the state farm we visited. This particular farm had 135 milking cows. Total labor force was 60 full-time employees. Milking supplies were not readily available. The strainer was a piece of cloth. Somatic cell counts were unknown.

The future of the dairy industry in Moldova rests with the private farmers as the larger state run farms are being broken up into small tracts through the granting of land settlements to the people who worked on these state farms.

Through land transfers between individuals, it is hoped that those interested in dairying will be able to accumulate enough land to support a profitable dairy herd. This has already started as some were trying to sell land to Mark and I. I am sure that we were thought of as rich Americans.

Graham Pledges $105,000 For World Dairy Expo Sweepstakes

MADISON, Wis. — Producers can bet on their genetics by being one of the first entrants in the new Bill Graham World Dairy Center International Sweepstaakes to be held at World Dairy Expo.

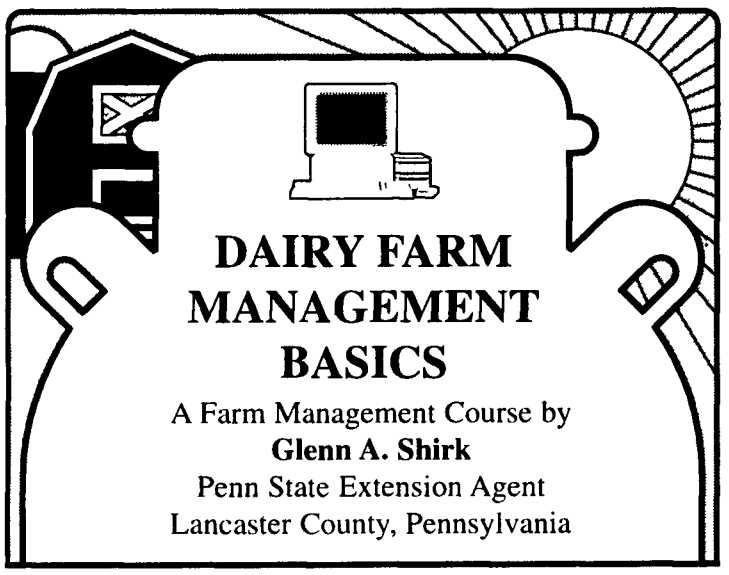
Three-year-olds from all seven breeds will have a chance at $35,000 in prize monies donated by Bill Graham, cofounder of the World Dairy Center. Additional prize money will be determined by entry fees collected.

The Bill Graham World Dairy Center International Sweepstakes is a futurity contest where animals entered as calves are not shown until they are three years old. Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Holstein, Holstein, Jersey, Milking Shorthorn and Red & White will each have their own futurity and $35,000 will be distributed, $5,000 per breed. The sweepstakes will also include the selection of a supreme champion which will receive $1,000 in additional prize money. Graham has pledged to provide the $35,000 in prize money for three years for a total of $105,000.

The seven separate futurity classes will take place on the last day of World Dairy Expo, 2001. A $25 fee is required for entries postmarked by Sept. 8 of this year and a $50 fee is required for entries postmarked after Sept. 8. Entries will only be accepted until Nov. 1, 1998. For an animal to be eligible for the 2001 sweepstakes it must be born between Sept. 1, 1997 and Aug. 31, 1998.

Entry forms will be available July 1 in the World Dairy Expo premium book. If a producer has been a cattle exhibitor at Expo in the last three years you will receive a premium book in July. If you have not exhibited in the last three years, please call Expo at (608) 224-6455 to have a form sent out with the Expo premium book in July.

World Dairy Expo is held at the Dane County Expo Center in Madison, Wis. The sweepstakes will become part of Expo, an annual event that draws more than 68,000 dairy producers from around the world. The World Dairy Center is a 5-year-old business park located on the East side of Madison, Wis. The park includes many dairy and agricultural-related organizations. Graham is the land owner and one of the original developers.



Dairy Farm Management Basics - Lesson 1

This is the first of a series of articles on topics related to the basics of dairy farm management It is an attempt to share with you a lot of the things I have learned and observed during my years of association with dairy producers, professionals and industry leaders

Throughout this series of articles, I will be focusing on some key areas of management that need to be addresseed by dairy farm families, including

- Personal and business considerations
- Startup considerations
- Investment and expansion considerations
- Factors affecting farm profits
- Production economics
- Herd management goals
- Herd/farm management strategies
- Farm records
- Feeding and nutrition
- Housing cow comfort and cow behavior
- Reproduction and genetics
- Herd health
- Culling and merchandising cattle
- Herd replacements
- Feed production, procurement and storage
- Farm safety

Personal Considerations

Farming can be a nice way of life' It provides a place for family members to live and work together, and a place where they can be close to Nature They can be their own boss and more in control of their own destiny However, before the family can enjoy these qualities of life, the farm must be a profitable business

As you think about farming, ask yourselves some basic questions, such as the ones listed below It will help give purpose to all that you do, and it can help keep you and your family more focused.

1 Why are you farming or why do you want to farm?

2 What do you want to accomplish in life, and what are your goals?
- Earn an annual income of $_____ to support the family
- Maintain a reserve of $_____ for emergencies
- Create a college fund of $_____ by what year _____
- Accumulate a retirement fund of $_____ by what year _____
- Bring children into the business
- Have time for family and community activities

Business Considerations

1 What must the farm do to help you reach your personal goals, and what goals have you set for the farm? Some ideas are listed below.
- Generate an annual profit of $ _____ .
- Produce and market high quality milk
- Merchandise some breeding stock
- Be an asset to the community
- Be good custodians of the farm's natural resources
- Accumulate $_____ of net worth, by what year _____
- Systematic growth of the business to
  - Meet increasing family expenses
  - Accommodate children or other business associates into the business
  - Strengthen your competitive position in the industry

2 How much profit do you need per cow per year and per cwt milk to meet family needs? Table I can be a guide Notice the big spread of about $3 00 in profit needed per cwt to generate $30,000 profit, comparing 40 cows producing 17,000 lb to 100 cows at 21,000 lb How many cows (____) and how much milk per cow (_____) do you need?

Table I Margin Needed per Cow and per Cwt of Milk for $30,000 Profit

No of Cows	Margin Per Cow	Margin Per Cwt. of Milk Sold at Various Production Levels
		15,000	17,000	19,000	21,000	23,000
40	750	5 00	4 41	3 95	3 57	3 26
60	500	3 33	2 94	2 63	2 38	2 17
80	375	2 50	2 21	1 97	1 79	1 63
100	300	2 00	1 76	1 58	1.43	1 30

3 Dairy farming is a global business. It is a business that - -
- Converts feeds into milk, cattle and meat It adds market value to the crops that are grown and to the feeds that are purchased - - hopefully for a profit
- Provides a return to land, labor, capital investments, and to management
- Builds equity for its owners
- Contributes to the local economy - - and to the larger economy

Westmoreland Milk Buyers Group Hopes To Boost Profits

RANDY WELLS
Indiana Correspondent

WESTMORELAND, Ind. — To Westmoreland County milk-producer Wayne Frye's way of thinking, there are two ways to boost profits in the dairy business: Generate more income or cut farm expenses.

"The experts say get bigger, get bigger, get bigger. I'm not sure that's the answer," Frye said

So he's opted for the second route, and thinks the recently-formed Westmoreland Buyers' Group can help take him there.

Frye, who milks about 115 Holsteins, was one of the farmers in Westmoreland and Indiana counties who helped organize the buyers' consortium this past winter. The members decided to consolidate their shopping lists of supplies needed to run their farms, and then buy those commodities in large volumes to get discount prices.

Penn State extension agents Gary Sheppard of Westmoreland County and Gene Schurman of Indiana County acted as facilitators to get the group started.

"We pulled people together and said, 'Here's an opportunity. What do you think of it?' The concept is certainly not rocket science," said Sheppard, adding it's the same way some other farmers' cooperatives began.

Buying groups have gained appeal recently as dairymen increasingly have struggled to cut costs as prices paid for their milk stagnated or even dropped.

"Everyone's scratching to see if we can produce it for less," Indiana County dairyman Tom McNutt said of the milk-producing industry. "It's a tough business to turn a buck. It's forced farmers to get together and talk about prices."

And according to McNutt, the consortium has worked well so far, with farmers getting better prices and vendors getting their money up front.

Glenn Kerr, a self-employed agronomist from Greensburg, acts as the group's buyer.

By pooling their orders together and buying in volume, the group's 17 members have been able to realize substantial savings on some products. In certain instances an additional discount was also available because the orders are pre-paid through a line of credit established with a local bank.

This spring the group has purchased spray material for hay and corn crops, seed, fuel and veterinarian's supplies.

As an example, Kerr said the consortium purchased 10,000 gallons of diesel fuel for 58-1/2 cents per gallon — a 10 or 12-cent-per-gallon savings over the regular price.

He estimates the group's members go a 15 percent savings on the spray chemicals, as a 45 percent savings on the price of alfalfa seed.

"As a group we've bought about $130,000 worth of supplies this spring," Kerr said. "We didn't expect the savings we got."

Purchases were made both locally and from companies out of the area. Some of the seed, for example, was bought from a New York company, but was purchased through a local farmer-dealer.

Kerr expects the members to meet again in the fall and possibly draw up a shopping list for wheat seed and dairy supplies. They're also considering a large order — perhaps 1,000 units — of semen for cattle breeding at an expected big savings.

Kerr said he knew a lot of the suppliers and retailers, and originally agreed to serve as the consortium's buyer for a flat fee. On the last couple of purchases he's worked for a percentage.

Once a list of needed supplies is pooled, he "shops it around" with various vendors to find the best price on that particular volume.

Consortium members were assessed a one-time fee of $100 to join the group. That money covered some of the costs of getting started, including setting up the line of credit and having checks printed.

Kerr said the group is not limiting its membership, but he notes the consortium can get the best deals only if its members are geographically close. If the group grows too large, it may be necessary to create two delivery locations so the vendors don't have to truck the deliveries all around two counties.

Kerr sees one minor drawback to the consortium concept. There are many products on the market, and most farmers have a preference for particular products and brands they want. Yet the members must agree to used a limited array of products to achieve the volume discounts, he said.

McNutt echoed that observation. The members sometimes have to sacrifice some independence to get lower prices. The group has to be able to say to the seller, 'We'll all use Brand-X.'

The majority of the members are dairymen, and Kerr is an agronomist, best able to help the crop farmers, according to Frye. He thinks an improvement could be made by adding a second buyer, someone who's an expert in dairy needs.

With 17 members, it now takes most of them agreeing to participate in a purchase to get an order large enough to qualify for the volume prices. If more members join the group, it would be possible to place large enough orders without having to have everyone participate.

Frye thinks a logical evolution will be the eventual spin-off of another consortium — perhaps one just for Indiana County farmers. And on occasions the two groups might still consolidate their shopping lists for bigger savings.

Sheppard estimates the buyers group might save the average member $3,000 to $4,000 a year. And while that helps, he sees two other benefits. The savings represent a "mental bright spot" for dairymen who have been struggling financially, he said. And another plus is that the consortium brings dairymen together in a small group where they can discuss production techniques.

That informal exchange of tips and ideas will help the viability of the industry, Sheppard said.

State Resumes Testing Moisture Meters

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) – State Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. this week announced that the state grain moisture meter testing program has resumed.

"The grain moisture meter testing program ensures that those who sell grain are using accurate equipment to measure their product," Hayes said.

The program follows requirements established by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST). NIST requires all meters manufactured or placed into service since Jan. 1, 1998, to have a digital readout, printing capability and National Type Evaluation Program (NTEP) approval.

The new requirements do not include meters in service before Jan. 1, if ownership of the meter does not change

In addition to the NIST requirements, the program will continue to monitor other requirements already in place, including: the availability of operating instructions and updated charts; cleanliness of the meter and environment, suitability and accuracy of the scale for weighing grain samples; and suitability and accuracy of the thermometer for obtaining the temperature of grain samples.

How could you find a better title for a promotion on the impact of the dairy industry on the economy of Pennsylvania? The Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders' new brochure has tremendous applications for farmers across the state to reach out to our non-farm neighbors. They are making the connection between the milk we produce and the economy of the community by sharing facts about the dairy industry.

Roughly 11,500 dairy farms throughout the state provide thousands of jobs and billions of dollars for the economy. About 1.2 million gallons of milk per year are produced through the dairy industry.

If you can imagine, that's enough milk for 38 billion bowls of cereal and about 1,600 glasses of milk each year for every man, woman, and child in the state.

Also, the milk from every 20 cows creates one full time job, which means over 17,000 people are employed on Pennsylvania dairy farms. Another 12,000 have jobs processing, transporting, and selling milk, and this doesn't even include jobs created by selling equipment and farm supplies.

Here are the facts:

1) A two percent growth in the Pennsylvania dairy industry creates 570 new jobs

2) Farm commodities such as milk, meat and grain create thousands of off-farm jobs

3) Farmers are major consumers of goods and services purchased locally

4) Farmland serves the community as a free groundwater recharge area

5) Farms generate more tax money than they require in services

But, just how valuable is the dairy industry in your own county or township? For a quick overview, count the number of dairy cows in your area to estimate how many dollars milk brings into your area. Your county agent should be able to provide accurate cow numbers.

Take the number of cows and multiply by 2,000 gallons (average production per cow) to get a total gallons of milk per year.

Now multiply the gallons of milk by an average price of $1.20 per gallon ($14/hundredweight) to find the total dollars milk is bringing into your community. Remember, most of that money will go right back into the local economy in the form of purchases, services and taxes.

This article about milk and it's role in maintaining a strong economy comes primarily from information provided by the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders.

Milk, it does a community good.

Feel free to send your comments and ideas to Jim Shirk at The Lancaster Chamber by email at jshirk@lcci.com or call him at 397-3531.

PENNSYLVANIA DAIRY FACTS

The Pennsylvania dairy industry generated an estimated $1 67 billion in economic activity last year

Total milk produced in the state last year amounted to 10,742 million pounds or 1,249 million gallons

There were 10,500 commercial dairy farms in Pennsylvania last year, with 644,000 milk cows in the state

Each dairy cow in Pennsylvania produced an average of 16,811 pounds or 1,954 gallons of milk in 1997

Last year, Pennsylvania dairy cows produced more than 7 gallons of milk a day, or enough to make 6 pounds of cheese or 2 6 pounds of butter To produce this much milk, a cow consumes 35 gallons of water, 20 pounds of grain and concentrated feeds, and 35 pounds of hay and silage.

The average value of a day's milk is about $7 80 per cow It takes $3 50 to pay for the feed, $1 25 for other supplies, and $2 75 for building and overhead to produce that milk, leaving 30 cents for labor and profit

In 1997, dairy cow in Pennsylvania cost about $1,130 In order to pay for that cow, a farmer would have to sell 1,018 gallons of milk

The top five ranking dairy counties in the state based on milk production are Lancaster, Franklin, Bradford, Berks, and Chester counties

Each person in Pennsylvania drank an average of 23 gallons of milk last year

Pennsylvania ranks fourth in milk production in the United States, producing 6 8 percent of the nation's milk

At a mailbox price of $15 50 per hundredweight, Pennsylvania dairy farmers averaged $ 42 profit for each 100 pounds of milk they produced in 1996
1997 average mailbox price isn't available for Pennsylvania

Here's What Another Satisfied Stimopuls MA Customer Has To Say About Westfalia Equipment

Hal Drick, Allenwood, Pa.

"I tried another major brand of stall barn detacher & milker claw on one side of the stable & the Stimopuls MA and Classic 300 Claw on the opposite side. The milking speed & handling of the Westfalia Equipment was superior to the other brand & made my decision easier to purchase Westfalia. Our dealer, Fisher & Thompson, Belleville, Pa. did a great job on installation & we're happy with the performance. I'd recommend others to take a look at Westfalia before making an equipment purchase."

How Much Silage Is In That Wagon?

Many times as an Extension Agent I get asked questions about purchasing forages out of the field One of the most difficult parts of this procedure is determining the amount of dry matter harvested from the field. The most effective way of determining this is to weigh each load, or to obtain an estimate by weighing selected "average" loads Many times, however, this is not convenient or feasible

Recently, researchers at the University of Wisconsin Marshfield Agricultural Experiment Station weighed and measured haylage/silage produced on the farm for three years According to Mike Rankin, University of Wisconsin, average depth of forage was estimated and moisture samples were taken for each load as they passed over the scale.

Table 1 gives the average silage dry matter density (lbs per cubic foot) on the wagons. For the various types of forage, the range is from 4 6 lbs. DM/ft^3 to 5.7 lbs. DM/ft^3 with an average of about 5.0 pounds per cubic foot According to the data gathered, forage density did not vary greatly with forage type or moisture

Rankin states, knowing this, it is now possible to estimate the load on a wagon by multiplying volume times density. Let's look at an example A wagon measuring 16 ft long by 7 25 ft. wide and filled to a depth of 6 feet with second cutting alfalfa haylage has a volume of 696 cubic feet (16 x 7 25 x 6) To determine the amount of dry matter on the wagon, multiply the cubic feet times 5 lbs of dry matter per cubic foot (from Table 1) This comes to 3480 lbs of dry matter (696 x 5).

To convert this back to "as fed" weight, divide the dry matter content (as a decimal) into the dry matter lbs. If our second cutting alfalfa haylage is 60% moisture (40% dry matter), we would divide 3480 lbs. by 0.40 to get 8700 lbs. as fed

Table 1. Average Silage Dry Matter Density on Wagons Weighed at the University of Wisconsin Marshfield Ag. Research Station

Forage	Cutting	Avg. Density lbs. DM/ft^3	Avg. Dry Matter (%)	Sample Size (No. of Loads)
Haylage	First	5.67	45.6	30
Haylage	Second	5 00	47 0	119
Haylage	Third	5 10	51.7	85
Haylage	Fourth	4.95	56.7	11
Corn Silage	Not Applicable	5 05	34 4	151
Grass	All	4 55	43.5	7
Clover	All	5 48	48.3	38
Oatlage	Not Applicable	4.99	36.6	45

Please keep in mind that these are only averages, and that wagons must be filled to an equal depth from end to end. Sometimes, this may require adjusting the paddles on your forage harvester Weighing the wagons on a scale is still the most accurate option if it is feasible

Once the dry matter tonnage is determined, the purchaser can then negotiate a price with the seller. Some of the prices I've heard producers use in the southeast region have been between one half of dry hay auction market value to one third of dry hay auction market value, depending on quality, location, etc.

Gov. Ridge Proclaims June Dairy Month

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In conjunction with National Dairy Month, Gov. Tom Ridge has proclaimed June as Dairy Month in Pennsylvania to recognize the many contributions the dairy industry makes to the commonwealth.

"Pennsylvania's dairy production is the leading segment of our agricultural industry," Gov. Ridge said. "Our dairy farmers and their families are to be commended for the strength and vitality they bring to rural communities throughout the commonwealth. I encourage all Pennsylvanians to enjoy a cold glass of milk."

Milk is nature's most perfect food and Pennsylvania's official beverage. More than 38 percent of agricultural income in Pennsylvania is generated by the dairy industry. Sales from milk alone represents a $1.67 billion contribution to the state's economy.

Adding to the dollar value of milk itself are the state's processing plants and manufacturers.

"In addition to our 10,500 commercial dairy farmers, thousands of Pennsylvanians are employed in the manufacturing and processing of dairy products," Gov. Ridge said.

Pennsylvania is the fourth-leading milk-producing state in the country. Last year, 644,000 dairy cows produced 10.6 billion pounds of milk.

Pennsylvania also ranks second in the annual production of ice cream, with 67 million gallons; and sixth in the production of cheese, with 340.6 million pounds.

The dairy industry offers consumers a wealth of great tasting and nutritious foods by continuing to meet the changing demands of consumers.

Dairy products are the most readily available food source for calcium and provide generous amounts of protein, vitamin D, riboflavin and potassium.

New Store Opens In Carlisle

The grand opening of the first Purina America's Country Store in the northeast was held last week at Knisely's store. A crowd estimated at over 1,000 people were on hand on Saturday, May 30 for the final day of their festivities. Ed Knisely and his son Steve operate this Purina Mills, Inc. feed and pet supply dealership. The business was started by Ed and his father 39 years ago and has been selling Purina Chow in this area ever since they opened.

The America's Country Store is a new concept in retailing to supply the horse and pet owner with their needs. The concept is based on Purina Mills' market research that shows an on-going population shift from traditional urban and suburban markets to increasingly developing geography at the fringes of these areas. People desiring a more country lifestyle make up this new customer segment. The photos show the front of of Knisely's new store at the grand opening and Steve Knisely, owner, and Paul Hann, Purina's retail development manager.

DelVal Lecture Highlights British Horse Society Standards

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Jeremy Michaels, a fellow of the British Horse Society (BHS) and BHS chief examiner, is to present a lecture regarding BHS examinations, June 16 at the Delaware Valley College Equestrian Center.

Free and open to the public, Michaels' lecture is to discuss the BHS examination system and Society-held standards at each of the five qualification levels. It is applicable to riders of any level of experience who are considering a career in the horse industry, whether it is in stable management, riding or teaching.

Instructors and stable managers who hold BHS qualifications demonstrate a high degree of expertise and commitment to ongoing professional development.

Considered the premiere accrediting body for the horse industry, the BHS is Great Britain's national governing body for horse sports, and its qualifications for riding instructors have existed for nearly 70 years. It is officially recognized in 28 countries and qualifies instructors to apply for an International Trainers' Passport.

Head of the Equine Department at Hartpury College in Gloucester, England, Michaels has nearly 20 years teaching experience and has published in many publications, including Horse and Rider and Today's Horse. He also helped to produce an instructional video series.

Beyond his role with the BHS, he is also a member of the Joint National Horse Education and Training Council.

Located in Doylestown, in the heart of Bucks County, the Delaware Valley College Equestrian Center is an official approved establishment of the British Horse Society. The Equine Science program offers both four-year and two-year degree programs, with specializations in equine training or equibusiness.

Delaware Valley College is a comprehensive four-year institution of higher learning with 1,400 men and women enrolled full time in more than 35 academic programs, ranging from agricultural, biological and physical sciences, to business administration, criminal justice administration and computer information systems.

In addition, 670 students are enrolled on a part-time basis in DelVal's Evening College, working to advance their careers.

Recipe Entries Pay Tribute To Dairy Farmers

How many of your favorite recipes include milk, butter, cheese, or ice cream?

If you're like most families, you probably have a whole stash of favorite recipes using dairy products.

June is Dairy Month — time set aside to enjoy dairy products. And, time to honor dairy farmers for producing wholesome goodness. The best way to thank a dairy farmer is to to use more dairy products. Here are wonderful recipes from our readers to help you do just that.

The recipes, photos, and writeups are part of Lancaster Farming's annual Dairy Recipe Drawing. Entries will be printed throughout the month of June, culminating with a drawing at the end of the month, when Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Nichole Meabon will select the winning entries.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

½ cup milk
¼ cup salad oil
1 egg, beaten slightly
1½ cups flour
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup fresh blueberries

Stir milk and oil into egg. Sift together and add dry ingredients. Stir just until flour is moistened. Fold in blueberries. Fill 12 greased muffin cups ⅔ full. Bake 20-25 minutes at 400 degrees.

We have a busy dairy farm, milking 450 Holsteins. Our daughter-in-law, Dawn, helps with our farm show held each July. Visitors are welcome this year, July 11-12. She is a small animal veterinarian and our son, David, is a partner with us.

I enjoy picking blueberries and my family enjoys eating the fresh ones.

Anyone visiting in Connecticut this summer is welcome to tour our farm, anytime.

SOUR CREAM RASPBERRY PUDDING

¼ cup raspberry preserves
1½ cups cold milk
½ cup sour cream
1 small package instant vanilla pudding and pie filling mix

Place 1 tablespoon preserves in each individual dessert dish. Combine milk and sour cream in mixing bowl. Add pudding mix. With electric mixer at low speed, beat until blended about one minute. Pour over preserves. Let stand to set, about 5 minutes. Garnish with whipped topping and additional preserves.

My husband and son farm 50 acres and raise corn, wheat, oats, and hay. They also raise beef cattle.

I enjoy knitting, embroidery, camping, and cooking. My granddaughter Rae Gina enjoys helping me bake.

My grandson Bobby enjoys playing games, listening to Bible stories, and staying with Papaw and Grandma.

BEEF STROGANOFF

1½ pounds ground beef
3 cups dry noodles
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 cup sour cream

Brown ground beef and cook noodles. Combine cream soups and sour cream with the ground beef and add cooked noodles. pour into casserole dish and cover with buttered bread crumbs. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees about 30 minutes.

This is a quick and easy meal to put together when I'm in a hurry. My husband, Dwane, and I have three children, Christopher, 5; Heidi, 2½; and Jeremy, 4½ months. I enjoy reading the recipes in Lancaster Farming.

INDIVIDUAL PIZZA CUPS

1 loaf frozen bread dough, thawed
1 cup spagetti sauce or pizza sauce
8-ounces mozzerella cheese
Any toppings: ground beef, sausage, broccoli, etc.

Divide dough into 16 pieces. Roll each piece into a 4-inch circle and place each into a greased muffin pan. Put 1 tablespoon of sauce into each cup, top with 1 tablespoon of one topping or ½ tablespoon each of 2 or more toppings. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes or until cheese melts.

I have been married to my husband Corey for almost 7 years. We have three children, Amber, 5; Nate, 2; and Shelby, 10 months. I am a full-time mom and wife and I work part time in the deli of a local grocery store. I enjoy counted cross-stitch, crafts, church activities, and being with family and friends. Our family enjoys camping in our tent when we have the time. We live on Corey's father's farm in Telford. We have steers and do some crop farming. Corey also works full-time for Wayne Marcho, Marcho Veal Farms. We plan on some day owning our own farm.

We like this pizza recipe because you can put different toppings on each one to suit everyone's taste. I keep different prepared toppings in freezer bags in the freezer and put them on frozen. It makes it convenient to make different kinds.

BANANA SPLIT DESSERT

1 envelope graham crackers, crushed
2 bananas
½ gallon box vanilla ice cream, softened and cut into 1-inch thick slabs
1 cup peanuts
Fudge sauce*
8-ounces whipped cream topping

Layer all ingredients in the order listed in a 9x13-inch pan. Freeze approximately 4 hours. Allow to thaw 15 minutes before serving. Delicious!

*Fudge sauce:

1 cup chocolate chips
½ cup butter
2 cups confectioners' sugar
1 large can evaporated milk

Mix together all ingredients and cook until thick. Remove from heat and add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cool before adding to dessert.

My husband, Mike, and I have two boys, Mitchell, 4, and Oliver, 3. As a family, we enjoy camping, farming, and attending Mellinger's Mennonite Church.

Mike and I are currently milking 80 cows and farming 200 acres in partnership with Ken and Bev Denlinger at Log House Farm.

Our boys love to drive their play tractors, ride the "real" tractors, and talk about farming. They've already learned a great way of life! I enjoy growing flowers to sell and caring for my own perennial beds.

Ice cream is a staple at our house so this recipe is a refreshing variation on a traditional theme for us.

DAIRY DELICIOUS DIP

8-ounces cream cheese, softened
½ cup marshmallow cream, additionally cream can be added for a firmer dip.
1 teaspoon lemon juice

In a mixing bowl, combine cream cheese, marshmallow cream, and lemon juice; beat until smooth. may add Chill. Serve with fresh fruit. Kids enjoy dunking fruit into this dip.

Erin, Lauren, and Matthew Williams live on a 135-acre dairy farm in Swatara Township, Lebanon County.

They enjoy this dip served during holidays, birthday parties, and sleep overs. Their dad David operates the dairy farm with with a milking herd of approximately 60 Holstein cows, which are milked three tiems a day and rotationally grazed. Christine, their mom, typically teaches agriculture science courses but took an educational sabbatical this past semester to advance her education.

She also had the opportunity to accompany Lauren, Lebanon County's Li'l Dairy Miss on several promotions. Mom also cares for the calves and occasionally milks the "late" sift.

We held off this announcement until the appropriate moment.

But, now it's time.

Lights off, curtain up as we premier the summer's newest, ready-to-roll, potential blockbuster movie hit. Of course, in keeping with the times, it's an epic, chock-full-of-adventure, special-effects, computer-enhanced production. Featuring a monster.

No. None of those giant stegasauruses or fake lizards or overgrown gorillas. Hey, that stuff's all been done

No. We're talking mooooonster movies This one is entitled "Udder Revenge " Join us for the premier.

During June Dairy Month. But, of course.

In keeping with the trend of the latest box office hits, its edge-of-your-seat action will include a giant luxury vessel which sinks after smacking to an iceberg on a large farm pond, romantic interest between a trainer who whispers to cows and a Washington intern (oops, sorry, we crossed over into real life there) and, of course our hero.

Er, heroine. None other than Big Bossy, leader of the Bovine Bullheads, the head boss-cow in a herd of clone replicas of a petri-dish-bred cross between an 1,800-pound Holstein and DNA dug up in Utah from bone residual of a brontosaurus.

Big Bossy weighs 15 tons, comes outfitted in striking black and white genuine, pure-organic cowhide, boasts a tiny head outfitted with a set of horns that would stir envy in a prized Texas Longhorn and has a rather hefty tail. Which, like most bovines, manages to be wet and sloppy at the most opportune times

And, yes, Big Bossy grazes. anywhere she wants.

Since no summer box-office-hit would be complete without an appropriate villain (boos and hisses, please), we have one. It's an arrogant, whiny, self-proclaimed band of "food police," whose main mission in life is to degrade the output of Bossy and her Bullhead buddies.

Bossy first hears the lambasting of the "experts" on the radio of the Big Barn (of course Big Bovines need a Big Barn, for goodness' sake). And, like all blockbuster mover superheros, Bossy is blessed with supernatural powers which enable her to understand the udderly foolish claims she overhears on an early-morning radio call-in-and-gripe-with-the-experts talk show.

Having yielded up her morning output of 500 gallons that pre-dawn milking, while chowing down some two tons of TMR (Total Mixed Ration feed blend) and chawing away at her massive cud, Big Bossy gets so udderly riled up by the "experts" claims that she slips her logchain tie to embark on a mission.

Once escaped, the normally docile Big Bossy pokes out the oversized Big Barn doors with the mere sweep of a horn and a blood curdling bellow that shatters all the glass in the housing developments within two miles of ground zero of her distress. The pastured Bullheads rally to her call, busting a bunch of fences.

Bossy and the Bullheads, always on the lookout to to on the lam, create utter havoc and destruction as they stampede off in search of righting wrong information.

In their wake, sections of several rural villages are pillaged by maurauding giant hooves and whole fields of hay wiped out as the bovines – being bovines – pause occasionally to see if the grass is really greener on the other side of the county.

Before the end credits roll on this potential Emmy winner, whole broadcast media centers have been hoof-trimmed, a feed mill or two overturned as the herd snitches giant bites of feed supplement and our whisperer takes off to attempt to and corral the escapees with a helicopter to whisper from with a bullhorn (logically) and several very sturdy, very long, sections of baler twine to temporarily patch miles of fences laid waste.

Just where do sinking luxury vessels and Washington interns fit into this devious, destructive and udderly daring plot?

C'mon you don't want us to spoil the story do you? But, trust us, it has the potential to set new box-office records. Show up at the premier wearing your milk mustache, and we'll give you a reduced ticket rate.

So please turn down the lights. And pass the popcorn.

"Now, one upon a time in a Big Barn..."

Dairy Farmer's 'got milk?' Campaign Optimized In Local Markets

SYRACUSE, NY–Choosing the most effective execution of the "got milk?" campaign for local markets areas, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC), will run outdoor billboards from May 1 through September, when roadways are filled with summer travelers, in key spots throughout New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

Consumers will be reminded to "get milk" in such heavily traveled areas as:

Metro New York
- Cross Bronx Expressway
- Bronx Queens Expressway (BQE)
- Harlem River Drive

Upstate New York
- Interstates 81 and 690 in Syracuse
- Interstate 81 in Watertown
- Interstate 481 in Fulton

New Jersey
- New Jersey Turnpike, near Newark International Airport
- Route 3, near the Meadowlands
- Interstate 78, near exit 14
- US Highway 9, in Old Bridge

Pennsylvania
- Interstate 81, near Dickson City
- Scranton Expressway, North of 7th Street
- Routes 6 and 11 Clarks Summit

To make a stronger impact in highly populated cities, ADADC will run billboards on city buses in Rochester, Manhattan, and Nassau and Suffolk countries on Long Island Customizing the dairy farmer's "got milk?" campaign for residents of New York City. ADADC has also created billboards in Spanish. They also will run throughout the five boroughs.

Every day, the nation's 9.3 million dairy cows produce more than 50 million gallons of milk. June is the month when we take time to celebrate the amazing variety of delicious dairy products produced from milk each year. Enjoy some of your favorite refreshing products during these hot summer days or tickle your taste buds with an exciting new treat like Beach Berry Blast at the end of this article.

Dairy products are our most concentrated food sources of calcium, a mineral that helps build and maintain strong bones and teeth. About 98% of all calcium in the body is located in the bones. Calcium also helps muscles contract and relax, the heart to beat, blood to clot, and helps nerves send messages. If you do not supply your body with enough calcium to perform all these tasks your body takes it from the bones. It is sort of like having a calcium savings account. When your body takes in enough calcium, it makes a deposit in your bones. When there is not enough, it makes a withdrawal. One of the biggest penalties for withdrawal is a disease called osteoporosis.

Osteoporosis affects 25 million people, most are women. The costs go well beyond the $13 billion annually These individuals suffer from fractures and spinal compression which reduce both the quality and length of life. Bone loss occurs with aging, but can be minimized through a proactive lifestyle which includes adequate calcium, vitamin D, and exercise.

Most age groups do not get enough calcium. The National Institute of Health has identified Dietary Reference Intakes (DRI's) as optimal amounts of daily calcium intake to maximize peak adult bone mass, maintain adult bone and minimize bone loss in later years. Children ages 9-19 need 1300 mg./per day or the equivalent of 4-4 1/3 glasses of milk. Adults 19-50 need 1000 mg /day or the equivalent of 2 2/3 - 3 1/3 glasses of milk. Adults 50+ need 1200 mg./day or the equivalent of 2 2/3 to 4 glasses of milk.

One cup of milk contains about 300 milligrams of calcium, one cup of yogurt contains about 400 milligrams. Food sources of calcium tend to supply other nutrients, such as phosphorus, vitamin D, and lactose which help the body use calcium.

There are several calcium alternatives to milk if you do not like milk or are lactose intolerant. Cheese is a concentrated source of calcium, one ounce of cheddar contains about 200 mg. calcium Yogurt is another good source. Many orange juices are fortified with calcium. Read the label for information. Tofu that has been processed with calcium sulfate and canned fish such as salmon are also good sources if you mash and eat the bones. Dark green leafy vegetables and fortified cereals are other sources.

For those unable to get enough calcium from the diet, supplements are another alternative. Supplements containing calcium carbonate are often recommended because they provide the most calcium per tablet. Calcium citrate tablets are easier for individuals with low stomach acidity to tolerate.

With a little planning, it is easy to get all the calcium you need each day Combine fresh picked berries and dairy products to make one of these delightful dairy treats:

Double Berry Smoothie
1 cup sliced strawberries
1 container strawberry yogurt
1 cup ice cubes
1 cup milk
1/4 nonfat dry milk
2 tablespoons sugar
Blend all ingredients in the blender until smooth Serve at once. Yield - 3 servings.

Beach Berry Blast
2 containers mixed berry yogurt
3 cups milk
2 cups sliced strawberries
1 1/2 pints strawberry ice cream
1 1/2 cups chilled raspberry seltzer
1/2 cup blueberries
Process yogurt, milk, and strawberries in blender. Pour into four 8 oz. glasses. Scoop ice cream into glasses and top off with seltzer. Add blueberries and serve. Yield - 4 servings.

ASPARAGUS STRATA

12 slices white bread
12 ounces sharp process cheese, diced
1½ pounds fresh asparagus, trimmed
2 cups diced cooked ham
6 eggs
3 cups milk
2 tablespoons minced onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard

Using a doughnut cutter, cut 12 circles and holes from bread; set aside. Tear remaining bread in pieces and place in a greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Layer cheese, asparagus and ham over torn bread; arrange bread circles and holes on top. Lightly beat eggs with milk. Add onion, salt, and mustard; mix well. Pour egg mixture over bread circles and holes. Cover and refrigerate at least six hours or overnight. Bake, uncovered, at 325 degrees for 55 minutes or until top is light golden brown. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Yield: 6-8 servings.

Our family consists of my husband Roy, myself, and three children, Renae, 16; Ryan, 14; and Reuban, 11. We are dairy farmers working with another family. We milk approximately 125 cows in a milking parlor. The boys are kept busy on the farm doing field work and barn chores, etc. The jobs seem endless at times. Roy does field work and also milking, and whatever else needs done.

Renae and I go to market and I have a couple other part-time jobs as well. We have a large garden that we all help with. By the time this gets published, the children will be out of school. We are looking for a great summer together as a family. I enjoy gardening, sewing, cooking, baking, and outside work. I enjoy looking through the recipes in the Lancaster Farming, especially during the month of June and trying the recipes I think our family would enjoy. Have a blessed summer.

Gerald and Lorene Nolt with their three children milk cows on their farm in Peach Bottom.

MASHED POTATO CASSEROLE

12 medium potatoes
8-ounces cream cheese
1 cup sour cream
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup milk
Garlic salt
¼ cup chopped chives
½ teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon butter

Cook potatoes, mash, add cream cheese, sour cream, salt, pepper, milk, and garlic. Beat at high, stir in chives. Spoon into casserole dish. Sprinkle with paprika and dot with butter. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

My husband Gerald and I have three children, Richard, Gregory, and Emily. We live on a dairy farm and milk about 70 cows. The children have lots of place to play and also learn responsibility since they have assigned chores. This recipe is a favorite of ours. Enjoy!

CREAM CHEESE CHOCOLATE BARS

Bottom:
½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 cup flour

Mix and beat well. Pour winto greased 9-inch by 13-inch pan.

Middle:
½ cup butter
6 ounces cream cheese
½ cup sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix and pour over bottom layer. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes. Spread 3 cups marshmallows over top. Bake 2 more minutes. Cool.

Icing:
½ cup butter
2 ounces cream cheese
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate, melted
2 tablespoons milk

Mix, then add 3-3½ cups of confectioners' sugar. Beat well and add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Spread over cooled bars.

My husband, Frank, and I moved on the home dairy farm last August. Frank's dad and brother help with our chores and fieldwork. We milk 80 cows. We have two daughters. Kristen will be two in July and Jenica is five months old. They keep me busy in the house. It's so nice to live on a farm where family can work and play together!

FROZEN FLUFFY STRAWBERRY PIE

2½ cups flaked coconut, toasted
⅓ cup butter, melted
3-ounce package cream cheese, softened
14-ounce can sweetened condensed (not evaporated) milk
2½ cups fresh or frozen unsweetened strawberries, thawed, mashed, or pureed (about 1½ cups)
3 tablespoons lemon juice from concentrate
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
Additional fresh strawberries, optional

Combine coconut and butter; press firmly on bottom and up to rim of 9-inch pie plate. In large mixer bowl, beat cream cheese until fluffy; gradually beat in sweetened condensed milk. Stir in pureed strawberries and lemon juice. Fold in whipped cream. Pour into prepared crust (mixture should mound slightly). Freeze 4 hours or until firm. Before serving, garnish with fresh strawberries if desired. Return leftovers to freezer. A graham cracker crust can also be used.

This is a good recipe because it uses both strawberris (which are in season) and dairy products.

I look forward to the contest each year because of the good recipes the readers send in. I love collecting anything with cows on it. My collection includes a lot of the Mary Moo Moos figurines.

FRUIT PIZZA

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup Butter-Flavored Crisco
3 eggs
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
4 cups flour
Dash of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix and spread into three pizza pans. Can be frozen for future use. Bake at 350 degrees for about 20 minutes or until done. Do not overbake.

Blend eight ounces cream cheese with 4½ ounces whipped cream topping. Spread on cooled pizza and top with fruits, grapes, bananas, peaches, pineapples, blueberries, or whatever fruit desired. Put glaze on top.

Glaze:
½ cup sugar
¼ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ cup pineapple juice
¼ cup water, mixed with ½ tablespoon gelatin

Heat until thickened, cool, and put on top of pizza. Note: the cream cheese and glaze mixtures are for only one pizza.

SUMMER ASPARAGUS ROLL-UP WITH HERB CHEESE AND SUN-DRIED TOMATOES

1-2 red peppers, roasted*
4-6 tablespoons herb cheese spread, room temperature
4 sun-dried tomatoes, soaked in boiling water for 10 minutes, drained and finely chopped
8-10 8-inch flour tortillas

Trim asparagus tips to 4-5 inch lengths, reserving remainder of stalk for later. In boiling salted water, cook asparagus until tender, 4-7 minutes. Rinse under cold water. Cut peppers into ½ -inch wide strips. Rinse and dry asparagus tips and pepper strips thoroughly.

Mix herb cheese spread and sun-dried tomatoes together. Spread each tortilla with approximately 1 tablespoon herb cheese spread.

Cut tortillas into strips 1 to 1½ -inches wide.

Place one asparagus tip and one pepper strip together at one end of a tortilla strip and tightly roll-up in spiral fashion. Repeat with remaining asparagus and peppers.

Refrigerate covered until serving time. May be prepared up to one day head.

*To roast peppers, place under broiler or over grill until skin is blackened on all sides. Place in paper bag and close tightly to let steam for about 10 minutes. Remove peppers from bag when cool enough to handle. Peel, split lengthwise and remove seeds, core, and trim. Do not rinse under water.

Substitute 4 ounces blue cheese and 2 ounces cream cheese for herbed cheese and mash with fork at room temperature and contiue with directions.

Red Beet Jelly

2 cups boiled beet juice
4 cups sugar
1 package Sure-Jell
3-ounce package rasberry Jell-O

Boil beet juice and Sure-Jel. As it comes to full boil, add sugar and Jell-O. Boil seven minutes and pour into jars.

ANSWER — Fae Koppenhaven, Hegins, wanted a recipe for baking cake in canning jars. Here are a few from Carol Hoffman, Middleburg, and others.

Pumpkin Cake In A Jar

⅔ cup shortening
2⅔ cups sugar
4 eggs, beaten
2 cups pumpkin
⅔ cup water
3⅓ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Grease or spray 7 wide-mouth pint jars. Cream shortening with sugar; add eggs and mix well. Stir in pumpkin and water. Mix remaining ingredients together, then add to pumpkin mixture, stirring well. Divide evenly into jars. Place jars on cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until a pick inserted comes out clean. Put jar lids in very hot water for 10 minutes before putting on jars. Remove jars from oven one at a time and wipe the edge; immediately put on lid and ring and tighten firmly.

Brownies In A Jar

1 cup flour
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon baking soda
⅓ cup butter
3 tablespoons cocoa powder
¼ cup water
¼ cup buttermilk
1 egg, beaten
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup finely chopped nuts (optional)

Grease or spray 2 wide-mouth pint jars. In a small bowl, stir together flour, sugar, and baking soda; set aside. In a saucepan, combine butter, cocoa, and water. Heat and stir until butter is melted and mixture is well blended. Remove from heat; stir in flour mixture. Add buttermilk, egg, and vanilla, beating by hand until smooth. Stir in nuts. Divide evenly into jars. Place jars on cookie sheet and bake at 325 degrees in preheated oven for 35-40 minutes or until a pick inserted comes out clean. Put jar lids in very hot water for 10 minutes before putting on jars. Remove jars from oven one at a time and wipe the edge; immediately put on lid and ring, and tighten firmly.

ANSWER — Laura Smith, York, wanted a recipe for baked carrots. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for sending a recipe.

Company Carrots

2 pounds baby carrots, quartered
¼ cup water
¼ cup butter
1 teaspoon dried oregano
½ teaspoon salt

Place the carrots in an ungreased 9-inch square baking dish. Add water, dot with butter. Sprinkle with oregano and salt. Cover and bake at 325 degrees for 1 to 1¼ hours or until tender.

Yield: 8-10 servings.

Thanks to Alverna Martin for sending this one.

Creamy Carrot Casserole

4 cups sliced carrots
⅔ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish (optional)
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt
14 saltine crackers, crushed
1 tablespoon butter, melted
1 tablespoon parsley (optional)
½ cup shredded cheese

Cook carrots until tender. Mix mayonnaise, onions, salt, and pepper. Add to carrots. Mix butter with crackers and parsley. Sprinkle over carrots. Top with cheese. Bake until thoroughly heated.

ANSWER — Richard Kophazy wanted a recipe for pot pie beef soup, made with homemade dough to which soup is added. Thanks to Alverna Martin for sending a recipe.

Old-Fashioned Beef Pot Pie

Cook together until beef is tender:
2 pounds stew beef
6 cups water
1½ teaspoon salt

Remove meat from broth and add to broth:
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon minced parsley

Bring to a boil and add alternate layers of the following:
4 cups cubed potatoes and carrots (or any other raw vegetables)

Pot pie dough:
1 egg
3 tablespoons milk or water
1½ cups flour

Beat egg. Add milk. Add flour to make stiff dough. Roll out paper thin and cut into 1-inch squares or bigger. Keep broth boiling while adding squares to keep them from packing together. Cover and cook 20 minutes, adding more water if necessary. Add meat and stir through pot pie.

Serves 6-8.

CROCK POT POTATOES

5½ pounds potatoes, cooked, peeled, and grated
2 cans cheddar cheese soup
3 cups sour cream
1 cup chopped onion
Salt and pepper

Combine above ingredients and place in a 4-quart crock pot. Cook the potatoes on high until hot and bubbly (approximately 5 hours).

This delicious potato recipe came from my mother-in-law and is a crowd pleaser at potlucks.

My husband Vernon and I, along with our 18-month-old daughter Malinda live on a dairy farm in Manheim. We enjoy the opportunity to live and work on a farm. Malinda enjoys helping her daddy feed the calves.

ITALIAN RICOTTA COOKIES

½ pound butter
2 cups sugar
3 eggs
4 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
15-ounces ricotta cheese

Melt and cool butter. Add sugar and eggs, mix well. Sift together dry ingredients and add to the butter mixture. Beat well and stir in the ricotta. Drop by teaspoon onto an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Cool on rack, Frost with your favorite homemade or ready-made white frosting. Dip in coconut or colored sprinkles for a more festive look at seasonal holidays.

This is a good recipe for youngsters to help with. These cookies freeze well when stacked with waxed paper between the layers.

ANSWER — Karen Moyer, Portage, wanted a recipe for cherry pie filling made in a jar. She asks if frozen cherries could be used instead of fresh. Thanks to Alverna Martin for sending a recipe.

Cherry Pie Filling

6 quarts fruit, pitted
4 cups sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
10 cups water
1 cup Clear Jel
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Mix together 5 cups water with Clear Jel. Add remaining ingredients except fruit. Boil until thick. Add fruit. Fill jars not quite full. Process in canner 20 minutes. Any kind of fruit, fresh or frozen, may be used.

ANSWER — A reader wanted recipes for soft Dutch hand-rolled pretzels, for bagels, and for the brezel. Here is one for soft pretzels.

Soft Pretzels

2 tablespoons yeast
2¼ cups warm water
½ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
7 cups flour

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add sugar and salt. Beat in flour to make a stiff dough. Knead 5 minutes. Set aside 5 minutes. Divide into 4 balls. Divide each ball into six parts. Roll each with hands until it forms a 12-14-inch rope and form like a pretzel. Put onto cookie sheets.

Bring 2 quarts water and 3 tablespoons baking soda to a boil. Dip each pretzel in 4-15 seconds. Lay on a cloth. Sprinkle with pretzel salt and place onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 400 degrees for 8-10 minutes. Dip into melted butter. Makes 24 big pretzels.

ANSWER — E. Beaver, Ringtown, wanted recipes to cook red beets and its leaves. Thanks to Alverna Martin who writes that red beet leaves can be used raw in salads when you thin beets. Also the leaves can be steamed. Red beets can be boiled whole until soft. Cool in cold water. Peel. Cube, Brown a bit of butter, if desired. Pour cubed beets into the butter. heat if needed. Sprinkle with salt and serve.

ANSWER — Richard Kophazy wanted a recipe for cinnamon flop cake. Thanks to Rhoda Martin, Myerstown; Margaret Kaltreider, Brodbecks; and others for sending recipes.

Cinnamon Flop

Cream together:
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon butter
Add:
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups flour

Add 3 tablespoons creamed sugar, and cinnamon on top.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes two 9-inch cakes.

Rhoda writes that this is an old recipe from her mother's collection. Her family likes to eat it while it is still warm.

Cinnamon Flop

1 cup sugar
1 cup milk
2 eggs
2 tablespoons butter
3 cups flour
Pinch salt
2 heaping teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter, sugar, and eggs well. Add vanilla, milk, and flour mixed with baking powder, alternately. Mix well and put in greased and floured 8- or 9-inch round or square pan.

Sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon and dot with butter. Bake at 350 degrees until tested with a toothpick.

May be served warm or cold, Margaret said the family likes it both ways. Her mom always made this when some friends came to fish, as they lived close to a creek, and enjoyed it very much. This was in the early 1930s.

Cookie Monster Asks, 'got milk?'

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio's dairy farmers have enlisted the help of a famous blue shaggy friend to ask Cleveland's kids and adults if they've "got milk?"

Surrounded by mounds of cookies and no milk, a giant heartbroken Cookie Monster, of the Children's Television Workshop, appears larger than life in downtown Cleveland. The 60 feet high x 80 feet wide billboard is displayed on the side of The Finance Building at the fork of Huron Road and Prospect Avenue, on the corner of East 9th St. Sponsored by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East, the Cookie Monster billboard is part of the farmer-funded "got milk" fluid milk advertising campaign for 1998 and will be visible through December of 1998.

Cookie Monster is recognized and loved by both kids and adults, and debuted last year as the first celebrity to ask the infamous question "got milk?" The advertising campaign reminds consumers that they should never be caught without milk.

ADADC Mid East is the farmer-funded organization that implements advertising, marketing, promotion and nutrition education on behalf of dairy farmers in Ohio, West Virginia and western and north-central Pennsylvania.

Lancaster County Dairy Princess Elizabeth Smith explains the role of a dairy princess to Price Elementary students.

Cookie Monster asks Cleveland "got milk?" Sponsored by the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East, the 60' high x 80' wide billboard can be seen on the side of The Finance Building in downtown Cleveland.

Milk Thing Visits School

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co) – A school-wide picnic and a visit from the loveable, 7-foot tall "That Milk Thing" was the incentive for a 20 percent increase in school breakfast participation at Price Elementary school in Lancaster Students, faculty, and cafeteria staff at Price worked together to improve milk's image and increase breakfast participation while enrolled in the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA)'s School Milk Quality Assurance Program, designed to improve milk quality and milk's image in Mid-Atlantic Schools

In exchange for low-cost cooler equipment improvements provided by MAMMA, Price elementary, along with 27 other schools in the Mid-Atlantic area, coordinated five monthly milk promotions From the 28 participating schools, MAMMA evaluated increased milk sales and overall promotional effort by each school to select five winning schools These schools won a free appearance from "That Milk Thing" at their school In addition to Price Elementary, the winning schools were Chews Elementary in Glouchester Township, NJ, and Brookfield, Walt Whitman, and Herndon, all from Fairfax County, VA.

Cafeteria Manager Joan Buckius coordinated School Milk Quality Assurance Program promotions at Price and worked hard to get everyone involved. By constructing life-sized cows, sporting milk mustaches, preparing milk essays, and decorating cafeterias, students, teachers, and cafeteria staff all worked together to win "That Milk Thing's" visit In addition to the appearance, Price Elementary was awarded a chicken barbecue sponsored by Lancaster City School Food Services Turkey Hill Dairy donated nine gallons of ice cream for an ice cream sundae bar sponsored by MAMMA

Other schools hosted similar promotions to Price Elementary's festivities Black and white days, milk poster contests, and dancing cows lining cafeteria walls were some promotions that other schools hosted during the 5-month test pilot

While 50 percent of the schools showed significant increases in school milk sales from the first week to the last week of the program, the average increase for all participating schools was nine percent Preliminary interviews with the

Principal Puckers For Promised Bovine Buss

BALLY (Berks Co) – Deacon Thomas Murphy, principal of St Francis Academy, bally, kissed a cow recently to hold up his end of a deal he made with the school's students back in September. If the students read 1,998 books, he promised to smooch with a bovine.

They read over 2,800 books. So, he bussed with the bovine and then some

As a prelude to the smooch, he and the students serenaded the cow, a Holstein named "Metric". They sang 'Cow Carols' written by Murphy's boss, Msgr Edward Coyle. Murphy and Metric exchanged gifts. She gave him breath mints and he gave her a delicious bouquet of clover and buttercups.

And when the students cheered for more, he obliged with a few quick pecks on the cheek.

Prior to the big kiss, Pat Haas, Murphy's secretary and farm wife, amazed the students with some of Metric's numbers she produces about 180 half pints of milk daily and 40,000 in a year; she weighs about 1,200 pounds and drinks about 55 gallons of water daily.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Our boat was in our front yard for a few days before we found time to go to our small camper in Snyder County. We usually go during the week rather than the weekends.

I expected a few mouse droppings but I was not prepared for what we found. During the winter a rodent apparently lived in comfort. After eating the soap it brought a lot of nuts inside in stored them in a drawer with flannel pajamas. And, not satisfied with chewing holes in clothes, it also chewed through a comfort, a blanket, and a sheet to put one acorn under a pillow on the bed. Actually, I guess I am lucky that none of the three feather pillows were chewed open.

We fished in the morning and we fished in the evening. I caught 24 small fish and Allen caught almost as many. Three times I pulled my line in and found two fish—one on each hook. Allen got a big bass but they were not in season and so it had to be returned to the lake.

The next day when we returned home, we were glad that we only kept 20 of the fish as it took us a while to clean them. A fisherman even gave us a few he didn't want them. The wind was blowing and the water was quite choppy.

Now that we are home the strawberries must be picked and the asparagus that has grown too tall. No longer do I sell sugar peas and berries as I did years ago. Therefore, no longer do I get to see some of my neighbors who live in the nearby development. Most of them do not have gardens but rather buy from a supermarket. Someday I may have to do the same—but not yet.

cafeteria managers show the program was well received. The equipment upgrades proved to be very helpful in keeping milk colder, while the milk promotions made students more aware of the milk in their cafeterias

MAMMA sponsored the School Milk Quality Assurance Program test pilot to improve milk quality in schools, which in turn will increase milk consumption among children. Both the School Milk Quality Assurance Program and "That Milk Thing" are designed to encourage MAMMA's target audience, kids ages 6 to 11, to drink more milk MAMMA is a non-profit milk promotion and advertising association funded by dairy farmers in Maryland, Delaware, southern Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey, and the northern tip of Virginia

To hold a successful annual 4-H Strawberry Roundup sponsored by the Rotary Club of Lancaster requires a lot of people working together. From left, Heather Fletcher and her mom stand in for second-place winner Chris Fletcher who was on a school trip; Harold Keller, auctioneer and Rotary member; Linford Hershey holding the champion strawberries purchased for $300 by Rotary member John K. Herr III; Loren Hershey, Mrs. Hershey, Lisa Hershey, and Dr. Tim Elkner, horticulture extension agent.

$300 Is 'Berry' Good Profit For Two Quarts

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Strawberries taste extra sweet this year. The berries also carried an extra hefty price at the annual 4-H Strawberry Roundup held at the Farm and Home Center last week.

Rotarian John K. Herr III of Serta Mattress Company handed $300 to Loren Hershey of Kirkwood for 2-quarts of berries.

"I bid ever year but this was the first time, I bought the grand champion berries," Herr said. "It's fun to encourage 4-H'ers," he said of lessons learned in entrepreneurship.

Twelve-year-old Loren was out in the strawberry patch at 5:30 that morning in anticipation of the berry auction. He took care to pick perfectly ripe berries. "You can tell by their redness when they should be picked," Loren said. "If they are too red, the berries are overripe, and if they have some white on them, they are not ripe."

After picking 14 quarts from 75 Earli-glow plants on the berry patch he shares with his brother and sister, Loren carefully laid each berry on the table. He examined each one to make sure the berries showed no bug bites. Each berry needed to be uniform in size and color to pass the judges scrunity. John Yokum and Dr. Tim Elner judged the event.

Elkner, horticulture specialist for Lancaster County Penn State Extension, said this year's event had 21 entries, the highest number of entries ever at the annual competition.

After paying $300 for the berries, Herr was left with the dilemna of deciding whether to share them with co-workers or take them home to his wife. Either way, the berries would be eaten one at a time, without sugar, cream or other toppings, which would tamper with the taste.

"I'm health conscious and prefer to eat them plain," Herr said.

Herr was especially pleased to hear the berries were raised organically without any spray.

"I pick the slugs off by hand," Loren said of an almost daily chore.

All entries were auctioned off to garner a total of $1,575. Contestants pocket the money, some to be used to plant more plants and cover other expenses, some to save for college, and, "to help me buy my cab tractor," said Loren's brother 10-year-old Linford. Linford received $65 for his berries that placed third.

The brothers enjoy farming with parents Les and Lois Hershey. Loren gets up at 5:30 every morning to feed his 4-H steer, five pigs, and five sheep before catching a 6:15 a.m. school bus to attend Dayspring Christian Academy where he is in sixth grade.

A sister Lisa, 8, planted berries this year, but needs to wait until the plants mature to pick berries for next years competition.

To encourage persistance in 4-H members for the project that takes two years of weeding, watering, and maintenance before seeing any monetary gain, Rotarians give a cash award to first year students who complete a record book. Record books detail expenses, labor, and a story about experiences. Traditionally two quarts of berries of second-year members are auctioned to the highest bidder. The remainder, members sell or eat.

Reserve champion Chris Fletcher's berries sold for $200 to Rotarian William Heyn. Chris was on a school trip and was unable to experience the thrill of picking up the cash prize, but his sister Heather was happy to collect the prize and money.

"These are the world's greated strawberry growers with their trunks ready to take back a lot of cash," said the president of the Lancaster County Club Rotary.

Leaders and parents volunteer much of their time to make a child's participation successful.

Participants included the following: $50 for Jimmy Mullen, Peach Bottom; $65 for Heather Fletcher, Mountville; $80 for Jennifer Henson; $65 for Lee Ressler, for Lorelle Ressler, and for Lynn Ressler, all of Peach Bottom; $40 for Sarah Sauders of Nottingham; $50 for Kenton Bucher, Mastersonville; $40 for Josh Keener, Mt. Joy; $45 for Jonathan Keener, Mt. Joy; $45 for Rochelle and Laura Newcomer, Mt. Joy; $55 for Andy Hoover of Lancaster; $45 for Jessica Falk, Mt. Joy; $55 for Meliss Brower, Quarryville; $35 for Josh Keefer, Marietta; $75 of Janie Leaman, Lancaster; $100 for Paul Martin, Manheim; and $35 for Garrett Martin, Manheim.

An estatic Linford Hershey sells his grand champion berries to John K. Herr III for $300.

LeRaysville Cheese Factory: An Award-Winning Enterprise On a Back Country Road

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

LERAYSVILLE (Bradford Co.) — As you roam the back roads of Pennsylvania, the last thing you might expect to find is a world class cheese manufacturer.

But if you follow the bright yellow and white signs to the northeastern part of Bradford County, up a dirt road, you'll see a small white building, not much larger than a small house, which is the LeRaysville Cheese Factory.

Founded as a farmer cooperative, the LeRaysville Cheese Factory got its start when the local milk processing plants stopped accepting milk in cans.

"It was built in 1976 by the Amish community," said Jim Amory, owner of the plant. "There was no other market for the canned milk."

The factory was built much like the old creameries. A dumping station and weigh scale still stands in one corner of the plant, right next to an oversized dishwasher made especially for the heavy milk cans.

"It took one year to build the place," Amory noted. "It was done with all volunteer labor."

At first the only product that was made — at what was then called the Pleasant Valley Cheese House — was a raw milk cheddar with a black wax coating.

The Amish workers learned their trade from the old-time cheese makers and had a lot of help from a program sponsored by the University of Wisconsin. When the University program ceased to exist, the old-timers were their main source of information.

The plant also operated for the first five years with no electricity, no phone, and with an old boiler as the only source of heat.

"All the agitating was done by hand," noted Amory.

Despite problems with consistency, the gourmet cheese was marketed as far away as Bloomingdale's in Manhattan.

As times changed there were a series of non-Amish managers of the Amish cooperative. Amory was the last of the string of managers.

"I started here in 1987 and changed the name to Up Country Cheese House," said Amory.

Amory, who was originally from Massachusetts, and his wife, who was raised in California's San Fernando Valley, moved into the area in the 1970s.

"I was interested in the economic development of the area," he noted. "when I started, I did research on the regulations involved in making cheese."

For the next five years, he struggled to make the cooperative work.

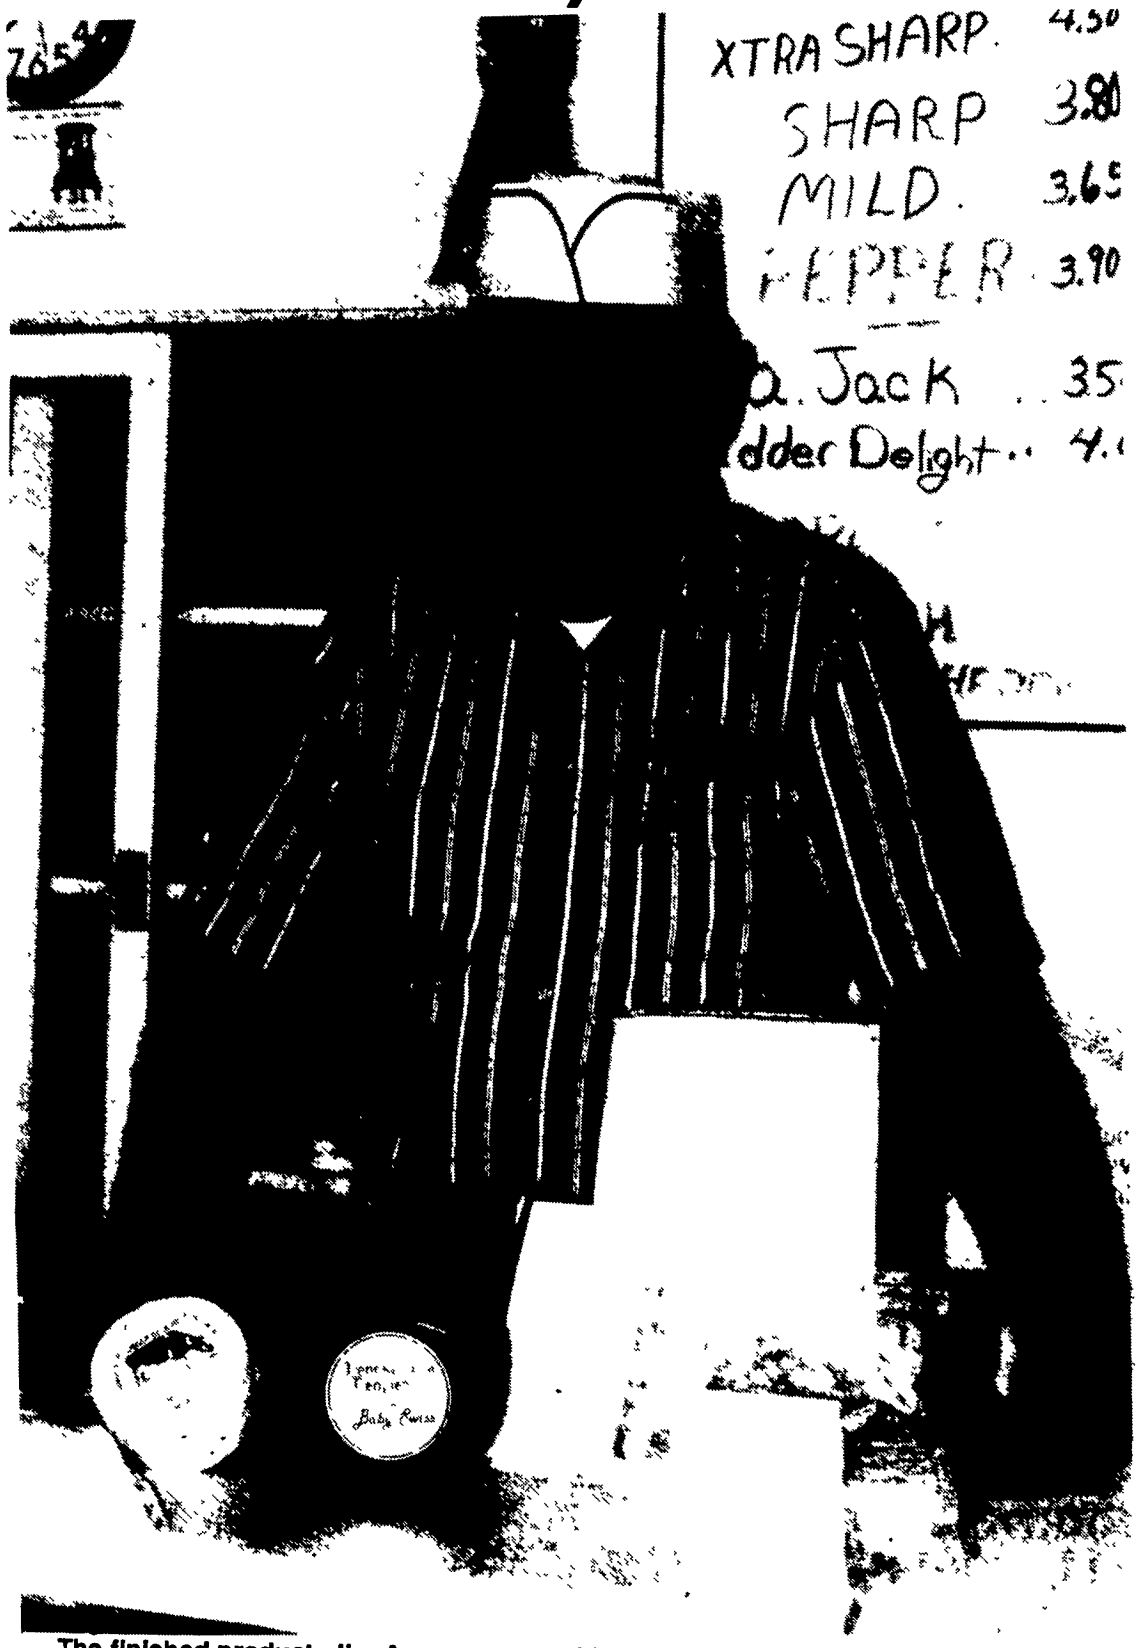
"We never had the right amount of milk. We always had too much or too little," he explained.

Another dilemma of the cheese maker is the fact that the milk supply tends to be the highest in the spring, when the demand for the cheese is the greatest in the winter.

"The milk bills were the greatest when no one buys cheese," he said.

To even out the ups and downs, Amory suggested that they start making cheeses other than cheddar, which must be aged a minimum of four months, when it's considered mild, to a year or more, when it's considered sharp.

So they started making a Jack cheese that can be ready in a month and began selling cheese curds which can be sold the same day that they're made.



The finished product: Jim Amory poses with the variety of cheeses that are sold from his store, including the award winning pepper cheddar and the Pennsylvania jack cheeses.

In spite of the changes, Amory still struggled to make the cooperative work. Finally in 1992, the cooperative was dissolved and Amory took on the responsibility of owning the plant. Two Amish workers, David Miller and Freeman Mast, currently fine-tune the cheese and handle most of the processing decisions.

Now, because there are no longer any Amish farmers shipping milk in the area, the milk comes in a steady stream from Progressive Dairy Cooperative. In effect, they are dipping into the milk stream as they need milk. What isn't used by them goes to Leprino Foods, which operates in nearby Sayre.

Now they have expanded their cheese making expertise to include other ethnic cheeses including Havarti, Portelet, and Sommelier.

They have also received national recognition for two of their cheeses. Dave Miller received first-place honors from the American Cheese Society for his pepper cheddar, and a former cheese house worker, Harvey Yoder, was awarded a second place award for his Pennsylvania jack, in 1995.

Marketing is one of Amory's biggest challenges now. He has a solid footing in several gourmet markets, local stores, a mail-order business and a small store at the front of the factory. Still, he would like to expand his sales.

"I work with the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture," said Amory. "they put a lot of effort into marketing. Getting the money and finding reliable markets is tough. It's like building a canoe while learning to paddle it — you will make mistakes."

He also garners support from multiple technical support people in the cheese making industry.

Although the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is encouraging Amory to explore overseas markets, Amory sees lots of potential right here at home.

"We're close to the market," he said. "I'm very strongly in favor of regional marketing."

This particular cheese is Havarti, a Dutch cheese which is being made by Amish workers that will eventually find its was into the Portuguese market. Here the curd is poured into the tubular molds. The weight of the curd pressing on itself will form the cheese. To finish this cheese, it will be soaked in brine.

The fact that the operation is small and locally owned is a plus when it comes to selling his product.

"The whole place is an antique," he noted. "We get some retail sales because it's an antique. People drive from Philadelphia and want to see a real product that's made with our hands."

In addition to the cheeses that are locally produced, consumers can also purchase a variety of specialty cheeses that are produced by other cheese houses, including a Swiss cheese from Penn Cheese Corporation in Winfield, Pa., and Limburger from a Wisconsin producer.

The cheese making process begins when 6,000 pounds of milk is delivered to the factory one to two times each week.

Depending on the type of cheese to be made, extra butterfat may be added, the milk might be pasteurized or it might go right into the vat to begin processing.

"The key to making cheese depends on four things; moisture, acidity, salt and butterfat. If you get those four numbers right, you can make cheese," said Amory.

First the cheese culture, or good bacteria, are added to the milk.

"We get selected strains of cultured bacteria shipped to us in dry ice. These 'direct set' cultures in a way made this factory possible," said Amory.

Next the curd is stirred just enough to keep it separated. The minute changes in acidity levels are measured by titration. At the right acidity level, rennet is added.

"Rennet allows you to make a sweet cheese," said Amory.

Then, as the milk coagulates, the proteins link together in long chains, squeezing out the moisture. In effect, the curd dries itself out while sitting in a vat full of moisture.

As the process progresses, the curd is cut and stirred to accelerate the drying process. Then the whey is drained off and hot water is pumped in to, in effect, wash the curd.

"We raise the temperature of the curd. The temperature of the wash water changes the moisture in the cheese," said Amory.

When the curd is ready, it is placed in molds or pressed together to form a cheese.

"When the curd is shaped, it is called a cheese," said Amory.

Today there are a number of Pennsylvania farmers interested in cheese making, and to that Amory says hooray!

"Pennsylvania has the land and the cows to make all kinds of specialty cheeses," he said. "There are lots of ethnic markets with a whole class of cheeses that go with them that are now being made in Wisconsin. They should be made in Pennsylvania."

What's missing in Pennsylvania right now, says Amory, is the expertise and the experience.

"You can get a recipe and find out it won't work with your milk because of variations in protein and butterfat. The change in butterfat over the course of the year can really make a difference in your cheese. The old time cheese makers knew how to adjust for that."

Several old-timers have aided Amory's efforts including Eldore Hanni, who got his start making cheese at the age of 11 in Switzerland. Eighty-five year old Chris Hansen from upper New York State also helped form the new factory.

Today, with about 10 years of experience, Amory admits that they can't compete on a wholesale level.

"There's always a question of what can you pay for milk and what can you pay for wages and can you make a profit," he said. "Sometimes I think the plant should be smaller."

His future is wrapped up in one key market, that of speciality cheeses.

"The right way for us is to be in a race to learn enough to make specialty cheeses before we go broke," he said.

Cut Flower Course

HOLIDAYSBURG (Blair Co.) – Penn State Cooperative Extension has announced a two-day "cut flower short course to be held July 28-29, at the Ag Progress Days site in Rock Springs.

Cut flower production and marketing are fast becoming more than just a small farm alternative As growers rapidly explore diversification and alternative cropping systems, cut flowers increasingly appear as a viable, profitable crop

This program will cover all aspects of cut flower production from producing plugs for transplant, to field production and marketing

A major feature of this program is the combination of classroom instruction with the cut flower weed and cultivar field trials

Preregistration is required The cost of the program is $85 per person and includes all program materials, morning coffee and pastry, lunch both days, and dinner on July 28

Registration is limited, so call soon For registration forms or information, please call Steve Bogash, commercial horticulture agent at 814-693-3265

Farm Teen Plows Through State Competition On To Nationals

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — Helping his dad fix tractors, cars, and machinery on the farm plowed the way for a career opportunity for Joshua Kurtz, Fleetwood.

It was on the family's dairy farm that Kurtz learned the basics of diagnosing engine problems and motor repair.

Sparked by the thrill of repairing lawn mowers and tractors, Joshua pursued vocational training at the Berks Career and Technology Center and at Lancaster Mennonite High School.

His success in regional competition qualified him to attend the Pennyslvania VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America) State Leadership Conference and Skills Competition near Pittsburgh recently.

In motorcycle technology competition, Kurtz worked against the clock diagnosing and repairing problems in various parts of a motorcycle.

He remained calm and proved he was well prepared for the competition by finishing first among state wide contestants.

In the fall, Kurtz will take advantage of the full scholarship he won to attend the Motorcycle Mechanics Institute for 11 months in Phoenix, Ariz.

But before he takes off for more training, Kurtz will compete in national competition in Kansas City. If he wins that, he will go on to international competition in Switzerland. He won the national competition last year as a junior, but was not allowed to continue to international competition reserved only for seniors.

Joshua is the son of Beth and Floyd Kurtz of Fleetwood. Joshua plans to work full time on the family farm this summer. After graduation from the Mechanics Institute he plans to return to the family farm and farm in partnership with his dad and also operate a mechanical repair shop on the farm.

In motorcycle service technology, Joshua Kurtz worked against the clock diagnosing and repairing problems in various parts of a motorcycle to place first in the state in VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America) State Leadership Conference and Skills Competition near Pittsburgh.

Offer Scholarships

EDGEWATER, Md. — The Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board has allocated $5,000 of grain check-off funds to support a scholarship program

The program will be administered by the Maryland Grain Producers Association, which will be awarding two deserving students with scholarships in the amount of $2,500 each ($1,250 for each semester) The students must be enrolled in a Maryland or an out-of-state institution

The purpose of the scholarship is to provide financial support to students interested in pursuing an agriculturally related career.

Given the dynamic changes in agriculture today, the advances in biotechnology, global positioning systems, environmental protection, crop and livestock production, Maryland's grain farmers believe it is very important to encourage students to consider careers in agriculture by enhancing their educational development through the use of scholarships.

"Agriculture is undoubtedly not the same as it was with all of the technology available today," said Breck Debnam, president of the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board.

"The agricultural community needs a strong educational foundation if we are going to be successful in the future, he said.

For an application contact, the Maryland Grain Producers Association, 53 Slama Road, Edgewater, MD 21037-1423 Requests can also be faxed to (410) 956-0161.

2 cups sour cream
2 cups sugar
2 eggs

Mix these three ingredients together. Add:

3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons vanilla

Drop by teaspoonfuls onto a lightly greased baking sheet. Bake at 350-375 degrees for about 10 minutes or until they spring back when pressed lightly on tops.

I am writing this for my fiancee Kerry Light. We will be getting married June 1999. He works as an auto mechanic at Keller Brothers, and is mainly a city boy. At least he was until he met me. I'm a country gril who grew up on my grandmother's farm, which is probably why I love animals so much. I am an animal nutritionist at F.M. Brown's Sons. We have been together for three years now, and it's been wonderful. We bought a house in Denver. It's a nice neighborhood, but it's going to take some time for me to get used to having neighbors. We're just starting to do some redecorating, but it's pretty well been established that the kitchen is going to feature Holsteins. I've already started my collection. A few additional varieties (a Breyer Hereford and Longhorn bull, Kerry's love,) watch you from the top of the cabinets). My dream is to have a small farm of my own, and I think I've infected him with it because now he talks about it too. We started our family when we adopted our baby dog, Champ. He's a Golden Retriever mix from the pound, now almost a year old, and we love him to death. Most of the time, anyway. But if he is anything like what children will be like. . . .

Pam Harrison, an animal nutritionist, is influencing her fiancee Kerry Light, a city boy, to dream about owning a farm. With them is Champ, a Golden Retriever.

I do most of the cooking, although Kerry enjoys making breakfast. Breakfast in the morning, the afternoon, the evening, it doesn't matter to him. Kerry loves to bake, though, and is well known for it. Both his coworkers and mine look forward to the time he spends making sticky buns for them. He likes to do things for others. But one of his favorite things to do is to make sour cream cookies. Most people think they are sugar cookies, and he gets very offended. He ususally makes large batches and puts icing on them all (and guess who usually gets roped into helping). The color of the icing depends on the holiday or season. I think he likes these cookies so much because they're bite size. And everyone knows how easy it is to eat something bite size. He can make a batch of these and take them to work, and usually by ten in the morning, they are gone. They are very easy to make, and you can get very creative with colors and sprinkles. Everyone loves them, including Champ.

We hope you enjoy the cookies!

HOMEMADE GRAPENUT ICE CREAM

3 eggs (use only fresh uncracked eggs)
2 cans sweetened, condensed milk
1 12-ounce can evaporated milk
1 quart half and half
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla
1¼ cup grapenuts
2 cups whole milk

Beat eggs until foamy. Beating after each addition until mixed, add sweetened condensed milk, evaporated milk, half and half, salt, and vanilla.

Pour into can with dasher in. Add grapenuts and 2 cups whole milk. Freeze according to manufacturer's directions.

This is my husband, Dick's, favorite ice cream. It is rich and very delicious.

We had a busy winter with the mild weather. When we weren't excavating, we were working on our equipment, getting ready for spring. Now that the ground has dried some, we've been very busy.

We acquired a new Jack Russell Terrier puppy in January — named, appropriately, Digger.

FLUFFY RICE AND CHICKEN

1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 soup can milk
¾ cup uncooked rice
1 can mushroom pieces
1 envelope onion soup mix
2 chicken breasts, halved or pieces

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Mix soup and milk; reserve ½ cup of this mixture. Mix remaining soup mixture, rice, mushrooms with liquid, and half the onion soup mix. Pour into a 9x13-inch ungreased baking dish. Place chicken on top. Pour reserved soup mixture over chicken and sprinkle with remaining onion soup mix. Cover with foil. Bake 1 hour. Uncover and bake 15 minutes more. Serves 4.

This is a family favorite. It is also very easy to make. The easy yet wholesome recipes are the ones I like since life is busy with our four children. We don't live on a farm but we visit our relatives in Canada who have a dairy farm. We have recently got two pygmy goats for our children. As a family we enjoy travelling, collecting stamps, and reading books.

Brochure Highlights Pennsylvania's 'White Gold'

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) – Dairying is the largest segment of Pennsylvania's agricultural economy, and the "white gold" that it produces has a significant impact on all residents of the Commonwealth.

A new brochure "Your Stake in Pennsylvania's White Gold" is now available from the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders. Highlighting the economic impact of the dairy industry to all residents, the brochure is targeted to those who make decisions at all levels. It is an excellent educational tool for agricultural spokesmen to use when addressing non-agricultural audiences such as service clubs, local and regional elected officials and regional economic development agencies.

As presented in the brochure, economic activity created by the state's largest agricultural segment is billions of dollars at the farm, processing and distribution, and retail levels. Farm level receipts for milk are over 1.5 billion dollars, and the retail value of dairy products generates over five billion dollars of economic activity. Additionally, almost 30,000 jobs in Pennsylvania are directly related to the dairy industry.

In addition to giving interesting dairy industry information, the brochure also challenges readers to become more informed about their local dairy industry and to remember and consider the economic impact to agriculture when making community and state decisions. For example, decisions affecting roads, bridges, the environment, zoning, and taxes can have profound effects on a farmer's ability to remain in business.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders is a dairy industry organization formed to facilitate the viability and expansion of the dairy industry in Pennsylvania. Organization president Philip Kimmel reminds all Pennsylvanians, "Every citizen has a stake in the dairy industry because of its huge economic impact."

A seven-minute video tape entitled "Milk: It Does an Economy Good" tells a similar story to the brochure and is also targeted to the non-agricultural audience. Both of these materials are available from the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders

Anyone interested in helping to share this important economic story may request the materials from Alan Bair, 777 West Harrisburg Pike, Middletown, PA 17057 - phone (717) 948-6732

Constant Flow

Rugged Construction
The WaterMaster from Ritchie is built for long life ...and we'll guarantee it for 10 years. With its one-piece body construction of durable impact-resistant roto-cast polyethylene plastic, the WaterMaster won't deteriorate like concrete.

Dependable, Economical Water Delivery
Sealed urethane foam insulation protects water from cold, allowing the unit to operate longer before the constant flow is turned on, creating a reduction in water waste. An optional supplemental electric heater is available. Ritchie's nonmetallic valve delivers 18 gallons of water per minute at 60 psi, with 30 years of time-tested reliability.

Easier to Maintain
WaterMaster fits over an existing stem wall and unlike concrete is lightweight and easy to install. Built-in overflow and drain eliminate troublesome standpipes. Plus, the WaterMaster is easier to clean and service than concrete. Top cover opens without tools, for ease of service. Smooth, rounded trough slopes toward a protected 3" drain for fast, easy cleaning.

Durability, easy maintenance and reliability — with less water waste. All backed by 75 years of dependable service. Guaranteed. Just ask a user, then

SPACE ICE CREAM

1 cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons sugar
Put in pint-size ziplock bag.
4 cups ice
3 tablespoons table salt
Pint bag of milk mixture
Put in gallon-size ziplock bag.

Shake bag for 5-10 minutes. Eat ice cream right out of the bag. For more variety, experiment with other flavors, add chocolate chips, cookie crumbs, crushed candy, etc.

This is a great recipe for children! We did this with a classroom of third graders and it was a hit. Since a friend shared this recipe with me this past winter, I have passed it onto family and friends. This recipe would also be fun at picnics and reunions in the summertime.

HEARTY CHEESE 'N BACON PIE

1½ cup (4 large) crumbled shredded wheat biscuits
3 tablespoons sweet cream butter, melted
6 slices crisply cooked bacon, crumbled
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese
1½ cups milk
3 eggs
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Stir together shredded wheat and butter. Press in greased 9-inch pie pan. Sprinkle with bacon and 1 cup cheese. In mixer bowl, put milk, eggs, and pepper, and beat until well-mixed. Pour into crust, sprinkle with 1 cup cheese and paprika. Bake 30-40 minutes or until center is firm.

Note: You can use toasted bread cubes also instead of shredded wheat.

This recipe is great for breakfast. I enjoy serving my family food with dairy products in it.

SOUR CREAM COFFEE CAKE

Topping:
⅓ cup packed brown sugar
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
½ cup chopped pecans
Cake:
½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup (8 ounces) sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt

Combine topping; set aside. For cake, cream butter and sugar in a mixing bowl. Add eggs, sour cream, and vanilla extract; mix well. Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, and salt. Add creamed mixture: beat until combined. Pour half of the batter into a greased 9-inch by 13-inch baking pan. Sprinkle with half the topping. Add remaining batter and topping. Bake at 325 degrees for 40 minutes or until cake tests done. Yields 12-15 servings.

½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese
½ cup coarse bread crumbs

Cook broccoli in boiling water until crisp-tender; drain well. Spoon broccoli, pimiento, and celery into buttered 1½ -quart casserole. Combine soup, sour cream, and salt; pour over broccoli mixture. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 20-25 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Top with combined cheese and bread crumbs. Return to oven until cheese melts, and crumbs lightly browned.

BUILDING THE FUTURE

Sun Area Leadership Training Conference

The annual SUN Area Leadership Training Conference was held in May at Christ United Lutheran Church at Milmont.

The 1998-1999 FFA officer team attended. Each officer and their assistant attended individual sessions to learn the duties of their offices.

Joshua Heeter and Jeremy Hackenberg from the Pennsylvania State FFA Association gave the keynote address.

Maria Trego, Jen Balatincz, Jen Kuhns, Shane Eia, Michele Fetterolf, and Rose Carper, West Snyder FFA members, were eligible to become SUN officers. They were interviewed by the current SUN officers (from Mifflinburg, Line Mountain, West Snyder, and Selinsgrove).

Maria Trego was selected to serve as the 1998-1999 SUN area president. Jen Balatincz was elected secretary. Rose Carper earned the nomination for SUN area FFA treasurer. Jen Kuhns and Shane Eia earned the office of SUN area sentinel and student adviser respectively, and Michele Fetterolf will serve as the 1998-1999 SUN Area FFA chaplin.

June: Start Watering

This is the fourth article in a series on soil and water conservation. Your careful use of lawn irrigation will help local streams and will ulitmately benefit larger bodies of water in your surrounding area by reducing fertilizer and pesticide run-off and by conserving water

Adequate soil moisture is essential for a good green lawn all summer A healthy plant is composed of 75-90 percent water

There are several options for applying water to pants These include a watering can or a garden hose with a fan nozzle, lawn sprinklers, a perforated plastic soaker hose, a drip, trickle system, or a semi-automatic drip system designed for your lawn.

When irrigating, adjust the flow or rate of water application to one-half inch per hour. This will avoid causing surface run-off

To determine the rate for a sprinkler system, place small tin cans at various places within the sprinkler's reach, and check the level of water in the cans at 15 minute intervals.

When using the oscillating type of lawn sprinkler in a garden, place the sprinkler on a platform higher than the crop to prevent water from being diverted by plant leaves

Try to keep the watering pattern even by frequently moving the sprinkler and overlapping about one half of each pattern.

Avoid watering your lawn in the evening. Wet foliage overnight may encourage disease. Morning watering is preferred.

When using perforated plastic hoses or soaker hoses in the garden, place the holes down (if there are holes), along one side of the crop row you want to water or underneath the mulch. Water will slowly soak into the soil around shrubs and trees.

Frequent, light watering encourages shallow rooting. Grass plants suffer more quickly during summer droughts. On the other hand, too much water, especially in poorly drained soils can also damage plant growth.

When should you start watering your lawn? Your lawn can use an inch or more of water per week in hot, dry weather. Begin watering your lawn when the soil begins to dry out, but before the grass actually wilts.

Can your lawn go into summer dormancy? Yes, it occurs when loss water occurs in the grass blade. As a result, footprints will make a long-lasting imprint instead of bouncing right back.

The alternative most often used with water shortages is not to water the lawn at all. Dormancy is the grass plant's built in protection plan. The lawn will turn brown as moisture reserves dry up, but it is far from dead. By going into a dormant state deeper than its winter dormancy, the grass plant halts the process of photosynthesis. Production of new growth is arrested. This also explains why grass grows at a slower pace in hot, dry periods. When rains do come and drought stress ends, the grass will green up. This is especially true for fescues, bluegrass, zoysia, and Bermuda grass lawns.

Restrict the use of herbicides during hot summer weather. Herbicides stress the lawn in a drought. And when a lawn becomes brown during a dry spell avoid using fertilizer. Application of fertilizer at this time can kill your lawn.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 4

The Society of Farm Women Berks Co. Group #4 met on April 14 at the home of Barbara Shaner, New Berlinville.

The group made cookie trays for shut-ins in the area.

During the business meeting conducted by Ferne Kulp the group decided to raise the amount given annual for Family & Consumer Science scholarship to Boyertown's outstanding senior and 9th graders at East & West Junior High.

The Ways & Means committee distributed Stanley books. Members will take orders until the next meeting. The date for our yard/bake sale is June 20.

The next meeting will begin at the home of Cherry's Flowers, Boyertown, for the program and then proceed to Georgeanna Fullerton's home, Boyertown, for the business meeting.

Milk Mustaches For Better Health

Timonium, Md – The Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) recently hosted a milk mustache photo booth at the fourth annual Baltimore Women's Show, which more than 35,000 women and their families attended More than 1,000 Polaroid photos were taken during the three-day event to encourage women to "Drink Milk - 3 Glasses A Day." Groups of moms and daughters, sisters, and friends lined up throughout the weekend to receive their coveted milk mustache photos MAMMA's booth was featured on ABC Channel 2's Morning Show, broadcasted live to more than 800,000 homes

Nine hundred half-pint samples of chocolate milk were also distributed at the MAMMA booth to position chocolate milk as a delicious, nutritious treat for kids and adults. Other aspects of the booth included a nutrition IQ challenge and an informational display featuring the famous milk mustache celebrities. Local dairy princesses distributed more than 5,000 brochures provided by the Milk Processors Education Program (MilkPEP) to encourage the attendees to drink milk and choose dairy products more often Nutrition experts were on hand to answer questions about milk and dairy products, as well as address other nutritional concerns

In addition to hosting the booth, MAMMA also sponsored a demonstration by Emily O'Hara, Maryland Dairy Princess, at the Creative Cooking Kitchen area of the Women's Show Emily showed the audience how to make her dairy-rich dessert, Cream Cheese Pie, while MAMMA Marketing Director Rebecca Sonnen reviewed tips for getting more calcium with dairy products Samples of Emily's Cream Cheese Pie were distributed after the demonstration

MAMMA hosted the booth at the Baltimore Women's Show to educate women about the importance of milk in their diets and the role milk plays in the growth and development of their children. MAMMA targets women, especially moms, to not only increase their milk consumption, but also to encourage their children to drink more milk and eat dairy products more often MAMMA is a non-profit milk promotion and advertising association funded by dairy farmers in Maryland, Delaware, southern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and northern Virginia

QUESTION — Eli Ebersol, Lancaster, wants to buy "Intercourse, PA 200th Anniversary Book," printed in 1954. He also wants a jigsaw puzzle of "Mascot Roller Mill," located in Mascot.

QUESTION — A faithful reader would like to know if anyone can tell her how to save an unfinished quilt top, she found while cleaning out a house. The top has turned yellow where exposed, dusty, etc. The remainder of the quilt is like new. It is printed to be embroidered in cross stitch and is already marked to be quilted. If she wases it, the markeings and cross stitch will probably wash out. Is it worth the time sewing and maybe not getting clean? The dirty part is about a 12-inch square where folded.

QUESTION — Patricia Henry, Gettsburg, needs the address for Bany Products Corp., formerly of St. Louis, MO. Mail returned with forwarding expired. Patricia writes that the company makes the best metal polishing cloth called Victory Miracle.

QUESTION — Clarence Rhorback, Mertztown, wants to know where to get information on a miniature baler that makes 2x2x4-inch bales.

QUESTION — Doyle Whitney wants information on farm areas, where a small farm and a farm equipment dealership or repair shop would prosper. He doesn't want real estate agents, but perhaps county extension agents or someone from the Dept. of Ag could help with the information. Call him collect at (860) 423-8218.

QUESTION — A reader would like information on keeping a pair of swans in their pond in order to keep a Canada goose population under control. Which breed of swans works the best? Do you need to clip the wings to keep them in the pond? What kind of care do swans require?

QUESTION — Harold Wolf, New Cumberland, is looking for copies of "Flying" magazine published from the mid 1950s to 1962 only.

QUESTION — Bill Kelley, Purcellville, wants to know where to have a meat grinder recoated or refinished. He writes that maybe the correct wording is "hot dipped."

QUESTION — Vera Sloop, Landisburg, would like information on where to buy strainer parts for a galvanized watering can.

QUESTION — Sharon from Elverson is looking for additional pieces to a Pfalzgraff set of dishes that were made 15-20 years ago. Pieces have a cream background with dark blue accents that include either a cow, a flower, a rocking horse, a pineapple, a cat, or a farm scene. Some pieces include the label Spectrum by Pfaltzgraff.

QUESTION — A reader is looking for a shower curtain with cows on it. Where can she find it?

QUESTION — Thane Lafollette, Bernville, would like information on how and where to sell broom corn. He has about 75 stalks to sell.

QUESTION — Evan Weidman, Westfield, would like information about old cookers that he has. On top, it says American Cooker, patented Nov. 29, 1910, other patents pending, No. 70. the other one says the same thing but has a No. 66 on it. He'd like to know who made them and any other instructions.

QUESTION — Ivan Gromling, Manchester, writes that when he was young and growing up in the 1950s and 1960s, his family used Troutaman's Cough Syrup, which was black in color. Where can he purchase it today?

QUESTION — Mary Pazzaglia, Columbia Cross Roads, wants addresses for suppliers for chipwood baskets that measure 4½ -inch wide and 3¼ -inch deep, and 2½ -inches high.

QUESTION — Margaret Diamond, Kunkletown, wants instructions to make lamps or other items from popsickle sticks.

QUESTION — Carl Detwiler, Zionsville, wants to know where to get wire rope flemish spiced and swaged.

ANSWER — A Pennsylvania reader has had a Christmas cactus plant for three years and it has never bloomed, she wanted to know how to get it to bloom. Thanks to Pat Elligson, Millers, Md., who gives the following instructions:

- Have plant in a clay pot with good potting soil.
- Place potted plant outside for the summer in a spot protected from hot sun and wind, but good light. Water as usual.
- Before frost in October, bring plant indoors and place in a cool room where it will get no light at night. It should have only natural daylight. An unused bedroom is good. If you must place it in a lamp-lighted room, cover plant with a paper grocery bag. (No unnatural light is a key to blooms). Do NOT water for several weeks. Dirt will go dry and leaves will go limp. (The plant is resting).
- Around the first of November, place plant in a bright sunny south window and begin watering again as needed.
- You should see tiny buds forming at the ends of the leaves. If buds drop, lessen the water and move. It may not bloom exactly at Christmas, but hopefully close to that date.

Thanks also to Laurie Donaldson for writing that she has a Christmas cactus that has been in her family for more than 50 years. They do not like artificial light because they depend on the shorter days to know when to bloom. Her cactus is in a room with eastern and norther exposure that barely gets above 70 degrees. The plant prefers temperatures between 50-70 degrees. It blooms great every year and is almost 3-feet wide and is covered with blooms at Christmas.

ANSWER — Helen Cox wanted to know how to start or root forsythia from a clipping. Thanks to Laurie Donaldson for writing that the best time to take cuttings is in early spring. Cut about an 18-inch sprig. Put bottom six-inches in water. Place in sunny location. Roots will soon sprout. Keep newly planted sprigs very wet until well established.

ANSWER — For the person who wanted egg cartons, Cookie Rhodes writes that she has dozens of egg cartons that she will sell for $10. Write to her at R.1, Box 364, Elysburg, PA 17824.

ANSWER — Rosemary Mattiuz, Kersey, is looking for handles for 3-ply stainless Flavor Seal cookware by Cory. Anna Martin, Denver, writes that she also purchased a set of cookware from the same company 34 years ago. Both she and Margaret Kaltreider of Brodbecks order replacement parts from New Era, Inc., 1255 Paradise Hill Rd., P.O. Box F, Clarksville, TN 37041-0360.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to buy used pressure canners in good condition at a reasonable price. Thanks to Cookie Rhodes, who writes that she has an 8-quart Maid of Honor pressure cookier for $25. Write to her at R.1, Box 364, Elysburg, PA 17824.

ANSWER — A reader from Upper Dauphin wanted to know how to remove black soot from the outside of copper kettle and how to restore it. Thanks to Margaret Kaltreider, Brodbecks, writes that her sister cleaned hers with ketchup and it looks very nice. It takes time and lots of elbow grease but really works.

ANSWER — For Anna Mae Dukert who wanted to know where to purchase seeds for long neck dipper gourds, write to The American Gourd Society Inc., P.O. Box 274, Mt. Gilead, Ohio 43338-0274. They have seeds for many types of gourds and a 1998 seed list for members to advertise dried gourds and seeds for sale. Thanks to Doris Hellerick, Dublin, for sending this information.

ADADC Maximizes News From Studies

SYRACUSE, NY–Consumers rely on information provided by their healthcare providers. That's why the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC), nutritionists keep key professionals like doctors, university professors, and other nutritionists updated on all the latest calcium research, so that they will make favorable recommendations on dairy product consumption to their patients and students. In addition, ADADC uses these healthcare professionals to deliver positive information on dairy products to consumers by arranging for them to be interviewed by television news reporters.

Recent medical studies found that risk of high blood pressure can be reduced by eating lowfat dairy products, fruits, and vegetables. In March, ADADC brought Dr. David McCarron to Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancel Center in New York City to review this information with 150 doctors, nutritionists, and other health professionals who council are residents on what they should eat.

Another medical study released in January found that when postmenopausal women receiving Estrogen Replacement Therapy consumed more calcium, the effects of the therapy produced greater results.

To make sure women were aware of the need for extra calcium, ADADC got news about the study on ABC and FOX in New York City and set up an interview with Dr. Gloria Bachmann of Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital on New Jersey's new 12 NJ. Newspapers throughout ADADC's marketing area featured stories on the study–including the Rockland Journal News, Clifton Dateline Journal, Westfield Republican, Lewisburg Daily Journal, Milton Daily Standard, and the new Age Examiner in Tunkhannock. In additional, two chains of weekly newspapers covering New York City and the five boroughs, reaching more than 100,000 consumers, featured stories on the study.

Tough Dairy Decisions Don't Stop at the Farm Gate

Editor's Note:

The following Q. & A. column addresses many of the issues the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP), the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East (ADADC Mid East) and Dairy Management Inc.™ (DMI) face in determining programs and products to promote with national dairy farmer check-off funds. Scott E. Higgins is CEO, American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East. Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion contracts with the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East to work closely with Dairy Management Inc.™, the national check planning and management organization, to implement dairy promotion and research programs nationwide. PDDPP represents dairy farmers in 33 counties in western and north central Pennsylvania.

As CEO of American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East, dairy farmers regularly ask me how we determine where our national checkoff funds are spent. I'm getting that question a lot more since we made some key changes in allocating our promotional dollars this year. Our dairy promotion spending in 1998 is based on some of the most comprehensive market research the industry has ever seen. This research identified which consumer targets will provide the greatest benefit long-term for the dairy farmer It was a critical piece in determining how to spend our limited resources to ensure we are making the wise, and sometimes difficult decisions required to increase dairy sales.

To help all checkoff participants better understand how we developed our national marketing plan for 1998, here are the most common questions (and answers) I've been asked in recent months.

Q. As CEO of American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East, what are some of the hardest decisions you've had to make recently?

A. The biggest question we have faced is deciding which direction to take – where to spend the dairy farmer checkoff dollars – to have the greatest impact in sales of milk. Sometimes farmers become concerned about the decisions that are made because the products we ultimately promote may not be the same ones an individual farmer receives the most return on when selling his milk.

As an organization responsible for leading promotional efforts for dairy products, we knew we needed to make our decisions based on information that told us where we could build the strongest markets for dairy products, now and in the future. That's why we invested in a nationwide survey of consumers. This was a landmark study that helped us clearly define which types of products and target consumers offer the highest growth opportunities. When we saw the results of that study, it was clear that the whole industry could benefit most over the long term by promoting fluid milk consumption in kids and higher cheese consumption among certain customers. To do that right and make a difference, it meant we couldn't put money in other programs or we'd be spreading ourselves and farmer dollars too thin.

Making these tough calls is just like the decisions dairy farmers all the time. When making purchases, whether equipment or cows, farmers must do their research. They get data, ask questions and solicit input from experts. They never have all the dollars they'd like to have to buy all they need, so they have to choose the route they think is best and stay with their choice long enough to evaluate the benefits.

Our decision to market specific dairy products is no different. Only with time will we see how it works. As an organization, we're committed to making the best decisions we can based on facts and sticking with them to build the best future we can for all dairy farmers.

Q. What other decisions have made big changes in the way dairy products are promoted?

A. Another big decision we made recently was to work more closely with the fluid milk processors through the Milk Processor Education Program (MilkPEP) to promote milk. It was time to make a commitment to work with the processors in a manner that ensures ALL dairy promotion dollars are getting used in a coordinated way to increase sales and be competitive with other beverages That meant we could put $181 million toward promotions designed to impact milk drinking among young children and pre-teens with dairy farmer-funded "got milk?®" campaign, and reach teens and adults through the processor-funded "milk mustache" campaign.

Part of this coordinated campaign calls for addressing some of the major fluid milk marketing obstacles, such as packaging and distribution, that can only be handled by the processors We did the research that identified the problems and possible solutions Now the processors are taking those solutions to the market

We plan to take this coordinated farmer/processor effort another step forward. The DMI Board of Directors recently decided to begin working with the processors to construct one integrated campaign to promote fluid milk in 1999.

Q. What have been the biggest challenges in making those decisions on dairy promotion?

A. In any organization that has nearly 100,000 business owners, which the dairy industry does, there are going to be differences of opinion Our challenge was gaining regional consensus on a national plan No national corporation, product or industry can survive with 20 or more different marketing plans. We can't either Fortunately, since the merger of UDIA and NDB under DMI, we have been able to work together and it's making a big difference Total dairy sales continue to rise despite increases in production, and surplus inventories are nonexistent.

Q. What do you hope to accomplish long term by making these tough decisions?

A. We believe that if we all work together with a singular focus to our promotion efforts, then we'll sell more dairy products. A healthy and growing dairy industry means opportunity, a more secure future and potentially a more profitable business for dairy farmers today and tomorrow.

Q. What response can you give to dairy producers who have questions about how their checkoff dollars are being spent?

A. At ADADC Mid East, we know that dairy farmers are concerned that the checkoff dollars they invest are being well spent. Our Board of Trustees are dairy farmers, too. We are working hard to ensure that farmer dollars are supporting efficient programs and getting results.

New Zealand Exchange Offers Farmers A Working Vacation

FERGUS FALLS, Minn – There are tour bus tourists, and there are tourists like Dan Harris of Anita, Iowa People who want more out of a vacation than sightseeing with a tour guide

"I'm not a 'look through a window on a tour bus' kind of person," said Harris, who was one of the first participants in Communicating for Agriculture's (CA's) new exchange program to New Zealand for established farmers

The 45-year-old Iowa grain farmer isn t your typical tourist Instead he's the kind of person who doesn't mind getting his hands dirty helping on the farm or camping in the wilderness

He had been considering a motorcycle tour of New Zealand when he heard of CA's exchange offer that began in the winter of 1998 The program is patterned after CA's international agriculture exchange program for young people but does not have an age limit and is for shorter periods of time The idea is to place established American farmers at New Zealand farms where they worked with the host family during the busy winter harvest in exchange for room and board

"It sounded like it had my name on it," said Harris, who applied for the exchange when he first heard about it in November of 1997 By Jan 13, he found himself flying to Auckland where he was met by Geoff and Rochelle Spark of the Rural Exchange New Zealand, CA's partners in the exchange program

The Sparks brought Harris to Claxby Farm, a 4,700 acre flatland farm on the Canterbury Plains 30 minutes north of Christchurch Owned by Richard and Margaret Spencer, Claxby is predominately a sheep farm where they run 6,500 halfbred ewes and 500 merino ewes They also have a simmental herd of 30 cows and feed additional cattle for market

However, it was the cash crop aspect of the farming operation that attracted Harris Used to farming his own family farm of 1,000 acres in southwest Iowa, Harris found both similarities and differences helping his Kiwi hosts with the January harvest

For one thing, it was a hot January with temperatures in the 80s and 90s and a drought taking its toll on the irrigated crops Unlike the open fields of his farm, Harris said the Claxby Farm is bordered by mountains on three sides and uses windbreaks and hedges to prevent soil erosion Harris found himself "opening more gates than I ever had in my life" as he learned to farm Kiwi style

His hosts use a boarder dike irrigation system installed not long after Spencer's great-grandfather settled the land in 1852 Although Harris doesn't irrigate his land, he did work on the Spencer's other irrigation system, a spray irrigator, when it needed repair

"It was a typical harvest season just like at home – full torpedoes ahead all the time," Harris said "They were feeling a bit guilty about not having enough time to spend with me, but I didn't feel abused or anything They certainly didn't ask me to do anything they weren't doing themselves"

Harris found the work experience and discussions with his hosts to be an excellent way to understand the differences between the farming systems – everything from crop and soil differences to government subsidies. Living with a host family also meant he grasped a better understanding of the cultural differences

"I really enjoyed it Living with the family was an experience," said Harris

Himself the father of two grown children, Harris joked about the antics of the Spencer's three children, Sam, 14, Olivia, 12, and Marcus, 6 Being with the family gave him a perspective he would not have found as a tourist, he said

"You get to know the people this way," Harris explained "They were very polite and easy to get along with and always interested in what you're doing."

His hosts open their farm to tour buses and sensed their CA exchange guest was not your typical American bus-tour tourist So they invited him on a camping trip to a remote area near Lake Summer

"Lake Summer is a natural lake that's tremendously deep and blue They brought what they call a caravan, a little trailer, and we camped out there without water or electricity or anything," said Harris, an avid fisherman and hunter "You can only get there with a four-wheel drive – that's my kind of thing"

That and a trip Harris took along by car gave him a chance to explore the geographical, climactic and vegetation contrasts of the island He saw red deer being raised as a cash crop for vension, wildly overgrown river regions, cattle "grazing in grass up to their bellies," mountainous areas and coastal regions

It was a working vacation that gave Harris a chance to farm during the winter, meet new people and travel to an interesting land It was a chance to explore New Zealand and whet his appetite for more of the same

"I was pleased with my stay there," he said "I'm definitely going to go back"

Anyone who is interested in learning more about CA's 1999 Established Farmer Exchange Program to New Zealand that will be offered around Feb 1, 1999 is asked to contact Beverly Gilmartin at Communicating for Agriculture, 112 E Lincoln, Fergus Falls, MN 56537 Phone 800-432-3276 or e-mail her at beverlyg@cainc.org.

Not All Children Play Alike

(Centre Co.) — Two kindergarten children — one European-American, one Asian-American — are busy playing together with equal amounts of clay. The Asian-American child calmly takes some of the clay from the European-American child. An argument ensues, and the teacher intervenes The teacher's first thought is that the Asian-American child is a bully, yet the child's manner is otherwise polite and respectful.

"This is an example of a culture clash in play," says Dr James E Johnson, professor of early childhood education at Penn State "Compared to children from some other ethnic groups, European-American children tend to be more individualistic and competitive in their play"

Asian-American children, on the other hand, place a special value on cooperativeness and sharing. Thus, they see nothing wrong in taking from what is perceived as a common stockpile of clay.

"The teacher, realizing this, puts all the clay together and lets the children take what they need within fair and sensible limits," Johnson notes. "This stops arguments over they clay and promotes cultural awareness."

"This scenario shows the paradox of play," he says. "While all children play, children from different cultures play differently."

Johnson and Dr Jaipaul Roopnarine, professor of Child and family studies at Syracuse University, are co-authors of the paper, "Play and Diverse Cultures. Implications for Early Childhood Education," an invited paper recently presented at Wheelock College in Boston, Mass. The two experts have collaborated on research and publications on play and diverse cultures for several years.

In foreign countries, even very young children tend to be fond of games with clearly defined rules For instance, Brazilian children will start playing soccer at the age of two or three

American children prior to the age of eight prefer a less structured approach to play, according to Johnson

"Play encourages problem-solving, social competence and a sense of humor, while at the same time promoting tolerance and understanding It is the universal language of children," Johnson adds

Backyard Conservation—It'll Grow On You

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "Backyard Conservation It'll grow on you" is the message a group of conservation organizations is promoting in Pennsylvania and other states across the nation. While much of the 92 million acres of developed land in the United States is in the care of farmers and ranchers who practice conservation measures to ensure the health and stability of the soil and water, urban and suburban homeowners are being urged to do their part and participate in "Backyard Conservation" to make their backyards healthier, friendlier places for nature.

"Backyard Conservation" is a cooperative effort of the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), National Association of Conservation District (NACD), and the Wildlife Habitat Council (WHC). At the center of the the campaign is a free, 28-page booklet that outlines 10 conservation practices backyard conservationists can put to work on their own property or in their neighborhoods The booklet also explains how farmers and ranchers use those same conservation practices on rural and agricultural land.

Backyard conservationists can use comm n agricultural conservation practices on a small scale to provide important wildlife habitat while saving and improving natural resources. Practices such as terracing, tree planting, composting, mulching, wildlife habitat, wetlands, ponds, water conservation, nutrient management, and pest management have been used on American farms for decades and provide a common link for rural and urban/suburban landowners in caring for the resources.

"You don't have to do a lot or spend a lot to provide habitat for wildlife in your backyard," said Patricia Sueck, president, Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts. "Birds and butterflies will find a home with just a few of the right trees or plants," Sueck added. "This campaign strengthens the common bond we all share," said Janet Oertly, NRCS state conservationist. "We all care about the future of our environment."

NRCS and conservation districts are partners in caring for natural resources Conservation districts are the local leaders in identifying and prioritizing resources issues NRCS is an agency of the U S. Department of Agriculture with responsibility for providing technical and financial assistance on a voluntary basis on private lands.

Dairy-Farmer Funded Nutrition Research Makes Headlines

PITTSBURGH — Evidence is mounting that there is more to a glass of milk than great taste, thanks to dairy farmer-funded nutrition research efforts. In addition to identifying the many nutritional benefits of dairy products, farmer-sponsored scientific studies are uncovering a variety of possible links between dairy consumption and the prevention of disease, including certain cancers. And that's helping make dairy products the "big cheese" when it comes to nutrition news.

Recent dairy research findings are not only generating positive headlines and extensive airtime, they are even having an impact on national nutrition guidelines. In fact, the prestigious National Academy of Sciences recently recommended that adults increase their daily calcium intake to at least 1,000 mg a day to maximize the development and maintenance of strong bones. The guideline change, which translates into approximately three daily servings of dairy products, was a result of compelling scientific evidence highlighting the relationship between calcium consumption and bone density.

"We are exploring some exciting avenues that could have a positive impact on human health, thanks to our dairy farmer-funded nutrition research," says Cindy Weimer, spokesperson for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP), which represents dairy farmers in 33 counties in western and north central Pennsylvania. "In fact, we have a very precise, nutrition-focused research and education plan in place to ensure Americans know all about how good dairy products are for them."

Dairy Beneficial In Fighting Hyper-tension, Osteoporosis, Cancer

Recent research findings on the health benefits afforded by dairy products are encouraging. According to one study, a diet (known as the DASH diet) rich in low-fat dairy products, fruits and vegetables reduces blood pressure substantially and quickly (within two weeks). In some cases, the dairy-rich diet reduced blood pressure as much as or better than some hypertension medications. Conducted by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, the study was an extension of previous dairy farmer-funded research.

The link between dairy consumption and the prevention of osteoporosis is growing ever stronger. A review published in the Journal of Clinical Nutrition found that post-menopausal women using estrogen who upped their calcium intake to about 1,200 mg per day (or approximately four servings of dairy products), increased bone mass about three times more than women who used estrogen therapy alone.

Current dairy farmer-funded research efforts are aggressively exploring whether certain milkfat components have cancer-preventive properties. Milkfat is the richest natural dietary source of conjugated linoleic acid (CLA), a potential cancer fighter. A growing body of animal research indicates CLA may prevent growth of skin and mammary tumors. Test-tube studies using human skin, breast and colon cancer cells demonstrate that CLA inhibits growth of these cancers.

Misperceptions On Dairy Corrected

Scientific studies also are being utilized to dispel common consumer misconceptions about dairy foods. A just-released study, published in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, shatters the long-held myth that milk and other calcium-rich dairy foods should be avoided by people prone to kidney stones. In fact, it finds just the opposite holds true — calcium in milk helps neutralize the effect of oxalate, a compound in some foods that contributes to the formation of the most common type of kidney stones.

"A solid nutrition research plan is critical in educating key influentials and the public on the importance of consuming dairy products throughout the human lifecycle, beginning in childhood," says Weimer. "With valid scientific results, we can emphasize the positive health benefits associated with dairy product intake, such as bone health, cancer prevention and nutrient density. The groundbreaking research currently under way will continue to enhance the healthful image of dairy products and thereby help increase overall dairy consumption."

Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program contracts with the American Dairiy Association & Dairy Council Mid East to work closely with Dairy Management Inc.™, the national check planning and management organization, to implement dairy promotion and research programs nationwide. ADADC Mid East is the local planning and management organization, funded by dairy farmer dollars, responsible for increasing demand for U.S.-produced dairy products on behalf of America's dairy farmers.

Since the national dairy farmer checkoff began in 1984, dairy promotion organizations have helped to sell more than 200 billion pounds of total milk beyond what was projected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to have been sold without the checkoff in place. To learn more about dairy farmer-funded efforts, contact Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Progarm at 814/498-2058; cweimer@drinkmilk.com.

Maryland Plans Dairy Youth Weekend

FREDERICK, Md. — Maryland dairy youth have the opportunity to participate in a unique, mostly non-competitive, fun learning atmosphere — the Maryland Dairy Youth Weekend — to be held June 19-21 at the Frederick County 4-H Camp and Activities Center.

The program is 5-years-old and started through the efforts of coordinators Rebecca Long Chaney and Susan Summers, long-time friends who met and grew up together participating in 4-H dairy activities.

Summers said that, in reflecting about all the information they were exposed to in 4-H and mainstream dairy youth activities, they realized that there was always a competitive atmosphere that seemed to discourage some youth from participating and learning more.

At the same time, as dairy youth leaders, they realized that more and more of the Maryland youth participating in 4-H dairy activities do not have the benefit of being raised on a dairy farm and being exposed to the inside workings of the industry and community.

The program is not sponsored by any specific organization, but through a coordinated effort, it is sponsored by almost all of the Maryland dairy industry, Summers said.

She said that what has been created is a non-competitive atmosphere where dairy youth can come together to learn, in addition to dairy related things, such personal growth skills such as self-motivation, public speaking, how to write thank you notes, and other finer aspects of civil and accepted social and community behavior.

Summers said that when she and Long Chaney were growing up, they learned those things at home, in the community, in 4-H and in dairy princess promotions.

But she said it is unfair to youth who haven't had the benefit of growing up immersed in the industry to know those things that may be taken for granted by those with extensive backgrounds in the dairy community.

The program is open to all Maryland dairy youth, from ages 8 to 18 (the program is not designed for youth aged younger than 8).

In essence the program Summers described seems similar to convention activities offered in Pennsylvania by the Holstein Association and the Penn State Dairy Club's All-Breeds Convention.

Lee Majesky, dairy specialist with the University of Maryland Extension Service, coordinates the state Junior Dairyman's Contest and it is held as part of the youth weekend. It is competitive for those who wish to participate, and there is $1,000 in prize money awarded.

However, the rest of the weekend and material presentation is in a non-competitive format.

Each participant pays $20 for the three days, which begins with registration from 6-7 p.m. Friday, June 19 and ends at noon on Sunday, June 21.

The rest of the costs of the program are covered through donations by regional and national agribusinesses, dairy breed organizations, the Frederick County Farm Bureau, dairy women and young farmers, and anonymous donors.

She said that each participant leaves with gifts and prizes, along with new information and meeting many others with like interests.

Some of the events scheduled during the three days includes a Friday night dance, a swimming party, and different fun activities, such as being put into groups and working together to create a video promotion.

New this year is to be a "mock sale," during which the youth are to be allocated a certain amount of "money" and be given a "herd" to improve. With the list of pedigrees being offered in the play cattle sale, the youth are to make selections and purchase cattle to improve the herd and make best use of the money allocated.

Dennis Remsburg is to help with that program and offer views on selections.

There also are to be dairy leaders speaking about show preparation, show ethics and sportsmanship; careers in agriculture and resume preparation; dairy judging and dairy breed and product promotion; and motivational speakers.

There also to be lots of interaction among the youth with a pizza party and movie added.

The first deadline for registration passed before the announcement was made available outside of the immediate Maryland area. Late registration is $25. Checks should be made payable to: Maryland Dairy Youth Weekend. The mailing address is: C/O Rebecca Long Chaney, 2047 Dennings Road, New Windsor, Md., 21776.

For more information, call Chaney at (410) 775-7041, or Summers at (301) 865-1045.

New SUN Area Princess To Be Crowned

SELINSGROVE (Snyder Co.) — The SUN Area dairy industry will hold its dairy festivities here June 11-13.

There is a wide variety of activities planned, including the crowning of a new dairy princess.

On Friday, June 12, beginning at 6 p.m., Turkey Hill's Giant Ice Cream Sundae will be built in the Boscov's Court. The sundae will reach seven feet tall and be made with 135 gallons of ice cream, 10 gallons of chocolate fudge, 25 pounds of pecans, and five gallons of cherries.

On Saturday, June 13, there will be a petting zoo in Boscov's Garden Center from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. with calves from the six main dairy breeds. There will also be a Celebrtiy Cow Milking Contest featuring local well-known people who will test their cow milking skills. The event will begin at 1 p.m. under the tent in front of Boscov's.

There will be a Scooper Bowl sponsored by Swineford Bank held in Boscov's North Court from 1 p.m.-9 p.m. All proceeds will benefit the SUN Area FFA Scholarship Fund.

At 7 p.m. in the Boscov's Court, the 24th annual SUN Area Dairy Princess Pageant will be held. The contestants will be holding a fashion show. They will model fashions from Boscov's.

This year, three contestants will be in the dairy pageant. Also in the program, there will be 11 dairy maids and 12 dairy misses.

New John Deere Advantage Tractors

Advantage Tractors are taking the mid-Atlantic by storm

INTRODUCING THE ADVANTAGE SERIES FROM JOHN DEERE

Farmers across the mid-Atlantic are discovering how new John Deere Advantage Series Tractors can boost productivity without blowing a budget. Compare them to other "low-cost" tractors, and you'll agree . . . there is no comparison.

Start with John Deere power. All models feature the proven, high-torque engines that many farmers say will outpull higher-horsepower engines. You'll put that power to work with a 12-speed SyncroVantage™ (on the 85-hp 6405 and 95-hp 6605) or 16-speed PowrQuad™ transmission (on the 105-hp 7405). Both offer more shifting ease than competitive tractors. Plus, HydraVantage™ hydraulics deliver up to 70 percent more flow for faster cycles and higher lift capacities.

Work at ease, with unmatched comfort and control. It begins with the flat, open operator platforms plus console-mounted controls that farmers prefer. Straddle-mounts just don't compare. Electrohydraulic hitch controls are more precise and easier to adjust than mechanical controls. PermaClutch 2™ provides greater clutch reliability. And larger fuel tanks lengthen the time between fill-ups.

Now, consider value. All this extra productivity is yours at about the same list price as lesser-equipped tractors. So, if you haven't seen one yet, come and look over the Advantage at your John Deere dealer's store.

THE BEST-EVER CAKE

1 package yellow cake mix
1 can (20 ounces) crushed pineapple in juice
¾ cup sugar
2 packages (3½ ounces) instant vanilla pudding
3 cups milk
1 cup heavy cream
¼ cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

In 9- by 13-inch pan, bake the cake according to directions. Meanwhile, in a medium saucepan, combine pineapple, juice, and sugar. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally until thick and syrupy (about 20 minutes). When cake is done, remove from oven. Pierce top of cake with a fork at 1-inch intervals. Pour on the pineapple mix. Spread evenly. Let cake cool completely.

In medium bowl, combine milk and pudding mix. Blend until thick and spread over cake. In a separate medium bowl, beat cream until soft peaks form. Add powdered sugar and vanilla. Continue beating until stiff. Spread over cake. Refrigerate 24 hours before serving. Makes 16 servings.

The only word to describe my family is "different."

My husband Dennis and I have been married for 17 years and have two children. My son Jesse is eight years old and my daughter is 11. We are originally from central New Jersey and moved to Huntingdon, Pa. five years ago.

Dennis has always loved the country and farming. I am a city girl at heart and like to come home to the country at night. So what works for us and makes us different is that I work full time near Penn State University, which has the convenience of big city life. My husband stays home and tends the farm, does all the cooking, baking, and even his own canning of homegrown fruits and vegetables.

Every time Dennis tries a new recipe, my children, co-workers, and I are the guinea pigs. However, you won't hear us complain. My co-workers have also asked if I would consider "renting him out" occasionally to cook for them.

After all these years of baking for me, I submit this recipe on his behalf because I think he deserves the recognition and my appreciation for what he does.

ICE CREAM-WICH SUNDAES

1½ cups crisp rice cereal
¼ cup melted butter
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
¼ cup brown sugar (packed)
1 cup flaked coconut
1½ -2 quarts vanilla ice cream

Lightly mix ceral, sugar, butter, coconut, and nuts. Pat half the mixture into buttered 8-inch pan. Spread evenly with slightly softened ice cream. Put the rest of the cereal mix over ice cream and freeze. Optional: use your favorite topping. Pan size should be 8 inches. Serves 9.

I'm a mother of three and grandmother of nine. My hobbies are gardening, especially growing flowers, including roses and African violets. I also enjoy backyard bird watching and trying some of the recipes in Lancaster Farming and reading Ida's Notebook and other interesting items.

This picture was taken Mother's Day, May 10, 1998. Wearing new sunglasses are Salena Jane, Abbie Lea, and Tiffanie May. They're holding Dakota William. They are the children of Dawn and Mark Wilson and grandchildren of Donald E. and Carol Hebrank, Adrian.

SPRING BREAKFAST BRUNCH

8 eggs
3 cups milk
1 tablesppoon Dijon mustard
2 teaspoons dried basil
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese
1 pound fully cooked ham, cubed
1 package (10 ounces) frozen, cut asparagus, thawed, or 2 cups fresh asparagus, cooked
2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
10 cups cubed bred

In a large bowl, beat eggs: add milk, mustard, basil, and salt. Gently stir in remaining ingredients until well mixed. Pour into greased 9-inch by 13-inch baking dish. Cover and refrigerate eight hours or overnight. Remove from refrigerator 30 minutes before baking. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for one hour or until knife inserted near the center comes out clean. Let stand 5 minutes before cutting.

The big, beautiful blue sky with the white fluffy clouds are present as May heads into summer.

There really is a fine line between summer and winter. The colors go from brown to a very beautiful green and then the colors of the rainbow in all the flowers.

I had the very best Mother's Day a mother could ask for. My daughter Dawn and her husband Mark Wilson came to church with my four grandchildren, Salena Jane, 6... Abbie Lea, 5; Tiffanie May, 4; and Dakota William, 1½ . It was a total surprise to me. I nearly jumped out of my skin. Tears filled my eyes and ran down my cheeks. The family lives in West Liberty, W.Va., and got up so early to travel that Sunday morning. My husband, Rev. Donald E. Hebrank, knew they were coming up, because he had the food bought and kept it in the church refrigerator so I wouldn't know what he was up to.

We traveled to West Virginia on May 18 for Salena Jane to get a trophy for reading 175 books over the summer and 250 during five months of school. She is in the first grade and in the Book-It-Plus Program at Beach Bottom Primary Elementary School in Beach Bottom, W.Va. She also got a certificate for attendance. My husband and I were able to be there for her and she was really surprised, too.

Abbie, Tiffanie, and Dakota attended story hour at the library in Wellsburg, W.Va.

From the sunny side of Florida come the Hebranks. Marty, Kari, and Bailey arrived after Christmas for a short stay with us. Then on to the rest of the family. But while they were here, it snowed! It was Bailey's first time to play in the snow. Grandpap got out his sled he had when he was a young boy — cleaned it all up and we waxed the runners. Grandpap put Bailey on the sled and was pulling her in the yard, and she said, "You are breaking the snow!" She played for the longest time in the snow, making snow angels and snowballs. We had a wonderful visit with them and always look forward to being together again and again.

On the West Coast of the country is my son, Shawn, who does his bike tricks. He has been to Taiwan on a bike tour. He has been to Florida and other states for bike contests, too. He really enjoys his job, designing bike parts and traveling with his job.

My husband and I do our gardening and work at it each free moment. We added two new flower beds this year. The beds include new plants and they have to have room to grow. My extra plants I share with visitors so they can start a flower garden, too. All of nature is beautiful, and it is best to touch, see, and smell the wonderful outdoors.

CHEESE BRAID

3-4½ cups all-purpose flour, divided
1 package active-dry yeast
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons sugar
1½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
2 cups shredded sharp cheddar cheese
1 egg yolk, lightly beaten
1 tablespoon cold water
1-2 teaspoons poppy seeds

Grease two baking sheets. In large bowl, combine 2 cups flour and yeast. Heat milk, sugar, and salt until warm, stirring to dissolve sugar. Add to flour mixture along with egg and cheese. With electric mixer on low, beat about 1 minute, scraping sides of bowl occasinally. Beat 3 minutes on high. By hand, stir in remaining 1½ -2 cups flour to make a stiff dough. Turn dough onto lightly floured surface and knead until smooth, about 8 minutes, add additional flour as needed. Shape into ball. Place in large greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover and let rise in warm draft-free place until doubled, about 1½ hours.

Divide dough into six pieces. Cover, let rest for 10 minutes. Roll each piece into a 15-inch rope. Place ropes on each sheet. Loosely braid ropes together, pinch ends together to seal.

Cover, let rise in warm place until almost doubled about 35-45 minutes.

Place oven racks so they are in upper and lower middle positions. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Combine egg yolk and water. Brush on each braid. Sprinkle with poppy seeds.

Bake 20-25 minutes, switching baking sheet positions halfway through baking. Cool. Slice into 12 slices.

I found this recipe in a magazine many years ago. We love this bread with chili and lasagna. When I would have the family over in the winter for chili and cheese bread, it was loved by all.

STUFFED SHELLS

15 jumbo shells
1 egg
¾ cup bread crumbs
3 tablespoons parsley
1 tablesoon chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
1 pound ground beef
2 cups mozzarella cheese, grated (reserve ½ cup)

Cook shells in boiling water until soft. Combine rest of ingredients and stuff shells.

Sauce:
1 quart tomato juice
¾ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon oregano

Bring to boil and thicken with clear jell to consistency of gravy. Pour ½ of sauce in a 9-inch by 13-inch baking pan. Place stuffed shells on sauce. Pour other ½ on top. Sprinkle reserve (½ cup or more) of mozzarella cheese on last. Cover and bake in slow oven 325 degrees for 2 hours. Serve with lettuce salad for complete meal. Serves 8.

We are dairy farmers in Maryland. It's a lot of work, but we still enjoy it. Lancaster Farming is "digested" every Saturday evening at our house. I am really looking foward to the June issues because one of my favorite pastimes is cooking, especially trying new recipes.

DAIRY DIP

3 strips of bacon, fried and crumbled
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup cottage cheese
½ cup sour cream
½ cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon horseradish
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
½ teaspoon dillweed
½ teaspoon minced onion flakes

Add all ingredients, mix well. Refrigerate at least 2 hours before serving. Enjoy with your favorite potato chips or raw vegetables.

This recipe can be prepared with low-fat ingredients. Seasoned salt may also be adjusted to a smaller amount if watching sodium intake.

My husband and I own a lawn and garden, used farm equipment, and truck repair facility in New Bloomfield. I grew up on a dairy farm in Carlisle and have a great appreciation for the farming industry. I collect cookbooks (at last count I had 250) and in my spare time I love to bake and cook. I'm always trying something new. Thank you goes out to all my family and friends for being my best food critics over the years.

EVERYONE'S FAVORITE CRAB SPREAD

12 ounces cream cheese
½ cup mayonnaise
2 scallions, chopped
1½ teaspoon Dijon mustard
¾ teaspoon seasoned salt
½ teaspoon horseradish
¼ teaspoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1 (2-ounce) jar diced pimento, drained
2 teaspoons parsley
¾ pound lump crab meat, picked over
Crackers or crisp raw veggies

In medium bowl, combine cream cheese and mayaonnaise. Mix well. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Serve with crackers or raw veggies.

CHERRY COFFEECAKE BARS

1 cup butter
1¼ cups sugar
4 eggs
1½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
3 cups flour
21-ounce can cherry pie filling
Glaze:
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon butter, melted
2 tablespoons milk

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs one at a time. Blend in remaining ingredients except pie filling. Place two-thirds of batter into 13x9-9inch baking pan. Spread pie filling over batter. Drop remaining batter by teaspoonfuls over top of cherries. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes. Cool.

Glaze: combine confectioners' sugar and melted butter. Stir in milk to reach spreading consistency.

This recipe is a favorite of our family. My husband Landis Jr. and I live on a dairy farm south of Quarryville. We have been blessed with three daughters, Kendra, 8; Sharla, 4; and Amanda, 2. I enjoy Lancaster Farming recipe section and look forward to the June recipes.

New Jersey's Number One Newspaper Calls On ADADC

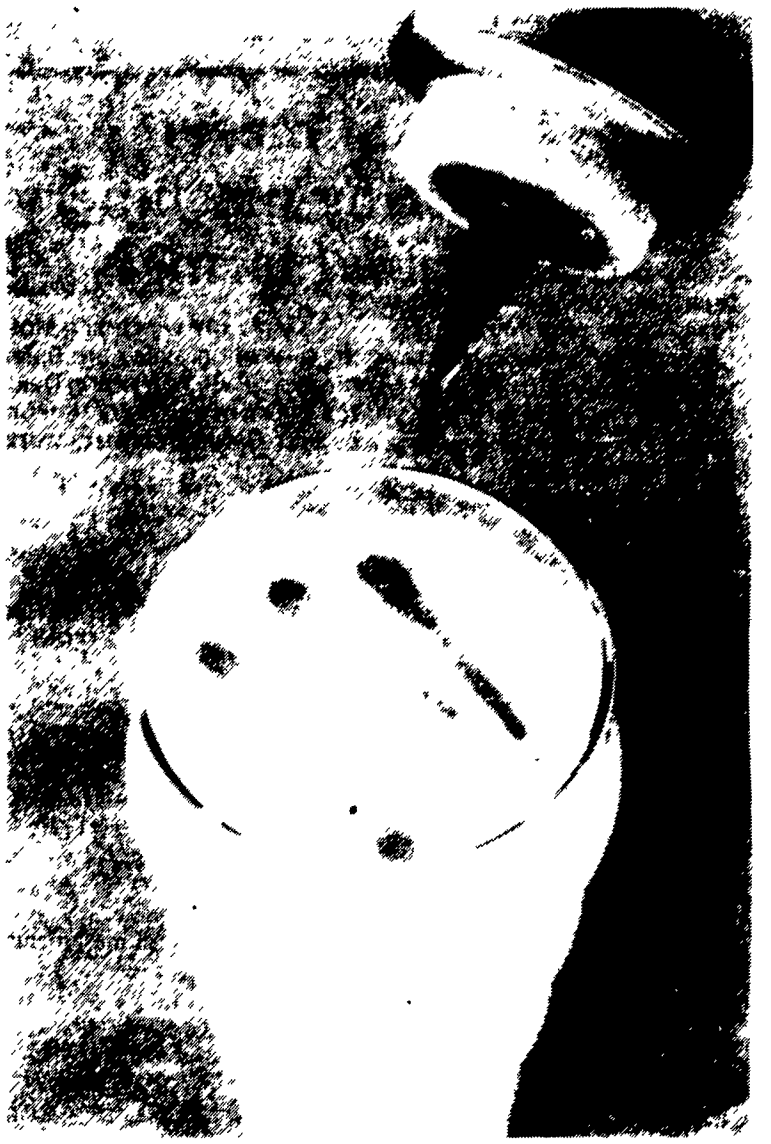
SYRACUSE, NY –When New Jersey's largest daily newspaper had a request from a reader on how to make fresh ricotta cheese, the food editor knew just who to call. The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC), arranged for expert cheese makers from Biazzao Dairy in Ridgefield to share tips and ticks on how to turn a gallon of whole milk into homemade cheese in just 20 minutes.

The full-page story, accompanied by two photos, ran in the April 1st edition, perfect timing for the Easter holiday when consumers utilize great amounts of ricotta and mozzarella in Lenten and Easter meals. In his column the week after the story ran, the Star-Ledger food editor said the only time he received more calls from readers about one of his stories was when he printed a story on how to make fresh mozzarella that ADADC had also arranged a few months before.

ADADC also got News 12 NJ TV to feature Biazzao Dairy on their morning news. Here, millions of New Jersey viewers were taken on site to the cheese facility to see first-hand the steps taken to produce quality, delicious, fresh mozzarella, ricotta, and other italian-style cheeses. This placement was featured in the morning segments, and an additional taped spot on the noon news.

ADADC is an advertising and promotion agency representing dairy farmers in New York, New Jersey, and Northeastern Pennsylvania.

John Lapichino Sr., from Biazzao Dairy Products, demonstrates how to make ricotta cheese in the Star-Ledger's test kitchen while a photographer captures the process for the newspaper's food pages.



One of the professional photos created by ADADC for newspaper food pages showing moms how to keep milk competitive with other beverages by using gourmet flavored syrups in milk to create fabulous for kids.

ADADC Keeps Milk Competitive

SYRACUSE, NY–Per capita, milk consumption among children 6 to 12 years of age has dropped from 30 gallons per year in 1985 to 24.6 gallons per year in 1996, while consumption of flavored ice teas and carbonated drinks has risen. To keep milk competitive with this age group of milk drinkers, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC), has gotten TV anchor persons and newspaper food writers throughout the marketing area to tell moms to make milk more exciting for kids by creating exotic flavors of milk like Raspberry, Peach, Blueberry, and Vanilla.

Flavoring has taken the beverage industry by storm! Snapple has over 45 flavors Even seltzers, bottled waters, and coffees now come in a variety of fruity and nutty flavors. Borrowing a concept from the very profitable coffee industry, ADADC combined gourmet-flavored syrups, traditionally used only to flavor coffee, with milk. The result–just about any flavor a kid could imagine. Moms can feel good about adding flavored syrups to milk as ADADC got the "stamp of approval" on the idea from the American Dietetic Association

The new milk flavoring for kids has been promoted to moms by ADADC on television stations throughout New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, including Buffalo's WKBW-TV (ABC) and WIVB-TV (CBS); Syracuse's WTVH-TV (CBS); Albany's WNYT-TV (NBC), Scranton's WBRE-TV (NBC), and News 12 New Jersey. Albany consumers got a double dose of the flavored milk concept, as the day before the television placement, one to the area's top newspapers, the Troy Record, printed the recipes and photos, including a small color photograph teaser on the paper's front page Other papers such as the Scranton Times and Auburn Citizen have also published parts of the publicity kit.

Susquehanna Sets Pageant

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — The Susquehanna County Dairy Princess Pageant will be held Thursday, June 11 in the Montrose Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m.

A dairy princess and alternates will be selected and a dairy ambassador and dairy maids will be introduced that evening.

Show your appreciation to Stacy Rezykowski who has single-handedly promoted milk and dairy products this past year as Susquehanna County's Dairy Ambassador.

LUCK//NOW MIXER FEEDERS
"P" SERIES

Since 1979 LUCK//NOW Mixer Feeders have been recognized as one of the most dependable and strongest built mixers in the field.

To enhance its existing line of Mixer Feeders, LUCK//NOW introduces the "P" Series of Mixer Feeders with six models ranging in size from the Model 300 with a mixing capacity of 310 cubic ft., to the Model 575 with a mixing capacity of 625 cubic ft.

The Large diameter augers in all the "P" Series Mixer feeders are capable of giving the mix required, from rations with well cured, long stemmed legume-type hay, to mixes with green grass, and mixes with silage and commodities. Better milk production, better weight gains and greatly improved animal health are just some of the results of a finely-tuned feed ration.

Mighty Lite™ Dairy Mat

- A full written 5 Year Warranty that protects you in tie-stall or free stall barns
- USDA approved as hygienic, suitable even for quarantine floors
- Non-abrasive surfacing to protect teats and udders
- Non-absorbent closed cell foam does not support bacterial growth

Proven in Europe for 10 years and in the USA for 2-1/2 years

Far softer than hard rubber...far cleaner than mattresses... far easier to manage and handle than both.

PA DHIA Futures Report To The Members

DAVE SLUSSER
General Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co) – PA DHIA has developed a Strategic Long Range 5 years Plan that is being implemented and adjusted for these fast changing times The Board and Staff reviews the changes in the industry and the needs of our Members every six months, then adjusts and adds to the Strategic Plan You might say our Plan is like a rolling herd average. We are making projections in needs based on a moving target When you project the future you will make mistakes, however with out a vision you will be a victim of change

Our Futures Report includes Product Development, Marketing, Education, Partnering. and Operations In each area you will be able to read a summary of our present and future developments

I. Product Development

Current and new Product Development is a necessary continuing long-term investment The Board's commitment to operate our own Dairy Records Processing Center (DRPC) has given us the opportunity to develop new programs and be innovative. If we depended on others for that service our new program would be tied to that source limiting our innovation and raising our cost

A Heifer 98 is a heifer management program for any one who raises dairy heifers Pictures of the animals can be entered into the program by scanning the picture or with a digital camera It ties into the Holstein Association "Easy" program, PaDHIA's Data Base, PaDHIA's "Heifer Net", and the "Heifer 98" program on your PaDHIA's Technicians laptop

B heifer Net will be a database of members cattle that are available for sale domestically or internationally This data base will be marketed all over the World Heifers, Bulls, Embryos, or Cows will be located by herd code number that meet the buyers specks

C Comprehensive Farm Management Program will include Herd Management, Heifer 98, crop management, and finances The Herd Management program will be available the summer of 1998.

D Complete Mainframe Conversion will be complete in the Fall of 1998. All processing will be done on PC's after that, and the Mainframe will be done

E MUN, True Protein, and the Nitrogen Management Report have been available, however through research being done with New Bolton Center, Penn State and others more information will be available on evaluating your ration program

F. Expanded Lab Services will be available through partnering with other Laboratories and our truck routes

II. Marketing

Marketing has taking new dimensions in recent years due to new product development, competition, expanding markets, and the need for growth PaDHIA has eight competitors Not too many years ago, we had none Our future marketing plans include traditional service, new product, and international.

A. Traditional Service Marketing involves continued programs to help our field technicians learn skills to get new herds on test Our Marketing Manager will spend time with each technician visiting herds to help them get more herds and teaching them how to market themselves A new Owner Sampler program has been developed to meet the needs of a very important market. This will also provide more opportunity for technicians to expand their service.

B New Product Marketing will include advertising, educational meetings, news articles, and display booths at field days and fairs. The new Heifer Program and Herd Management Program will be on the field technicians laptops. They will be using these programs daily therefore they will have a working knowledge of how to use them. Members using these New Programs will be able to ask their technician for help if necessary.

C. International Marketing is a new dimension to DHIA. The dairy industry is growing through the World as people want dairy products. Most of the world's dairymen do not have the management tools provided Pennsylvania dairymen. We are attempting to market our PaDHIA technology in farm management, Lab operations, Data Processing, and efficient high quality milk production. Through the use of Heifer 98, and Heifer Net, we will be able to locate high quality dairy cattle with accurate PaDHIA records for export sales. Then we will back those sales up with instructor, and technology so the foreign buyers can get the efficient production that American Dairy Farmers get.

III. Educational Programs

During the last few years, PaDHIA has conducted educational meeting and seminars for Veterinarians, Nutritionist, Consultants, and Dairy Farmers. This last winter we conducted over 30 meetings with record attendance. The most successful meets were on the use of your MUN information, and your PaDHIA management reports. To meet the increasing educational needs of farm managers, and herd consultants to use DHIA information, PaDHIA will increase our educational programs

A Meetings will be held this coming winter to help Dairymen and their consultants use MUN, True Protein, and our DHIA Reports to be better managers and efficient producers.

B. We will have educational meeting on how to use Heifer 98, and our Herd Management Program. The meetings will include use of the Internet to retrieve PA DHIA Management Information into their new programs, and the use of "Windows 95-98" for which these programs are written.

C Educational visits and meetings will be conducted with herd consultants so they can better use PA DHIA Reports to help our members.

D. An expert will make on farm visits for our members and their consultants who request it, so both understand our management reports and MUN results.

E. Educational meetings will be conducted for PaDHIA Technicians, A.I Technicians, and Milk Company Fieldmen on DHIA management reports and programs

IV. Partnering

Partnering with other cooperatives, farm organizations, private companies, and Universities will provide new services, operating efficiencies, and better educational services.

A. We are working with several Milk Cooperatives with our truck routes to ship payment samples and PaDHIA samples.

B. Two A.I. Cooperatives are working together in sparse cow areas to provide DHIA service and A.I. Service.

C. An Owner Sampler Program was developed for A.I Technicians.

D. We are working with several Universities and private companies in research both in the field and with our Data Base.

E. We are partnering with Penn State, and seeking cooperation with other cooperatives in our International Marketing program.

F. Efforts are being made to work with state and national farmers associations to provide better services as efficiently as possible.

G. Through National DHIA we are urging better cooperation between the DHIAs in America

V. Operations

Major changes have occurred and are occurring in internal operations. This part of the cooperative is less visible but not less in importance.

A. PaDHIA is leasing more equipment rather than owning

NDHIA Scholarship Program Available

National Dairy Herd Improvement Association (NDHIA) is now collecting applications for their annual scholarship. NDHIA began offering these scholarships in 1996 and have since awarded over $13,000 to 27 recipients.

All young adults who's parents are members of a Dairy Herd Improvement Association/Cooperative (producer) or is an employee of such organizations are eligible These scholarships are available to incoming freshmen and currently enrolled students at both four-year and two-year colleges and institutions.

Don't miss your chance to qualify. Applications for the 1999 National DHIA Scholarship Program are available on the Internet at WWW.DHIA.ORG or by contacting Laurie Lancaster at (208) 736-3600. Applications can also be obtained by calling PA DHIA at (800) 344-8378 before September 14, 1998.

Applications received by NDHIA post-marked on or before October 2, 1998 will be considered in their next selection process. All applicants regardless of their current academic level must provide a high school GPA and either an SAT or ACT score.

Pennsylvania DHIA Heifer '98 Program Released

PATRICIA TORETTI

STATE COLLEGE, PA - Spring has been a busy season for the programming staff at Pennsylvania DHIA if the frantic activity underway in the PA DHIA processing center in recent days are any indication. I got a chance to speak to Jim Boyer, Pennsylvania DHIA's processing center manager for a few minutes amid the general chaos as his staff prepares to release PA DHIA's long awaited Heifer '98 farm management program for the Microsoft Windows operating system

"We're extremely excited about this one," Boyer says as he leans back in the clutter of his small office outside State College, "not just because of the program itself – which is one of the most impressive pieces we've put together in the time that I've been here – but more because of all the different programs and new software technology that are finally coming together And the kinds of products that will be following along just this one rolls out the door In the offing are a Lab Analyst program targeted at agribusiness consultants, a Windows '95 based overhaul of the DHIA technicians' barnsheet, and a farm management program that will be the jewel in the crown

It's not that I want to steal any thunder from the Heifer '98 program," Boyer says. "But we really have engineered this one to inter-operate with a complete software system. I think in terms of the kinds of programs that are presently available to farm managers and ag consultants we've made an effort to insure that the new suite of programs we're offering this year will be different both philosophically and operationally than anything that's been offered in the DHIA arena in the past"

"First, our price point will be different You look at the offerings from other DHIA centers and it's clear that they're primarily designated to guarantee a steady revenue stream into the central processing location, and guarantee a continual flow of records there, too That's not our outlook, and frankly, it's not the outlook of anybody in the serious software business anymore It's just old thinking We will not charge $20 or $30 or $40 per month - month after month - forever Our software will be sold according to the accepted practice a one time fee to buy the license. Period We will charge for upgrades, but if people don't want to buy a new version, they won't have to That's the standard practice in the software industry And our software will be affordable – we will charge $29 (one time) to a PA DHIA member, and $49 (on time) to a non-member for Heifer '98 There will not be any hidden costs, and there will not be any monthly licensing fees, per cow fees, or requirements that they must use our processing.

"Second, our intention is that our system will be open, both to the consumer and the developer. Neither our heifer program nor our new lab program (lab*Analyst)* will have a requirement that you even need to be on DHIA test at all in order to use them Certainly we will offer steep discounts to members of PA DHIA, and certainly you will be able to benefit from information technology much more if you are on test with DHIA. But the software is not geared toward keeping a captive audience using our processing center.

"When I say that the software will be open to the developer, I mean that, too. All of our components will use industry standard databases instead of proprietary implementations. And all of our databases will be documented so that if a dairyman or his wife or children have some experience using the industry standard database software such as Microsoft Access or Corel Paradox, they will also be able to customize this program to whatever level their skill allows We will document how to do that, and we will support people who want to do that kind of thing I challenge anybody to produce a software program in the DHIA system right now that allows you to actually take the fields out of a DHIA report and plunk them down into a spreadsheet or a word processor, as is They simply aren't designed to function with anyone else's software, and they really aren't designed to allow you to do any amount of tailoring – especially outside of the vendor's program itself Getting data out in more than a couple of pretty standard ways is like pulling teeth Compared to the ease of integration or data movement of Windows '95 programs, what DHIA farm programs have offered in the past are a joke"

"Third, our programs for farm management will be a suite, and while the package will be well integrated and there will be some advantages to buying the whole thing, you won't have to if you're only raising heifers, then just buy the heifer program. If all you want is some MUN or SCC analysis in addition to the raw numbers that come back from your lab, then you can buy the lab*Analyst* module, and nothing else"

Deflecting Boyer from the Big Picture is difficult, but eventually I nail him down on some specifics of what Heifer '98 will offer. It will have features that replace the existing Heifer Management Program that DHIA has run on paper for about 10 years. These include: user defined health, repro, and status codes, events, action reports, stocks inventory reports sorted on a variety of criteria, growth and anticipated freshening data and genetic summaries. In addition the new program will offer the ability to produce reports, charts and graphs on the fly, and will have a number of powerful data entry features that make repetitive keypunching simpler and less error-prone "Our target user for data entry was a DHIA technician slaving over a keyboard with 35-45 herds. If we can make life a little easier for that group, it should make data entry much more tolerable for those who only have one herd to deal with." Does that mean PA DHIA's technicians will carry the new program? "Absolutely," Boyer responds "Every one If a farmer decides to have a DHIA technician run the program for him on his behalf instead of buying it and operating it on his own, that's a benefit of DHIA membership"

An ancillary benefit of that, according to Boyer, is that technicians and dairymen will be able to trade data diskettes and share help and program tips

There will also be some goodies in the new program for the more traditional DHIA member with registered cattle, including the ability to export calves to the Holstein Associations E-Z program, or to register calves electronically using "sketchless" ID options from both the Jersey and Holstein registry associations In addition, the new program has the ability to record and catalog calves by digital picture identification

"Pictures?" I ask, a little surprised. "You mean like with a digital camera?"

"Yes, pictures" He replies, "this seems to be the thing that grabs everybody, when we take the program out to shows, and so on. The timing between this and the advent of digital cameras has led a lot of other folks to ask your very question But really there are at least three different ways you would be able to use this program with photographic images Digital cameras, of course Or just a good old 35 mm camera with a color scanner that you can buy for $150 or less A third option take the pictures from a 35 mm roll of film and have your developer put the images on diskette instead of paper or slides In fact the last option is the one I would recommend as being cost effective for most people With he latest Kodak 800 speed 'Max' film you can take pictures of young animals in lower light conditions than is possible with a digital camera Digital photography is coming, and it is convenient, but I'd say the mainstream cost and quality are still a good two years away"

Boyer also notes that the program will be fully Internet capable, making it possible for a dairyman to upload backups of his calves and even in-house generated reports, graphs, and (of course) pictures, if he so desires He will also be able to specify that he wants 'prettier' versions of the printed reports available for sale, display, or other marketing purposes simply by making an online request that the report or barncard be printed in State College "Actually, although PA DHIA was the first to see the importance of the Internet in our business, and though we're still miles ahead of other processing centers in the exploitation of this technology, the terminology has become a pet peeve of mine A lot of people keep referring to the Heifer '98 program as HeiferNet HeiferNet is N-O-T Heifer '98 HeiferNet is an add-on product that would allow people to connect to buyers via the Internet In the HeiferNet service, a prospective buyer would request, say, 500 Heifers In addition, he might specify that they should be bred and confirmed pregnant, or have a minimum parent average PTA for protein, or whatever Making that information available from farmers already using our Heifer '98 program would be automatic – for any who chooses to participate. But this service would be a natural addition for people already using Heifer '98 And again, let's emphasize flexibility. Nobody would be required to buy into HeiferNet just because he owned Heifer '98

What else is on tap for the DRPC in the next couple of months? Stay tuned.

Employees' Summer Conference

SCOTT WILLIAMS
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) – During a recent PA DHIA field staff meeting plans for the Annual Employees' Summer Conference were finalized. The agenda is packed with interesting information for both field technicians and office staff as well as an awards ceremony to recognize our outstanding employees for 1998. This year's conference will emphasize our new heifer program and the upcoming cow module David Bigelow, our new marketing manager, will present some of his ideas for improving customer service and technicians skills Another speaker will enlighten everyone on ways to handle stress not only on the job but also in everyday life.

The summer conference is a fun and educational time for technicians and employees We try to encourage all employees to attend so they can partake in the fun and fellowship with technicians from all parts of the state This year the conference will be held in Grantville, Pennsylvania at the end of June

Marketing and Customer Service Takes Priority

DAVID BIGELOW
Marketing Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co) – An aggressive marketing program has been launched and is proving to be highly successful judging by the amount of new herds that are being enrolled throughout the PA DHIA service area With the availability of a newly priced USDA approved Owner Sampler program as well as the customary 2X and AM/PM programs, new member enlistment has increased at a near record pace

Recently at the spring technician's conferences, emphasis was placed on excellent customer service PA DHIA technicians remain committed to providing top notch service to their dairymen These services include same-day test reports, tagged calves, updating calf books, and reporting any other pertinent information PA DHIA technicians will be servicing and providing herd management information in a more aggressive manner in the future

Do you really feel that your herd management needs are being met satisfactorily through another DHIA organization? PA DHIA has an industry best of 83% usable records being used for genetic evaluations by the USDA This greatly affects the young sire programs and the ability to merchandise cattle both domestically and worldwide PA DHIA members own a full service DHIA that includes field, processing, and laboratory services which is extremely helpful in making quick adjustments within each program By utilizing the PA DHIA somatic cell report a dairyman can drop one SCC Code (4 to 3) and increase profits by $2,400.00 per year based on 50 cows and $12 00 cwt. milk price. Reducing the calving interval from 14 to 13 months increases profits by $4,500 00 Reducing breeding services per cow from 2 2 to 1 7 will save $250 00 per year in semen cost alone using $10 00 per unit semen

PA DHIA provides the most up-to-date and accurate dairy management programs in the country Please feel free to contact the PA DHIA office at 800-344-8378 if we can assist you with the interpretation of your records of if you would like to enroll in our testing programs

Fine Tuning With MUN Testing

DAVID BIGELOW
Marketing Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co) – Reproductive health and the balance of the ration are two of the most affected areas when the milk urea nitrogen averages fall out of the recommended criteria Are your average days to first service below 75 days? Keep in mind, days open over 100 days costs the dairyman anywhere from 1 to 3 dollars a day per animal Does your calving interval fall between the range of 12.5 to 12 8 months? Is your first service conception rate 50% or greater? Improvement of estrous detection from 40 to 50% at 50% conception means a net profit of $34.00/cow/year and a 50 to 60% estrous detection at 50% conception means a net profit of $22 00/cow/year Are you culling more than 25% of total animals culled due to reproduction? If so, the milk urea nitrogen test from PA DHIA may be able to assist you with your total dairy herd management

Feel free to contact Dean Amick at 800-344-8378 if you have any questions or would like a representative to stop by your farm to explain your records or begin a testing program

Post-Breeding Heat Detection Critical To Efficient Reproductive Management

MICHAEL O'CONNER
Dairy and Animal Science Extension, PSU

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co) – The initial goal of a heat detection program should be that 80% of the cows receive their first insemination within 20 days of the voluntary waiting period (UWP) If the UWP is 50 days, then 80% of the cows should be identified in estrus and inseminated by 70 days Since more dairy herds are using estrous synchronization programs to induce estrus near the targeted UWP, the pre-breeding estrous detection rate prior to first breeding has improved The next goal should be to detect at least 70% of the cows in heat that failed to conceive by the time of the pregnancy examination (35 to 45 days) This is termed post-breeding estrous detection rate

Embryonic death (ED) is a major cause of repeat breeding However, no matter what the cause, most of embryonic death occurs before day 16 post insemination and almost all cases occur before day 42 Thus those cows that experience ED should have at lease one opportunity to express estrus before the anticipated pregnancy examination

Too often when timed breeding programs (insemination by appointment) are discussed and promoted, emphasis is placed on the fact that heat detection is discussed and promoted, emphasis is placed on the fact that heat detection is eliminated. That may be true for the initial insemination. However, for those that use the Dvsynch synchronization program which involves a series of injections of GnRH-prostaglandin-GnRH and timed breeding at a prescribed time, heat detection must be intense post insemination so that a high percentage of the return heats are detected early Minimizing or ignoring heat detection between the timed insemination and pregnancy exam will be costly since time to report breeding for those cows that failed to conceive is delayed.

Post-breeding estrous detection whether following a synchronization program or routine visual observation for heat is a critical element of the total reproductive management An excessive number of days can be lost if return heats are not detected early.

Central Milk Testing Lab Services

DIXIE BURRIS
Laboratory Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co) – Whether you're a dairy producer or processor, Central Milk Testing Laboratory Service is ready to perform services in a prompt, timely and cost effective manner Our certified, technical, and professional staff prides itself on attention to detail, consistent quality service and personalized programs that will meet your needs With extensive sample transport system that DHIA offers, our custom reporting and data file transfer systems we are able to give you excellent turnaround time

Our customized service is competitively priced, quick and efficient and offers electronic or printed reporting Our transportation service with our multiple truck routes and extended hours adds to our prompt service Custom reporting and data transfer service can be send via fax, mail, diskette or electronic bulletin board or express delivery tested as well as an average for the herd The herd and lactation data supplied can be used to help dairymen and feed consultant with their feed adjustments True protein is an anoth-

The qualified staff, licensed with the PA Department of Agriculture, gives us the edge on excellence for producer samples and accents our member samples with an extra touch of QC

The Central Milk Testing Laboratory is located in central Pennsylvania, which makes us easy to access from the entire state. We pick up samples everyday and test samples from 6 00 am to 10 00 pm six days a week PA DHIA can be found on Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802 (home of the Penn State Nittany Lions) and you can reach us by calling 814-865-1517 or 800-DHI-TEST (800-344-8378)

Since the start of MUN testing, we have analyzed over a million and half samples We continue to maintain a high percentage of our members testing and using the Milk Urea Nitrogen Testing as a Management Tool As an added value, we also have an excellent report titled "PA DHIA Nitrogen Management Report" which offers summaries by location, days in lactation, groups and averages for all components er component that enhances our MUN test at no additional charge to our members testing for MUN

Our DHIA continue to be a source of information and educational material to Penn State University, University of Pennsylvania, Vo-Ag instructors, County Extension Agents, breed associations, NAAB and USDA We pride ourselves on our commitment to Quality, Integrity, Reliability and Accuracy

Futures Report

it Cars, trucks, computers, and testing equipment are being considered We are using Farm Credit Leasing presently for over the road vehicles This will provide most capital for program development and education

B A New software package has been leased to update our Finance Department.

C. A Safety Committee has been appointed to lessen accidents by employees on the farm, on the highway, and in the Lab

D The next staff Long Range Planning Meeting the fall of 1998 will include second level management personnel

VI. Conclusion

The dairy industry is changing, however, progressive minded dairymen and cooperatives will prosper weather they are large or small Our purpose is to serve our members, and we can do that better by working with other organizations that those dairymen also own. PaDHIA will grow with the dairy industry and be a catalysis for that growth.

SAP Sample Analysis Program

DIXIE BURRIS
Laboratory Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co) – The Sample Analysis Program (SAP) continues to be a popular program with dairies today Many methods already exist for keeping on-farm records accurate and convenient At DHIA we recognize that all programs are not for everyone We realize that our members do not need a system that offers accurate, up-to-date records in order to make intelligent management decisions for their herds and cows This program allows dairymen to merge their farm programs with our component results, giving them a more complete idea of what is happening with their individual cows and herd

In response to developing management systems, PA DHIA has developed an inexpensive program to supply the missing link Many dairy herds, including the commercial management farm, use the SAP program Dairymen need to have a quick way to detect their somatic cell cows and PA DHIA offers the information they need to make feed adjustments using the component results Interested dairymen may have their herd or an individual cow(s) tested for butterfat & protein, somatic cell count, MUN, true protein, lactose or a combination of these components. Dairymen do not need to have a PA DHIA technician take the sample, they can take it themselves. These programs are priced accordingly and the samples can be dropped off at any of our truck stops around the state or brought directly to our lab

Herds that operate with electronic systems to keep track of daily milk weights can use this program to enhance their data collection with component results The SAP program can be an added value because it helps the dairymen make changes to their feeding programs It also serves as a way for them to monitor the Somatic Cell Count on specific cows as well as their herds Many dairies use this program as a way to improve milk quality and thus qualify for a higher milk premium Veterinarians use this information to identify mastitic cows. This test can assist our members by pinpointing

- Lost production due to subclinical (hidden) infections
- Improper milking procedures
- Milking equipment malfunction
- Percent & level of involvement in the herd
- Cows to culture for identification of bacterial cause

Our SAP program continues to help many dairies by supplying them with component results. For more information or to enroll in this program, please contact PA DHIA at 800-344-8378.

New Owner Sampler Program Adds Flexibility

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) – USDA has approved an owner sampler program as part of the farm record management system available through PA DHIA. Dairymen that participate in young sire programs can benefit greatly while maintaining a low cost and accurate testing program For only 84 cents per cow plus a stop charge fee, a PA DHIA technician will deliver and pickup all testing equipment Free, tailor made reports are available immediately to the dairymen enabling them to make quick and effective management decisions Included in these same-day test reports are vet action reports that document future actions such as cows to dry off, pregnancy check, breed and freshening dates These reports are beneficial to have available during herd visits by a veterinarian or consultant and can be important time savers.

PA DHIA currently has an industry high of 83% useable records being utilized by USDA They are invaluable when participating in young sire programs as well as maintaining an optimum dairy herd management record program. Don't miss out on these programs? Sign up today on a low cost testing program. The award-winning lab at PA DHIA offers fat, protein and somatic cell analysis for owner sampler herds while offering milk urea nitrogen analysis at a low additional fee Finished processed reports available are barn sheets, herd summary I or II, monthly lactation reports, individual cow page each lactation, herd and cow certificates and monthly invoicing.

Don't delay Call Dean Amick at 1-800-344-8378 and begins a PA DHIA testing program

Change, Change, Change And More Change

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — You have heard it before, and I will tell you again. Expect change to happen. It is happening on your farm and is happening in Agri-business, too. DHIA programs are no different. Remember, change is inevitable, happiness is optional. This is nothing new, though. I am sure you can look back and see many major changes in your lifetime that have been a benefit to your livelihood.

I am writing this because we see it happening all the time. Over the years DHIA's role on the farm has changed but not as drastically as it has in the last few years, or like it will in the next few years. Today, my discussions with dairy farmers center around the use of the information they receive from their Milk Urea Nitrogen and Somatic Cell Count tests more than butterfat or protein test results. Tests like MUN are becoming more interesting to farmers, especially, when you hear the testimonies from dairy farmers who increased their profitability $500 or more per cow per year.

I agree with those who predict that MUN testing will be a component of milk quality payments. If not that, the true protein (a derivative of the MUN test) will be the basis of milk pricing. MUN is connected with many functions of the dairy cow, everything from animal health, reproduction, nutrition and total milk production. This is one more tool to tell us how the cow functions and how she produces milk.

MUN is just one step into the future of what DHIA testing can tell dairy farmers about their cows. What is next, what else can we test for in milk? We know that milk quality standards are going to become more stirngent. Consumers are asking for higher quality food. Besides Somatic Cell and MUN what other component of the milk may tell us a lot about milk quality.

Let's look into our crystal ball and see what may be 10 or 20 years down the road.

What is going to be different in the world of DHIA? Will we test for antibodies in a milk sample to identify animals with the onset of diseases? Will we test your cattle for genetic markers to identify the genetic value of that animal? Whatever the future holds it is necessary to be proactive and not reactive.

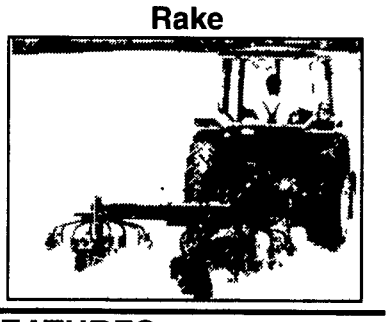
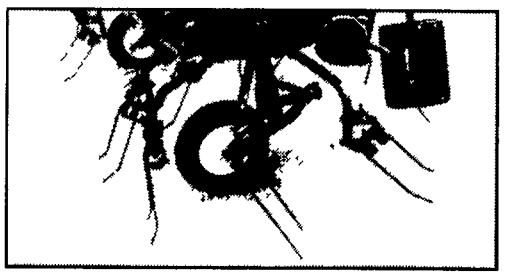
Rake

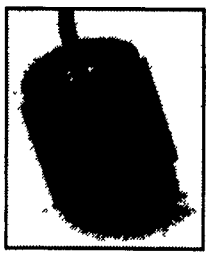


UNIQUE FEATURES GOOD ADAPTION TO GROUND CONDITIONS



The wheels of the machine have been positioned with the shortest possible distance between them and the front rake tines An even and steady performance, with good clean raking can be achieved under all conditions

UNIQUE SWATH ROLLERS



JF's patented swath rollers form a perfect swath for baler or forage harvesters The swath rollers are free to float and therefore always follow the contours of the field, so you have a rapid flow of work without stopping The rollers are of course, adjustable for various swath widths

OPTIMUM SECURITY OF SPRING TINES

Clamp A retains the spring tine if it should brake, protecting the forage harvester or baler from damage

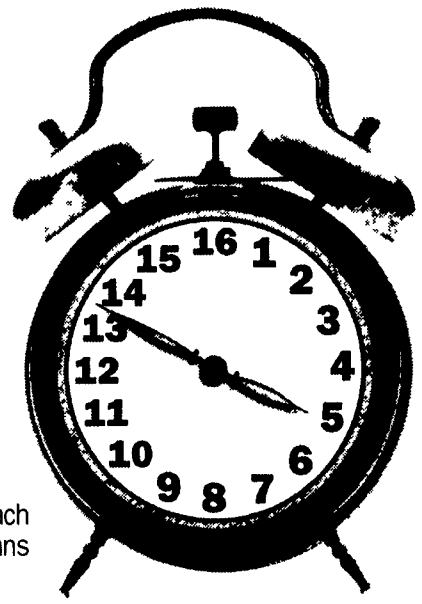
ITS LIKE HAVING EXTRA HOURS EACH DAY.



A Case-IH Axial Flow Combine from Hoober, Inc. gives a farmer the most precious commodity of all during harvest season... time. That's because Case-IH combines have a unique rotor design which enables you to harvest in wet conditions... so you harvest longer each day. Dew in the field keeps conventional combines in the barn because a combine with straw walkers can't handle wet conditions. And, more hours in the field each day, for the entire harvesting season, means greater productivity and profit for you.

WHY HOOBER... (3 BIG REASONS)

1. Since Hoober, Inc. sells the most combines, we can offer the best finance deals.

2. Our staff has the knowledge to put you in a Case-IH combine that's right for your size operation and can customize your new combine to your crop and field conditions.

3. Hoober's revolutionary UPTIME SERVICE concept ensures peak efficiency for years to come.

Visit Hoober, Inc. and get the best combine in the business backed by the best support team in the business.

Oh, by the way . . .

40% MORE PRODUCTIVITY, 5% MORE MONEY

DO THE MATH . . .

- Productivity In All Conditions At A Great Price
- Perfect For Any Size Operation
- Wider Feeder, Bigger Rotor, Larger Cleaning & Separating Area Makes It Better On Hillsides
- Wider Wheel-Base For Stability
- Better In Wet Conditions Than Combines With Cylinder & Concaves
- More Horse Power Drives A Larger Rotor & Provides High Capacity & Efficient Operation
- Larger Rotor & Feeder Lets You Harvest 40% Faster Than With A Smaller Rotor Combine With The Same Size Head
- Larger Grain Tank Means You Can Run Longer

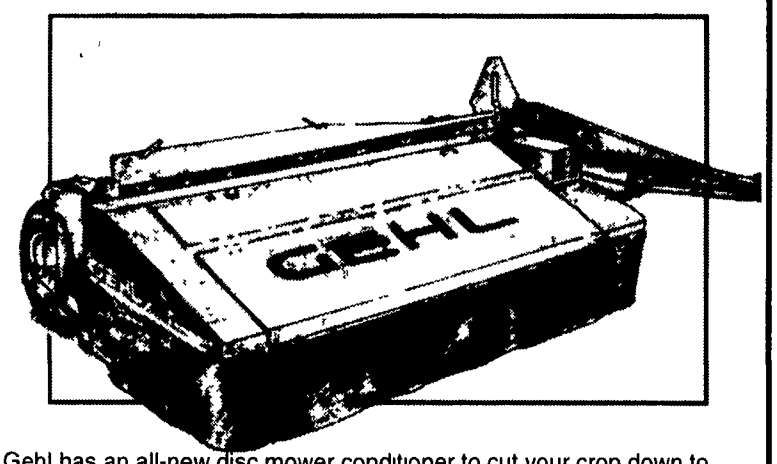
New! COST CUTTERS



Gehl has an all-new disc mower conditioner to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The D2345 has 6 discs and a 9 ft 2 in cutting width

- High speed discs - Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions, the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life
- Sturdy frame - Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability.
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer
- Standard hydraulic tongue - Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat

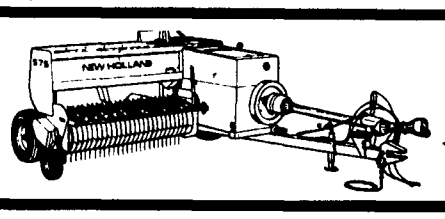
SPECIAL OF THE WEEK

On Used Haybines and Balers

"Priced To Go!"



1 FARM EQUIPMENT

New Holland lets you bale wet or dry

If you want to make hay, straw or silage, look no further than the New Holland Model 644 Silage Special round baler. The "644" is filled with features you demand so you can bale the way you want:

- Bale-Slice™ option (on Fastnet™ mode) cuts the crop as the bale is being formed so it's easier to feed or grind
- Wide, floating pickup for large windrows
- Endless belts for added durability in tough crops

Stop in today and start rounding up your fields.

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve Dale and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms Lowville NY

Mr Farney is talking about mixing 11.5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'fluffs' the ration"

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs , and they have a higher protein test as well They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor

3000 Reel Auggie TMR Mixers
Now available in seven sizes
with capacities from 147 to 600 cubic feet

PASTURE PLEASER®
Tye's proven 4-step NoTill Seeding System lets you move quickly through tough NoTill conditions, planting a full 5' or 7' in each pass.
A big self-cleaning 2 bu/ft grain box feeds our exclusive internal flute seeders to assure gentle, accurate seed metering. And the HD coulters and Double-Disc Row Units provide positive seed placement. Add these features to versatile options like legume, native grass and fertilizer attachments, and you've got a quality performer in pastures, haylands and field crops.

Both Pasture Pleaser® and Autorest Paratill® in stock now.

AN UNSTOPPABLE COMBINATION: PARATILL WITH AUTORESET
AUTORESET PARATILL®
Tye' Paratills automatic hydraulic reset makes deep soil loosening smoother than ever.
There's no stopping as Paratill breaks up soil compaction and plow pans in a single pass without destroying residue The patented 45° angled leg gently lifts the soil and allows it to fracture along its natural planes of weakness. This promotes deeper water infiltration and improved root growth for healthier, drought-resistant crops.
Spring-Loaded Coulter Flexes To Clear Stones And Stumps
Replaceable Steel Shins To Protect The Leg
Patented Reversible Point For Increased Life
Adjustable Shatterplate
Heavy-duty spring loaded coulters, rugged "V" frame and category III hitch are all standard on 4,5, or 6 leg models.

Customize Your Bales

Without Paying Extra

Variable Chamber Balers Let You Make The Call.

If you demand a smaller hay package and a baler that's easy to operate, the New Idea® 4643 (4'x3') and 4644 (4'x4') are for you Thanks to the variable bale size, you can customize bales to fit your operation And each model creates bales that range from 30 to over 50 inches in diameter

With so much diversity, you'll only bale the size you need Their low-profile, full-width pick-up glides easily over fields, catching every stem The pickup height can be easily adjusted

For more details on the versatile 4643 and 4644 round balers, visit your AGCO® New Idea dealer today

Westfalia Autorotor Carousel Parlor

Others may claim more experience in rotary parlors, but no one can match the speed, labor savings and reliability of the revolutionary Westfalia Autorotor Carousel parlor.

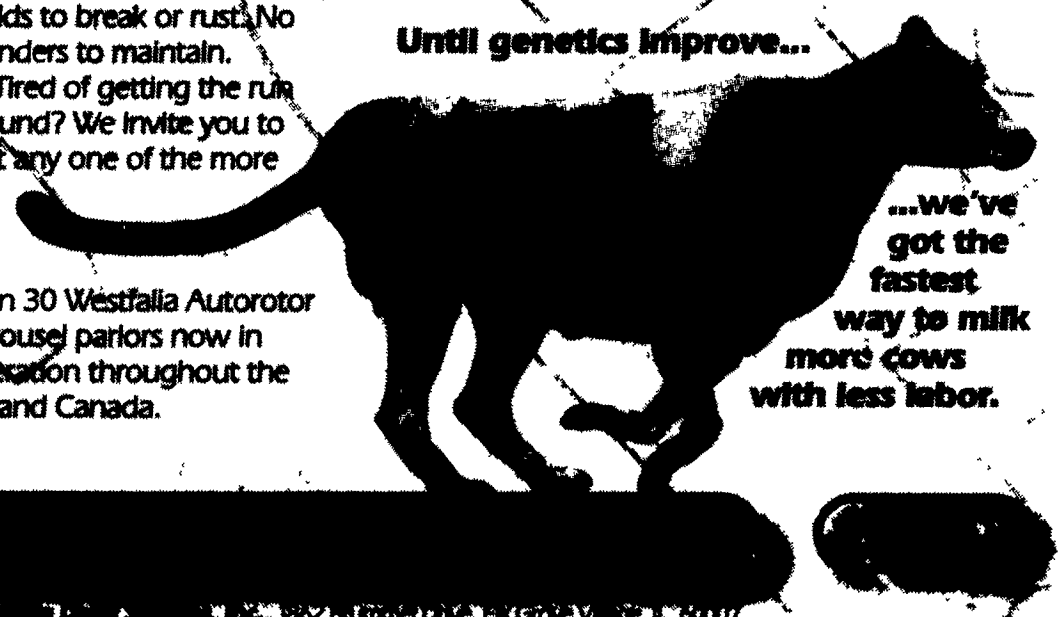
Faster: A typical Autorotor installation is 20 to 30 percent more efficient than a similar size conventional parlor.

More reliable: Unlike older design rotary parlors, Westfalia uses a rugged, yet simple design that features a concrete platform that rotates on a heavy-duty long-life roller carriage. There are fewer moving parts; no bearings or pivots to wear out and replace; no assembly welds to break or rust. No cylinders to maintain.

Tired of getting the run around? We invite you to visit any one of the more than 30 Westfalia Autorotor Carousel parlors now in operation throughout the US and Canada.

For more information and the location of the nearest Autorotor, contact your Westfalia Sales Center or call 1-800-323-6723.

Until genetics improve...



...we've got the fastest way to milk more cows with less labor.

Premium Beef Conducts First Stockholder Meeting

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — U.S. Premium Beef, Ltd. (USPB) conducted its first annual stockholder meeting on May 20 in Garden City, Kan.

USPB stockholders heard an update on the company's year-to-date performance and also elected the company's first permanent board of directors.

"Since December 1, when USPB began operations, we've continued to improve both our program and our cattle as our members have received individual carcass data on their cattle," Steve Hunt, USPB CEO, told attendees. During that time USPB bought more than $133 million worth of cattle and paid out more than $1 million in premiums on approximately 195,000 head of cattle.

"In spite of the market challenges, our program has worked as we hoped and believed it would," Hunt said. "In the coming months and years, as the market conditions return to more normal levels and USPB members breed, buy, and produce cattle designed for our grid and consumer markets, our program and premiums paid out will grow."

In the first six months of operation, USPB's interim board of directors made several improvements designed to encourage members to produce the right quality of cattle to earn the highest return from those cattle. "Specifically, we increased our transportation credit from $.50 to $.55 per cwt., introduced a forward contract, removed the discounts on yield grade 1 and 2 carcasses, lowered the heavy and light carcass discounts, and developed an unbranded hides premium," Hunt said.

"We are encouraged that our members have earned significant premiums on a quality-based grid in spite of the narrow Choice/Select spread the industry has faced for most of this year," he said. "Tracking our premiums on a weekly basis has been encouraging. We've seen significant improvement since we began operations on December 1, which we believe is due to producers getting individual animal carcass data (at no charge) on their cattle and making changes based on that knowledge.

"In fact, our best week of premiums paid on all USPB cattle was in early May when our premiums averaged $17.23 per head," Hunt noted. "During that week the top 25 percent of our cattle earned $34.45 per head over the cash market and the middle 50 percent earned an $18.69 per head premium to cash. Overall the top 25 percent of our cattle have averaged $24.21 per head over the cash market and the middle 50 percent were $7.28 per head over cash.

"It's important to remember that we're stil in the infancy of our development process," Hunt reminded USPB stockholders. "It's easy to overlook what we have in USPB. We own a successful beef company with branded labels in place. We market our cattle on a competitive grid when they're ready and receive carcass data at no charge. We get a transportation credit to get them to the plants. And we have a staff in place to help improve the quality of cattle you deliver to USPB. There will be more exciting developments in the coming year which we believe will more consistently reward USPB members for producing higher quality beef."

Pasture Walk June 17

FREDERICK, Md. — A Frederick County Pasture Walk is scheduled Wednesday, June 17 from 10 a.m.-noon at Holterholm Farms on Holter Road.

Pasture walks show livestock producers how rotational grazing can increase agricultural profitability. Discussions will include "The Grazing Wedge" and the economics of rotational grazing systems, as well as plant growth information for the 1998 season will also be available.

This is the fourth year of grazing for Holterholm Farms. The dairy herd consists of 57 Holsteins, 25 Jerseys, and two crossbreeds. The entire 200-acre farm is seeded to permanent pasture. The herd is milked seasonally, with the dry period running from late December until mid February.

A variety of perennial grasses is established, including orchardgrass, fescue, ryegrass, prairie grass, and reed canarygrass. In addition, white clover, red clover, alfalfa, and chicory are used across the farm. Water is available in every paddock and an all-weather cow lane was installed in 1996 using several different geotextile fabrics.

For more information, contact Stanley W. Fultz, extension agent, dairy science at (301) 694-1594 ext. 3578 or sf28@umail.umd.edu.

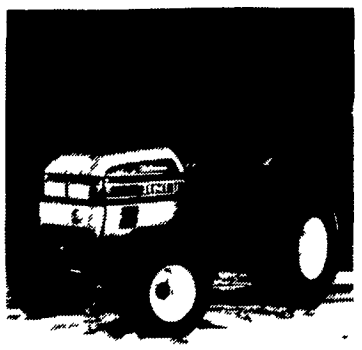
Hürlimann Enters U.S. Tractor Market



Prince tractors are light weight with less soil compaction for lawn, turf, and orchard use, while its streamlined, rounded contours reduce harmful contact with trees and shrubs.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — A complete line of technologically advanced tractors from Hürlimann is available to U.S. farmers.

Offered by Amatex Inc. — the U.S. marketing and distribution arm for Hurlimann — this new line is powered with engines from 25 to 190 horsepower, and a PTO horsepower range of 23 to 170. Amatex is establishing dealerships throughout the country and is offering a two-year, unlimited-hour warranty with every tractor.

"Hürlimann is one of Europe's oldest, premier tractor lines with a history of being a leader in innovative features," said Robert E. Eckhardt, national sales manager for Amatex. Hurlimann is part of the SAME Deutz-Fahr Group, the world's first manufacturer to install diesel engines in agricultural tractors, the first to establish "load sensing" on a 3-point hitch, the first to mass produce 4-wheel drive agricultural tractors, and the first to install 4-wheel brakes, he noted.

"Hurlimann tractors feature quality, dependability, and innovative technology in a tractor line that is flexible and productive, as demanded by today's farmers," said Eckhardt. "Its engineering puts equal importance on maximum performance, driver comfort and convenience. Plus unique features — lower fuel consumption for more productive field hours per tank of fuel, a spiral air intake that reduces pollutants in the exhaust gas, and a lighter tractor weight for less oil compaction — provide both energy efficiency and environmental advantages."

The Hürlimann line includes the following tractor series designed to fit any agricultural application:

• The Hurlimann XE Series, with models 305 XE (50 hp engine), and 306 XE (60 hp). These economical, year-round chore tractors have air-cooled, long-life engines; low fuel consumption; and a smooth-shifting 12-forward/12-reverse synchromesh transmission in 2-wheel and 4-wheel-drive versions.

• Hurlimann XA Series, with models XA 606 (60 hp) and XA 607 (70 hp). The XA Series is an innovative yet practical tractor with compact dimensions, and excellent handling and driveability. The XA features a low-profile design, steering angle of 55 degrees (on 4-wheel-drive version) and completely flat deck with optional low-profile cab.

• The Hürlimann XT Series, with models XT 908 (85 hp), XT 909 (95 hp)and XT 910.6 (105 hp). Four-cylinder modular engines with a torque rise of 30 percent offer controlled power for precision work in the field with the XT 908 and XT 909. The top-level XT 910.6 has added flexibility with a six-cylinder power unit and abundant power and torque at crankshaft speeds from 1,400 to 2,500 rpm.

This series also features a "full-drive" transmission with 45 forward and 45 reverse speeds and an optional deluxe soundproof cab for driver comfort.

• The Hurlimann Elite Series, with models XB 6115 (115 hp) and XB 6135 (132 hp). This series is known for its maximum performance, matchless driver comfort, and low energy consumption and maintenance. A computerized performance monitor gives the operator updates on operating conditions while the flexible and versatile six-cylinder engine produces 90-percent maximum output at only 1,850 rpm with a generous torque rise.

• The Hürlimann Master Series, with models 6165 (165 hp) and 6190 (190 hp). These six-cylinder tractors are a new combination of power, performance and comfort. Highlights include the exclusive "SBA" auto system that manages the operation of the front axle and the locking of the front and rear differentials, saving time while reducing operator fatigue, tire wear and fuel consumption. In addition, the Master series has the best power-to-weight ratio in the industry. It offers a "twin vision" system that displays operation and implement data on a monitor in front of the operator, greatly redueing the need to twist and look back at work in progress.

Celebration of the 20th anniversary of the founding of J&J Agri-Products, friends of the company got together in a June Dairy Month promotion theme. As shown here, many people got into the act.

J&J Agri-Products Celebrates 20th Year

DILLSBURG (York Co.) — J&J Agri-Products & Services founded in 1978 by former Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture James McHale and his wife Jane M. Alexander, former deputy secretary of agriculture, is celebrating its 20th year of formulating and distributing environmentally safe and economical products to farmers, gardeners, greenhouses, and golf courses.

Jim and Jane, during their years in state government, became aware of the increasing problems of farmers with their use of chemicals: pollution of water supplies, soil erosion, and increasing input costs. Working with people in the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and farmers throughout the United States, they learned about alternative programs and practices being developed.

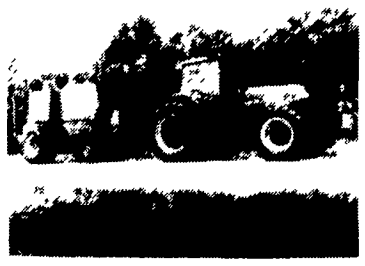
In the past 20 years, J&J has developed a complete line of products that would aid the environment, be safe and beneficial to the farmer and the soil, and satisfy this growing need.

June is Dairy Month, a time to honor dairy farmers, businesses, government, and schools for their contributions to making and keeping Pennsylvania a leader in the dairy industry. To aid in the celebration, Rutter's Dairy brought Guernseys "Bubbles" and calf "Sugar" and Curtis Day of Shippensburg brought Holsteins Tri-Day Adeen II and Tri-Day Stardom Kitten. The Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission provided the large "Got Milk" glass shown in the photo.

Also joining in the celebration and representing the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture was Deputy Secretary Christian Hen who spoke of the work of the department in expanding markets and developing programs to benefit Pennsylvania farmers. The Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess and York County Dairy Princess along with the present and future presidents of the Gilford Pinchot Chapter of FFA, ag teacher Mark McCullough, and Dr. Donald Bell, principal of Northern High School, represented the youth and agricultural educational programs.

Several representatives of the business community, Farmer's Union, Milk Marketing Board, and Land O'Lakes Co-Op joined local dairy farmers in the program and luncheon that followed at the J&J facility.

Case Introduces Baler



The new Case IH 8590 is the largest square baler in the industry. Its 46.5 x 50-inch bale chamber produces bales up to nine feet long and 2,200 pounds in weight.

RACINE, Wis. – The new Case IH 8590 square baler's 46.5- x 50-inch bale chamber produces bales up to nine feet long and up to 2,200 pounds in weight.

"The Case IH 8590 baler is designed and built the the special needs of the large-volume hay producer in mind," said Bruce Spidle, Case IH's livestock production systems product manager. "The 8590 retains the best features of the Case IH 8580 baler and contains a number of upgraded features to improve overall performance.

A second lift cylinder and additional reinforcements have been added to the wide, low profile pickup, to give superior durability and performance. The flywheel has been replaced with an improved design made with stronger ductile iron material.

Plus, the bale length stop mechanism provides added customer convenience and more accurate settings with a new easy to use crank adjustment.

Bob Lane, livestock production systems application specialist, said "There are many upgrades that are difficult to see when just looking at the baler. More durable parts and improved designs on the pickup, the bale forming mechanism, the drive assembly and the hydraulic systems have increased the durability, reliability and performance of the baler.

The 8590 baler uses a double knotter system and a prepack chamber with an intermittent stuffer, pioneered by the same engineers who designed the 8580. These core features supplemented by the new improvements set new standards for productivity, durability, and reliability in the large-baler market.

For even more productivity, the 8581 accumulator is designed to work with the 8590 and 8580. This system is a convenient and economical package that will reduce the number of trips across the field to retrieve bales.

David Livermore

MoorMan's Hires Sales Rep

BLUFFTON, Ind. –Moor Man's Inc., a division of ADM and a leading manufacturer of livestock feeds and premixes announced the hiring of David Livermore as an area sales representative for the south central Pennsylvania area.

Livermore is a 1983 graduate of Penn State with a degree in dairy production. He has worked in the feed industry for a number of years. He will be assigned to the south central area, which includes Franklin, Cumberland, Fulton, and Adams counties, where he will head MoorMan's sales team.

Wenger Receives Scholarship

MYERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) – Joshua Larry Wenger, son of Larry and Becky Wenger, was recently awarded a $500 scholarship from the National Tractor Parts Dealer Association.

Joshua is attending Goldey-Beacom College and is pursuing a bachelor's degree in accounting.

The National Tractor Parts Dealer Association (NTPDA) is a trade association serving the agricultural and industrial industries with members throughout the United States and Canada. The NTPDA awards scholarships yearly to members, members' employees and their families based on academic achievement, extra curricular and community activities, and leadership abilities. Joshua's sponsor is Wengers of Myerstown.

ROTO-MIX IV FEED MIXERS

A Better Way To Mix Feed!

Roto-Mix IV Brings the freshness of the field to your hay ration.

- Only 2 Augers with one-half to two-thirds less flighting
- Rotor is equipped with spring tension bars which relieve pressure and eliminate wedging.
- Extra heavy, small diameter wall auger tubes give maximum life with less maintenance.
- Patented tumble design allows easier pulling and mixer action.

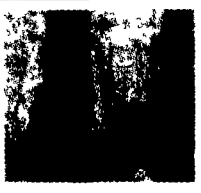
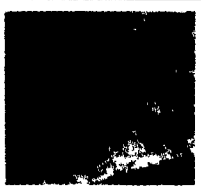
WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical



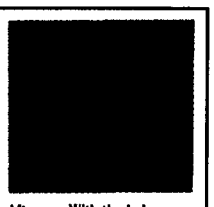
Before The silo's interior with plaster damaged and stave exposed



After The surface is reconditioned, and a new, thick tough surface will protect stored feed.

REPAIRS HOLES:
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface

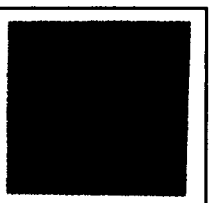
Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall



After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made. quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original

Before The bottom part of the stave's are completely worn away



After The ShotCrete System repairs and replaces the missing structure

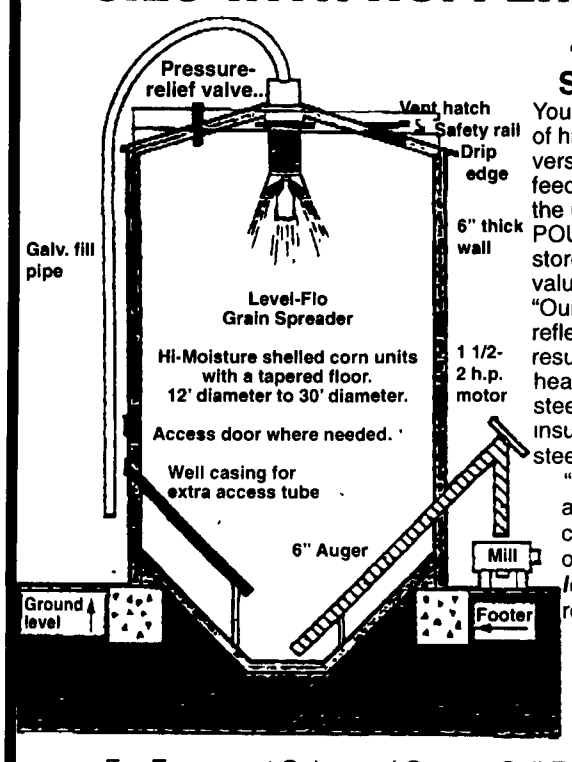
HI-MOISTURE SHELLED CORN SILO WITH HOPPER FLOOR



"Hi-Moisture Shelled Corn"

You know the advantages of hi-moisture shelled corn versus dry corn for animal feeding. So now consider the many advantages of POURED CONCRETE to store and protect your valuable grain.

"Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel."

"Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to prefab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement."

"PROTECT YOUR CORN FROM THE HEAT"

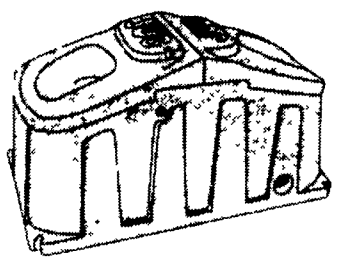
Cleanest waterer ever invented!

Self-cleaning
The JUG is designed so that debris and feed are sucked up from the feed trap in the bowl with each watering, debris won't foul the water

Low-maintenance
Light-tight design so that algae and odors won't build-up in the JUG's interior

Animals adapt easily
The JUG is designed so that animals, even calves, can suck water naturally, no balls or flaps to get in the way

The JUG



Choose 1, 2 or 4 bowl, energy-free, or energy-efficient models.
Meets requirements for dairy approval.

The JUG is manufactured by Edstrom Industries which has 25 years experience designing watering devices for animals

The remarkable new Millcreek Row Mulcher automates application of mulch and compost to any row crop.

Apply compost and organic mulch to any row crop automatically

The versatile Millcreek Row Mulcher makes different sized mulch beds as you need, from 18' to 48" wide, from 1/2" to 10' deep A mulching program can help you produce a healthier crop while reducing pesticide requirements

From tree fruit to vegetable beds, from bramble crops to vineyards, organic mulch and compost can reduce chemical input for weed suppression, retain soil moisture, and improve soil fertility by adding organic matter to sandy and clay soils

Now Millcreek eliminates the costly labor needed for organic mulch and compost application The remarkable new Millcreek Row Mulcher works with all types of organic material, and even lets you adjust the depth and width of the mulch rows

Starting under $5000, no other machine compares when it comes to capabilities, versatility, and cost effectiveness Rugged construction Five sizes, from 3 4 to 13 cubic yard capacity Custom designs Call today for a free color brochure, or to discuss your specific needs

Dairy Situation And Outlook

May 20,1998
By Bob Cropp
Dairy Marketing and Policy Specialist
University of Wisconsin Cooperative Extension

April milk production for the 20 reporting states was up 1.0% compared to a year ago, the net result of 0.4% fewer milk cows and 1.5% more milk per cow. Parts of the southwest and west experienced rather poor milk production per cow due to adverse wet and warm weather.

California experienced an actual decline from a year ago in its production, down .9%. Although California had 3.7% more milk cows, milk per cow was down 4.5%. This is the second month in a row poor milk production per cow resulted in a reduction in California's milk production.

Compared to a year ago, California experienced a 8% decline in its March milk production. Because of California's significance cheese production, reports of California production problems was part of the reason for added strength in the cheese market. On the CME, 40 pound cheddar blocks, after falling from $1.35 a pound on April 2 to $1 18 per pound on April 30, a decline of $ 17 per pound, prices increased $ 03 per pound on May 4 and another $.02 per pound of May 14 where the price was back to $1 23 per pound What happens in the coming weeks in California is critical to cheese prices and the BFP price for the immediate months. Wet weather not only has caused herd health problems and less milk per cow for California, it has reduced the quality the hay being harvested.

In the southwest, Arizona continues to experience less milk production than a year ago. April's production was down 3 2% because 2.3% more milk cows was more than offset with 5.1% less milk per cow. Although milk per cow was up just 1 5% for New Mexico, 7 0% more milk cows resulted in 8 6% more milk Texas had a slight increase in milk per cow, up 0.7%, but with 3.6% fewer milk cows, milk production was down 3.0%.

In the northwest, Idaho continues to expand milk production, up 11.9% from a year ago in April. Idaho's cow numbers were 7.5% higher, and unlike California's decline in milk per cow, milk per cow was up 3.8%. Washington, however, had 1.5% fewer milk cows and wet weather meant no change in milk per cow.

The southeast continues to experience less milk production due mainly to fewer milk cows, except for Florida, where cow numbers were unchanged in April from a year ago, but milk per cow was down 3.8%. April production was down 3.8% for Florida, 3.6% for Missouri, and 4.8% for Kentucky. Despite Florida having less milk than a year ago, its spring flush still meant that it had much more milk than it needed for Class I needs. Florida had been shipping out of state as much as

100 loads of surplus milk each week Not until this past week has these shipments about stopped as their milk production has started to fall off seasonally

Milk production in the northeast is a mixed bag. Pennsylvania continues to do rather well. Its April production was up 4.8% due to 0 5% fewer milk cows, but 5.2% more milk per cow. The neighboring state of New York, however, experience a 0 4% decline in milk production because a decline of 0.7% in milk per cow more than offset a few more milk cows, 0.3%

Ohio had 1.3% more milk due to excellent milk per cow, up 5.2%. But the decline milk cow numbers more than offset increases in milk per cow in Michigan, resulting in 0.7% less milk production.

Both Minnesota and Wisconsin have less milk cows than a year ago, down respectively, 3.4% and 1.9%. But favorable weather has meant excellent milk per cow, being up 3.0% for Minnesota and 3.8% for Wisconsin. The net result was that Minnesota's April milk production was down slightly, 0.5% while it was up 1.8% for Wisconsin.

As already indicated, cheese prices took a major down turn in April resulting a $0.80 per hundredweight decline in the BFP to $12.01. The April BFP was still $0.57 above April a year ago. Earlier predictions were that the May BFP could drop below $11.00. But, with CME cheese prices increasing $.05 per pound over the past two weeks and butter prices taking big jump on April 25, Grade AA up $0.145 per pound, Grade A up $0.1475, and Grade B up $0.14, along with this April milk production report, the May BFP should stay above $11.00. My estimate is $11.10 per hundredweight May BFP. However, it is the NASS survey 40 pound cheddar block price and not the CME price that is used to adjust the BFP. For the first two weeks in May, the NASS 40 pound cheddar cheese price declined $0.077 per pound. In fact, for 12 consecutive weeks the NASS price has declined. The NASS cheddar barrel price declined for 11 consecutive weeks. But with the strength in the CME, and if these prices hold for the next two weeks, NASS prices should also show some strength over the remainder of AMay. Therefore, I will stick with a May BFP of $11.10. The May BFP a year ago had fallen to alow of $10.70.

The May BFP should be the low for the year with increases starting in June. This increase really depends upon the weather. Weather will affect the corn, soybean, hay and other feed prices as well as how well cows milk during the summer.

With favorable weather, feed prices will remain below a year ago and with milk prices still above year ago levels, the milk feed price ratio is also improved, which is conducive to better milk production. Assuming favorable weather, the BFP will not peak as high as a year ago.

In fact, last year the BFP increased from June through December, peaking at $13.29. This year the BFP may peak around $12.70 to $12.80 in October. The BFP futures are a little higher than this for now. But there is a lot of cheese around, and with favorable milk production its is hard to see a BFP much higher than $12.80. But, if El Nino produces hot and dry weather in the corn belt, and California and other western states also continue experience unfavorable weather, prices could be higher.

But as for now, predictions are still for a bumper corn and soybean crop, an excellent hay supply and favorable summer weather for good milk production per cow. Thus, a BFP below a year ago for the last quarter of this year.

Cooperative Resources International Reviews 1997 Achievements

OHIO, NEW YORK, WISCONSIN — Mid-March was a busy time for CDI subsidiaries. During that time, each subsidiary held its annual meeting and CRI conducted three annual meetings, one each in Ohio, New York, and Wisconsin.

CRI Chief Executive Officer Tom Lyon, in his annual address, reported that 1997 was "a stable year which provided the opportunity for more extensive strategic planning and the measuring of our progress against Board-adopted objectives." Lyon also told the more than 500 delegates who attended the three sessions that the newly-adopted CRI mission statement will guide the organization's decision-making for the foreseeable future. "We have made progress strategically toward making the mission statement a living and working statement," Lyon emphasized.

An example Lyon cited of the product strength offered by CRI was the February USDA sire summaries. "The February competitive price analysis indicates CRI to be very strong in the genetic value-to-price relationship," he said.

Lyon also commented on the consolidation of CRI's international activities, saying the "joint ventures with the Dutch, French and New Zealand continue to mature. We have every reason to believe that, in 1998, Holland Genetics and CRI will become strategically more closely aligned through embryo sales, sire housing and beef programming," he added.

Referring to the U.S. dairy industry, Lyon said, ". . . in the total scheme of our nation and world's economy, we must recognize we are relatively inconsequential, and begin to break down the barriers of individualism, pride, positin and short-term fixes for cooperation, coordination and integration, making the best use of the dairy farmer dollar. Our global leadership is being challenged and we must realize that global competitiveness is not just a distant possibility — it's here."

President's Address

In his final report as CRI Board president, Donald "Skip" Jensen, Penn Yan, N.Y., reflected on his more than 20 years of serving Genex members. Jensen retired from the Genex and CRI boards after he and his family decided on a career change and sold their dairy herd and farm last fall.

Jensen was instrumental in the formation of Genex and also worked closely with the Noba and 21st Century Genetics boards of directors. "My emphasis has always been to work together and help improve the lives of all dairy producers," he said. Commenting on the formation of Genex and its subsequent entry into CRI, Jensen emphasized the positives of the merger, saying, "We have one of the strongest sire lineups in the industry today and offer more choices in products and services to our members than ever before."

Noba Highlights

Working toward a common mission was the themem of the 1998 Noba Annual Meeting. The format of the Noba/CRI Annual Meeting was changed, opening more time for discussion among the delegates, directors and management. The event started the evening of Wednesday, March 18, with dinner and a presentation by Dr. Bruce Anderson of Cornell University. With down-to-earth humor, Anderson set the tone for the meeting, relating the trends of agricultural cooperatives today and considerations for a viable future. "So what is the future of cooperatives?" he asked. "I think it is very bright, but there are things they must do." Anderson's suggestions for future viability included more aggressive strategies and communication of these strategies to members, greater emphasis on sales growth, and an attitude more like a business enterprise than a political organization.

The evening concluded with a message from Hap Allen, Noba/CRI vice president of operations, who presented Noba's "yardstick of progress" in 1997. Allen gave high marks to Noba's addition of service programs and field staff to help dairy and beef producers maximize their profitability.

The next morning, delegates and Noba/CRI staff brainstormed in small groups to develop solutions for value-added cooperative membership, creative marketing strategies, on-farm utilization of data and technology, and elimination of the herd bull.

"For the past five years, the Noba Board of Directors and staff have worked to ensure that Noba operates as a true cooperative," Noba President Palmer Steiner stated in his address. "Most importantly, the 1996 cooperative profits were returned to the membership through patronage. This was the first year since 1954 that patronage had been returned to the Noba membership, and several members have voiced their appreciation to employees and directors."

At the conclusion of his speech, President Steiner thanked the 1997 Noba Board of Directors and welcomed Larry Alexander, Big Prairie, Ohio, as a new director. Alexander represents members in District 4, includiong eastern and southern Ohio counties. He is no stranger to Noba, having served on the board of directors from 1974 to 1986. Alexander manages Hyland Acres, where he and his family milk 210 Registered Jerseys and farm 500 acres.

Following the meeteings, the board elected its 1998 officer team. Elected president was Bud Butcher, a dairyman from Senoia, Ga., beginning his second term on the board. Vice president is John Kronemeyer, a dairy producer from Pickford, Mich. Marvin Topp of New Bremen, Ohio, was re-elected board secretary. Also serving as Noba directors in 1998 are Larry Alexander, Big Prairie, Ohio; Jim Crocker, Valley City, Ohio; Jeff Hoepf, Tiffin, Ohio; Herby D. Lutz, Chester, S.C.; Myron Moyer, Greens Fork, Ind.; and Palmer Steiner, Apple Creek, Ohio. Representing Noba on the CRI Board will be President Butcher.

Genex Highlights

At the Genex annual meeting, Dave Hileman, Tyrone, Pa., was elected president to succeed Skip Jensen. The new vice president is Joseph Greenbacker, Durham, Conn., and Lanny Conerly, Kentwood, La., was re-elected secretary. Hileman, Greenbacker and Conerly, along with Alfred Wanner Jr., Narvon, Pa. will represent Genex on the CRI Board of Directors.

The other Genex/CRI board members are: Jacques Couture, Westfield, Vt.; Paul Greene, Berlin, N.Y.; Earl Fuhrman, Hanover, Pa.; Lee Kummer, Evans City, Pa.; John Fogler, Exeter, Maine; Hugh Humphreys, New Hartford, N.Y.; Charles Slade, Homer, N.Y.; and Ron Totten, Strafford, N.Y.

The Genex/CRI Board voted to accept areas of Tennessee as membership territory for the cooperative following last year's addition of Virginia and the non-member counties of West Virginia.

21st Century Highlights

Approximately 300 delegates, directors, employees and friends of 21st Century Genetics attended the annual meeting in Eau Claire. With the board being downsized from 15 to nine directors, delegates met in regional caucuses and elected the following men as directors: Randy Holewinski, Seymour, Wis.; John Ruedinger, Van Dyne, Wis.; David Watkins, Moscow, Iowa; Bob Prahl, Wausau, Wis.; Walt Wyttenbach, Kasson, Minn.; Cal Mullen, Rice Lake, Wis.; Steve Anderson, Foley, Minn.; Duane Nelson, Winthrop, Minn.; and Alan Haugdahl, Henning, Minn.

In the board reorganization meeting, Ruedinger was elected president, Watkins first vice president, Anderson second vice president and Mullen secretary. Ruedinger, Watkins and Anderson will represent 21st Century on the CRI Board.

Doug Wilson, chief operating officer for 21st Century and Noba, told the 21st Century delegate body that the cooperative's role in the CRI structure is to operate in a responsible way and take to the membership a product, program and service which fulfills the new Mission Statement. With CRI sampling 270 Holstein sires and 50 colored breed sires each year, along with affiliations and contracts with Holland Genetics and LIC in New Zealand, Wilson said, "No other membership in the U.S. is investing as much in genetic selection pressure."

Wilson also commented on the amount of information dairy producers have available for sire selection. "There is absolutely information overload," he said, "and the real issue is losing sight of real economic values and heritability of traits as people put together an incredible range of genetic recipes.

"USDA's Net Merit Index is the best starting point for over 95 percent of our dairy producers," Wilson continued. "And the best method of sorting reliable bull proofs is the "S" (stud sampled) code."

CRI has just announced its MVP sire program, encouraging producers to use sires that are stud sampled and in the 80th percentile for Net Merit. These sires, designated as MVP (Maximum Value and Profitability) sires, "will become a household word within CRI membership," Wilson stated.

Another area of emphasis for the cooperative is in the area of beef. "This organization has made excellent progress in sire selection, marketing growth and increasing general awareness of beef programming," Wilson stated. "However, it is clear to me we must stretch our beef investment and commitment," he added.

The third area Wilson discussed was what he called his "biggest industry concern." It deals with genetic education. "If people do not recognize the highest return on all annual operating costs is genetics — if people do not realize the difference in bulk tank yield from using high versus low active sires — and, if people will not differentiate genetics in their buying habits, we have invested too much in product development," Wilson stated.

21st Century Sales And Service Academy

In 21st Century's annual sales and service academy program, technician James Vierhout, Hull, Iowa, was named this year's technician academy winner. The Academy recognizes technicians for their sales record, market share, accounts receivable, service procedure and records, company loyalty and attitude, and their members' involvement in the sire sampling and corrective mating programs.

Vierhout began his career at 21st Century in 1990. During 1997, he recorded 3,716 first services, sold 6,165 units of semen and achieved 50 percent market share in his area. Regional Sales Manager Mark Jensen said of Jim: "He always maintains a cheerful attitude and always has time to help members solve breeding problems. Large herd members especially appreciate his high conception rate and professional technical expertise."

The other four Academy finalists were Mark Apenhorst, Chatfield, Minn.; Brad Beckman, Faribault, Minn.; Steve Holschbach, Oostburg, Wis. and Kurt Jochimsen, Edgar, Wis. Apenhorst has been a technician since 1985. He increased first services in his area by over 400 last year and currently has 56 percent market penetration. Beckman began his AI careeer in 1987 and now has an amazing 86 percent market share in his area. Holschbach is in his sixth year as a technician and recorded 5,782 first services in 1997. Since he began his AI career, his market share has increased from 55 percent to 77 percent. Jochimsen has been a technician for over 20 years and recorded over 4,200 first services in 1997. His market share is 52 percent.

Lancaster Chamber, Oregon Dairy Host Family Dairy Days

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Wagon rides, a straw maze, a coloring contest, and ice cream samples are just a few of the free activities set for Family Dairy Days, June 16-18 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The community event, to be held at Oregon Dairy on Rt. 272 just east of Lancaster, will feature wagon rides to the farm and an educational tour of the barn and milking facility. Those who attend the event around 3:30 in the afternoon will also be able to watch the milking process. There will be free samples of ice cream and milk. Several agriculture organizations and area businesses will have exhibits at the event.

Family Dairy Days features several activities that children are sure to enjoy. There will be a straw tunnel for children to explore and they are welcome to pet the calves and climb onto the tractors and the other farm equipment that will be on display. Children can also participate in a coloring contest.

Oregon Dairy is also sponsoring a chicken barbecue for $2.50. The dinner includes a whole chicken leg, pork and beans, coleslaw, roll, and a drink.

The event is being co-sponsored by the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry to showcase Lancaster's agriculture and to highlight dairy during National Dairy Month.

For more information contact Jim Shirk at the Chamber at (717) 397-3531.

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — "I'm changing to make it better for them," said Doug Hillegass, alluding to his and wife, Debra's children — Desirae, a Pennsylvania State University student, and Justin and Jared, who attend the Berlin High School.

"The kids have a choice about whether to be involved," said Doug.

"If our kids leave the farm," Debra continues, "that's all right, but at least they will know how to work."

The young individuals all say they want very much to be involved — even Desi, a 1997 FFA Keystone Degree recipient whose major, for a teaching vocation, is ag education and minor is dairy animal science.

The siblings compose the fourth generation of Hillegass progeny.

Sixty years of growth began with Doug's grandfather, Daniel Hillegass, and continued with his late father, Glenden and Mother, Geraldine, 79. Their modern house is near the larger farmhouse that Doug's family inhabits.

Although Glenden hauled coal on his truck and shoveled it off himself, in the mid-1940s he and his wife would hand-milk seven cows and do chores prior to his leaving each day.

Gradually, the herd was increased to 21 dairy animals and Geraldine's milking assistant was a lady who they also boarded. The system they used was to begin at opposite ends of the barn and work toward the midldle.

Until the Eisenhower era of the 1950s when Glenden finally bought a John Deere tractor, horses were used for fieldwork and to gather sugar water in maple season. They later supplemented their annual income because they could produce about 500 gallons of maple syrup to sell.

A second farm that Glenden used for a potato operation was purchased in 1969. Twelve acres of spuds that Snyders of Berlin bought for making potato chips were harvested by hand, using burlap bags.

Backdropped by a network of Mountain View Farms' buildings is the Hillegass family. Desirae, Debra, and Jared are in front and Doug and Justin, in back, on a damp and rainy day near Berlin, Somerset County.

More herd growth continued through the 1980s. Doug came aboard full time in 1977 and a third farm was added in 1992.

Mountain View Farms, located near the Routes 31 and 60 intersection at Roxbury (following a recent, major expansion) comfortably accommodates about 350 milking Holsteins.

Ensuring the goals they had set for the Dairy of Distinction were attainable allowed the couple to take the plunge.

"It was the future of our farm, as a farm, to survive," Doug said.

Visiting some of the most futuristic dairy operations in the East, primarily those found in Pennsylvania and New York state, gave Doug and Debra information to ponder and evaluate. Voices of experience advised them about what worked and didn't work in other setups.

Then, too, the family had to consider the natural climactic conditions found in Somerset County's high elevation — which usually mean a shorter growing season for crops.

Doug said more acreage is required because the yield typically will be less than in other areas.

Still, they try to grow the necessary feed themselves.

Primarily, Doug's role is managing the crops and feeding the herd.

To predict futures and to secure contracts for feed and commodities, he relies on a communications system — DTN — and the Internet.

In 1994, plans fell into place for a spacious facility fit to house the entire herd. Finally, the inconvenience of milking 70 cows at home and a newly purchased 36-cow herd, three miles distant at a rented farm, was ended.

By the fall of 1995 the four-row, 220-stall, glu-lam (laminated) barn was completed. It was open in the center for added ventilation and additional cow comfort came from curtains controlled by automatic thermostats kept at 40 degrees.

Designed for cow friendliness, the stalls are good for the most awkward adult bovine, which can easily get up from mattresses filled with shredded rubber.

Mineral boxes are located near all the waterers for free-choice products.

For a year, some 200-plus cows were milked in the old barn, with four switches being made. They had walked about 300 feet and remained outside in holding lots.

Debra, who in 1981 gave up her job as a registered nurse to work full time at the farm, recalled that production was at a standstill. One milking required four men and seven hours of time.

By February 1996, a parlor was under construction. The new double-six Surge Auto-flow was completed that June.

During the three-times-a-day milking, in four and a half hours one man getting his own cows can process some 300 head.

Milk is sold to Galliker's Dairy in Johnstown.

"Milking three times a day has really helped," Doug reported.

Now the herd manager, Debra said the operation employs five full-time workers and one part-time. They are David Keefer, George Kovacs, Charles Ulery, Mike Weimer, Carl Benning, and Morgan Dickey.

"The hired people do milking and you keep them in that position only," she said.

"When our applicants started getting an hourly wage and a time card, that was the key to getting good help," she reported of their success with the hired staff.

"Never turn a good employee away if they want work," is a philosophy the Hillegasses endorse.

"We are totally committed," Debra said. "If I have dinner planned with Doug and a heifer is going to freshen, she comes first.

She oversees the dry cows, springers, and calves, and keeps vaccinations current.

A Somerset County DHIA director, Debra is the breeder of Hill-

A-Way ASTAR Granite and continues to bread for type, production, and index.

After two years at Penn State, Doug began farming full time. Subsequently, he was named the Outstanding Young Farmer Under 30 and the Outstanding Young Farmer Over 30 in both the regional and state competitions and placed first in the Northeast Forage Contest.

On the 600 acres he owns and the 800 that he rents, having ended potato cropping, Doug sows corn on 500 acres, soybeans on 200 acres, alfalfa and mixed grass on 500 acres, new alfalfa seedlings on 150 acres, and barley to be used as grain on 75 acres.

In a 25- by 200-foot bunker silo, haylage is stored at 70 percent moisture. At 45 percent moisture, haylage is also stored in a 25- by 90-foot upright silo.

The bunker where corn silage is stored measures 50 by 200 feet. High moisture shelled corn is stored in a 20- by 80-foot upright.

The former potato barn was renovated to accommodate a bin for storing soybeans. As needed, they are moved to a Brock bin, which augers directly to a roller mill and onto a feed belt.

Bulk mineral is kept in a second Brock bin.

Inside an existing machine building — so feed can be mixed out of the weather — four commodity bays were built.

With about half of them registered and the rest grade, the cows are on a TMR ration that uses corn silage, haylage, bakery, pro-lak, HMSC, chocolate, roasted beans, soybean meal, and minerals.

"Any cow should eat and lay down," said Doug.

And if space allowed for it, Debra would love to see them able to go outside because she believes going outside is good for cows. The size of the herd renders it an impractical idea.

Although he could be content forever on the farm and has a strong bent for mechanical work, Justin, now a high school senior, is unsure that college after graduation — despite the gentle promptings from his folks — is for him.

After their marriage in 1977, about seven years passed before Doug and Debra got a day off from work. They therefore encourage their "farm kids" to embrace every opportunity that offers a new view of the world.

"I encourage the kids to go to college because it makes them well-rounded," their mother said. They hope the kids, even while preserving the farm, won't later allow themselves to be swallowed up by it.

One or two generations from now, his future grandchildren, Doug realizes, will face modernization of outmoded 1990s equipment and methods, regarding them as "old-fashioned" after the new millenium is here.

The kids, who all are FFA and 4-H members involved with ag projects, are learning to observe industry developments.

The youth have shown award-winning dairy animals, participated in dairy judging, speech contests, and won in record bookkeeping. Tractor pulling is a Jared favorite.

Desi helped her dairy bowl team in 1994 to win the state contest and has traveled to Louisville, Ky.

The entire family enjoys tractor pulling contests, especially when they can cheer for their own guys.

Doug and Debra said it was the Lord who brought them together and their love for Him has been the only constant thing in their lives.

Doug said it's strange that despite the farm's growth, he still does many chores that 20 years ago he did for his dad. "I still fix fence, still feed cows, and still do crop work."

"I still feed calves," said Debra, "only more of them. I still pick rock. I wish there were less of them!"

She also helps with milking, is the bookkeeper, and mows the expansive and attractive lawn while the kids, too, fulfill their assigned responsibilities.

Sometimes, according to observations Doug and Debra have made, family farms fall by the wayside because the precious unity of purpose is lost by the family itself.

"We have preached and preached to them (the children) to stay together. They will be all right if they stay together," said Debra. "One can't get it done alone,"

"My goal, said Doug, a Berlin Young Farmer, "is to have this farm set up so that will never be a problem."

Exactly 49 years ago, in 1949, for $12,000, Glenden, who died lastd year, had purchased the original farm from Dan. To make the down payment, he converted the sugar maple tree assets into cash by cutting them for timber.

It really has come a long way in nearly half a century. Going from a tie-stall barn to bunkers was a tremendous adjustment, but it's their life and the cows, therefore, take precedence over other things.

If a cow is mated right, with proper feeding and good herd health, Doug said higher production will come.

"We're all for keeping agriculture in the state and in the county," stated the dairyman.

Training Scheduled For Individual Nutrient Management Planning Certification

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) -If you want to become certified to write your own nutrient management plan, you may want to take advantage of training being offered in Lancaster. The training for individual nutrient management certification has been scheduled for June 23 and June 30 in the basement meeting room of the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster. The training on June 23 is optional and it will cover the topics of soil fertility, crop nutrient requirements, liming, and manure management.

The training on June 30 is required pre-certification training. This training only qualifies for individual certification. The topics covered will include an overview of the nutrient management law, regulations, plan development, required components of a plan, plan submission and implementation, funding, plan amendments and other topics. If one desires commercial certification more detailed training is necessary. This in-depth training will be offered at Penn State June 17 and 18.

The schedule for both days will be registration at 8:30 a.m., training from 9:00-12:00 noon, lunch on your own from 12:00-1:00 p.m., and training from 1:00-4:00 p.m. The certification exam has been scheduled on Thursday July 9.. There is no fee to take the individual nutrient management exam.

If you have any questions call Penn State Extension Agent Leon Ressler at (717)-394-6851.

10 Starting in January 1998, new milk labels were required on all milk sold in the United States Changes were made from the label "2% Lowfat" to "Reduced Fat" and "Skim Milk" to "Fatfree Milk" or "Nonfat Milk." The change from "skim" to "fatfree" was made to inform consumers that fatfree milk is not skimmed of nutrients, just fat It contains all of the nutrients that other milks do

11 In addition to the new labels, cartons of fat free and ½% lowfat milk can now display the American Heart Association's heart-healthy symbol This symbol signifies that these products meet American Heart Association guidelines for fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol

National No-Tillage Week Aug. 9-15

BROOKFIELD, Wis. — Soil erosion is the longest-running environmental concern of farmers. However, for the greater urban population, environmental priorities are often diverted elsewhere.

To recognize farmers who work to "save the soil" and protect our environment, No-Till Farmer is sponsoring "National No-Tillage Week" Aug. 9-15.

"No-till farming improves the short- and long-term economics of farming and protects the soil and water on which we all depend," said Frank Lessiter, editor and published of No-Till Farmer. "Adopting a no-till system depends upon a willingness to change and a deep-down desire to succeed. No-till farmers are true innovators in crop production."

To honor these devoted individuals, No-Till Farmer, a newsletter dedicated to providing no-tillers with solid ideas for improving cropping profits, is offering no-tillers a free "National No-Tillage Week" package that's valued at $17.40. No-tillers will receive a certificate recognizing their contributions to saving the environment, an issue of No-Till Farmer and two special management reports: "Row Cleaners, Zone Tillage, No-Till Coulters" and "177 Super Ideas For Better No-Tilling."

"This informational packet is an example of the need for continued education to spread the growth of no-till," Lessiter said. "With the economic and crop production advantages of no-till, it's just a matter of time before farmers are going to recognize that no-till is the way they're going to have to go."

Lessiter sees this every year at the National No-Tillage Conference, an annual mid-January event cosponsored by No-Till Farmer.

"In roundtable sessions, you'll get a group of veteran no-tillers, and someone will ask a simple question and each person will give a different answer," he said. "Everyone has a little different approach. There is not a single set of guidelines to follow in order to be a successful no-tiller."

For your free National No-Tillage Week package, call No-Till Farmer at (800) 645-8455 or (414) 782-4480. You can also write to No-Till Farmer, P.O. Box 624, Brookfield, WI 53008-0624 or fax: (414) 782-1252 or e-mail: info@lesspub.com. Contact No-Till Farmer for more information on no-till farming or the National No-Tillage Conference, Jan. 21-23, 1999, in St. Louis, Mo.

REAL

28 Consumers spend $69.7 billion per year on dairy products, which is about 10 4 percent of all their food expenditures.

29 Studies show that children who are big milk drinkers tend to have denser bones as adults Bone building occurs primarily during childhood and adolescence, and peak bone mass is reached at about age

30 One pound of butter equals four sticks or two cups or 32 tablespoons

31. What was the first cheese made in America? Cottage cheese. It is speculated that cottage cheese was first made in the galley of the Mayflower Dairy plants began making cottage cheese commercially in 1916.

32. The National Institutes of Health recommends 1,000 milligrams of calcium for the average woman each day. One 8-ounce glass of milk provides about 300 milligrams of calcium.

33. Use low temperatures for a short period of time when melting cheese High heat and long cooking tend to make cheese stringy and tough.

34 Butter has the same number of calories and fat grams as margarine, but butter is much better for baking One serving of each has about 36 calories and 4 grams of fat

35. Cheese will continue to ripen, no matter how carefully it is stored Hard cheeses will generally keep for several months, whereas softer cheeses will keep from one to three weeks after opening.

36. Because salt acts as a preservative, salted butter has a longer shelf life than unsalted butter Unopened, wrapped salted butter may be kept in the freezer until ready to use. The two types are interchangeable in recipes, although many cooks prefer unsalted butter for baking

37. Half-and-half contains 10 to 12 percent milkfat — more than milk and less than cream It can be substituted in recipes calling for light cream, which has at least 18 percent milkfat, but not for heavy cream, which contains at least 36 percent milkfat

38. The first dairy cows came to the "New World" in 1611, helped to end starvation at the Jamestown colony

39 Nearly half (47 percent) of all Americans remember dunking their cookies in milk as a favorite childhood pastime, but as adults, only a quarter (25 percent) partake in the ritual

40. The "sell by" date on a carton of milk is used as a guideline for grocery retailers, and ensures that you are being sold a fresh product. Once you bring milk home, it remains fresh for seven to 10 days beyond the sell by date if refrigerated at 35-40 degrees F.

41. All cheese should be stored at temperatures between 35 and 40 degrees F in tightly wrapped foil or plastic to protect it from drying out. Strong-smelling cheeses, like Limburger, should be kept in a separate container to prevent odors from transferring to other foods.

42. Mold may develop on the surface of cheese, but that doesn't mean the cheese is ruined Most molds are harmless, although some may produce toxins which could penetrate the cheese To be safe, cut away one-half inch of cheese on all sides of any visible mold. Use the remaining cheese as quickly as possible.

43. Milk makes a great natural sports drink. Milk contains the potassium, protein, and carbohydrates that sports drinks have, but it also provides calcium, riboflavin, vitamin D, and other nutrients sports drinks don't offer.

Dairyman Sees Joy In Family Partnership

JINNY WILT
Adams Co. Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Adams County dairy farmer Larry Wilkinson not only has a Dairy of Distinction designation for his farm, Getty Acres, he was just named to receive the county's Clean Water Farm Award.

Wilkinson and wife, Doris, began their farming career at the 300-acre Rentzel Road property in 1977 when they moved from Chester County. Their homestead dates back to the early 1900s. Then in 1985 they bought an additional 85 acres adjacent to their land.

Another 2,300 acres located between their property and Gettysburg is rented, according to son Ed Wilkinson, a partner. The business not only includes the dairy operation, but also produces a large quantity of timothy hay for the mushroom industry in eastern Pennsylvania. Another son, Dan Wilkinson, is also a partner in the business.

For father Larry, the fact that his sons are a part of the operation is most satisfying. He said of all the good things in his life, one that he has a lot of gratitude for is the fact that he was able to have his boys join him in a partnership.

And, Dan adds, because the two young men are partners in the business gives them an incentive to make the farm successful. Always working on the farm, he said, "Before (the partnership), we were just doing a job. Now we have a vested interest."

Do they ever disagree over the farm's operations? Sure, they say, but Dan said, "It brings different views to the situation."

Larry later explained that since each son uses his special talents in the job — Ed is the more mechanically inclined and might fix machinery — the three of them are not working shoulder-to-shoulder, so friction is seldom a factor.

Larry works with the dairy cows, noting that they have a herd of 230 cows with 200 milking at the end of April. They also have 225 head of replacement heifers and 267 head of steers.

A day begins on the farm at 5 a.m. when Larry and another person start milking. They are joined at 6 a.m. by Dan, Ed, son-in-law Chris Smith — Chris and daughter, Debbie, were married at a ceremony by the farm pond on May 23 — and five other employees, who might be full time or part time depending on the season. Ed's wife, Tina, also helps with the milking in addition to helping Doris with the office work. A second milking takes place at 2 p.m. and a third is at 9:45 p.m.

"Only 125 of the high producers are milked three times a day," Ed explained.

What is the major problem facing a dairy farmer today?

Larry responds with a laugh, "Milk prices!" He goes on to explain that while last month the price was up, last fall when it had dropped, it made bill-paying difficult.

Ed said he doesn't think American farmers would be happy with a true milk quota system such as Germany has, "but we should be somewhere in between.

"I know that we can't stand a true open market where you've got real highs and real lows when with dairy production you can't store that product. It's too perishable. You can't hold it in a bin or tank like you can corn or soybeans."

He said he can't solve the problem, and arriving at a solution would be difficult because of the unique situations facing each farmer.

Larry said "Mother Nature plays a lot in this milk production." Last summer's dry, hot weather, and the milk winter have increased the Wilkinson's milk production by three percent. While that doesn't seem like much, when it comes to milk volume, it is a significant. In California, because of the El Nino-produced rains, milk production is down.

Pennsylvania Farmer has designated the farm a Dairy of Distinction.

Hay production, another major part of the operation, helps to feed the animals on Getty Acres. It is also sold as feed. Two tractor-trailers travel many months of the year between the farm and the mushroom industry in Kenent Square, where it is used as mulch.

Larry explained that they usually have a window of one week for good hay-making. But by July 1 the hay is too mature for good feed, and this is what is produced for mulch.

The Wilkinsons were pleased to hear of their selection for the Clean Water Farm Award given by the Adams County Conservation District.

David Kann, Jr., Chesapeake Bay nutrient management technician, said the award was initiated in 1986 to recognize farm operators who are protecting local water quality, and ultimately the Chesapeake Bay, by implementing exemplary farm management practices. Every conservation district in the bay watershed is encouraged to submit an application identifying one farmer in their county who meets criteria regarding soil testing, manure testing, nutrient management, pesticide management, and conservation practices.

Larry first contacted the district for conservation assistance in 1977 and all of the 2,800 acres farmed have conservation plans.

On the tracts owned by Wilkinsons there are 885 feet of diversions 2,187 feet of terraces planted and maintained in grass, 8,700 feet of subsurface drainage (tile), two water control structures, 1,300 feet of underground outlet, 2,480 feet of waterways, and three manure storages.

On the rented acres, Kann said, there are a large number in hay, two water control structures, and 1,050 feet of underground outlet.

On the land, all drainage ways are maintained in grass.

Kann said Larry "has also encouraged others to implement conservation practices on farms."

But should you not want to buy milk, beef, or hay from Getty Acres, you might book a cruise. Doris owns and operates Ocean Holiday, a worldwide cruise-oriented agency located in the farm office. She has been booking and selling cruise vacations for the past 12 years. Early on she worked for an agency in West Chester, but has since taken on her own business.

Son Earl works on the farm, but also is employed off the farm as a pretzel maker.

KUBOTA DEFIES THE LAW OF AVERAGES

Kubota engineers defied all the laws of "average" when they designed Kubota's Grand L and M-Series diesel tractors. Loaded with features, these versatile tractors can tackle your toughest farming tasks.

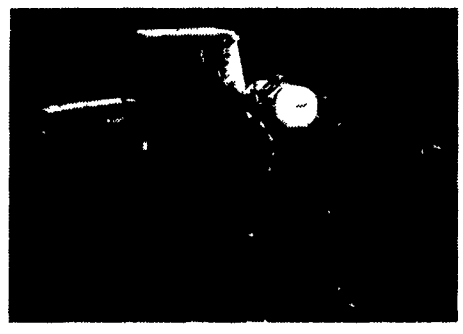
The 2WD and 4WD Grand L-Series generates 25 to 37 PTO horsepower in four compact, state-of-the-art models.

Shift-on-the-go with Kubota's Synchro-shuttle transmission, or choose a GST (Glide Shift Transmission) for 8 speed clutchless operation.

Kubota's M-Series increases your power with two models producing 42 to 50 PTO horsepower. The M-Series 4WD models incorporate Kubota's bevel gear drive for smooth, tight turns.

Both the Grand L and M-Series are powered by Kubota's low noise and vibration E-TVCS diesel engines. These easy maintenance diesels are lean on both fuel and emissions, and are also environmentally friendly. Independent rear PTO and hefty 3-point hitch is standard.

See your Kubota dealer today and let them show you why Kubota's Grand L and M-Series are not your "average" tractor!



Kubota Tractor Corporation markets a full line of tractors through a nationwide network of over 1 000 dealers Financing is available through Kubota Credit Corporation

Ritchey's Dairy Is For Ice Cream Lovers

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — Opening in August of 1941, Ritchey's Dairy has long been known as an ice cream lovers delight.

Now owned and operated by third generation, Oliver C. Ritchey, the dairy is still small and still successful. Oliver's grandfather died in 1963. Oliver's father retired in 1972.

While many dairies have come and gone, Ritchey's is the only dairy in Blair and Bedford counties today which processes milk.

"The dairy business has done a 180-degree turn around," said Ritchey. "When it started, they used to skim the cream from the top and dump the skim milk to the hogs or throw it away.

"Folks still like their rich ice cream and butter, but we have trouble knowing what to do with all the cream. And, we sell mostly 2 percent or no fat milk and chocolate milk."

A diversified dairy operation, Ritchey's was started when Oliver's grandfather was sharing a farm with his brother. One brother wanted to farm and the other wanted to start a dairy, amicably they divided the land.

While they once purchased milk from more than 24 dairies, today they are down to six.

"But we are using the milk of a larger number of cows which produce more milk," Oliver said as he noted another big change in dairying.

During the winter months, nine local schools provide a good business for both regular and chocolate milk.

Ritchey's milk is also sold, by public demand, at the local Giant Eagle, Sheetez, and Riverside stores.

Another good selling product has been a chocolate and vanilla mix for making homemade ice cream. "It goes good during the summer months when churches are having ice cream socials," Ritchey explained.

They are one of the very few dairies left which still does home deliveries.

"We started out with every day deliveries," Oliver said. "Then, during the war it was every other day to save gas, now, it's once a week. But, refrigeration is better and milk is more processed now then it was in the 1940s."

Most deliveries today are to businesses or senior apartment complexes, but there are still a few homes which request the service.

The first dairy in the area to go bulk, Ritchey's usually has plenty of milk for all of its separate areas. "But, if we run short we have a contract with Land O' Lakes to bounce their supply," Ritchey continued.

In the 1960s, Ritcheys offered "Golden Guernsey Milk" and had a contract with the Sollenberger farm to purchase all of their Guernsey product. "Today there aren't many Guernsey farms around and our milk is almost totally Holstein."

Despite their diversification, Ritchey's is best known locally for their smooth, rich, and creamy ice cream.

Using basically the same recipe with which Grandad started, the dairy has 30 flavors although not all are in production at one time.

Oliver thinks their two best sellers are chocolate butter fudge and vanilla.

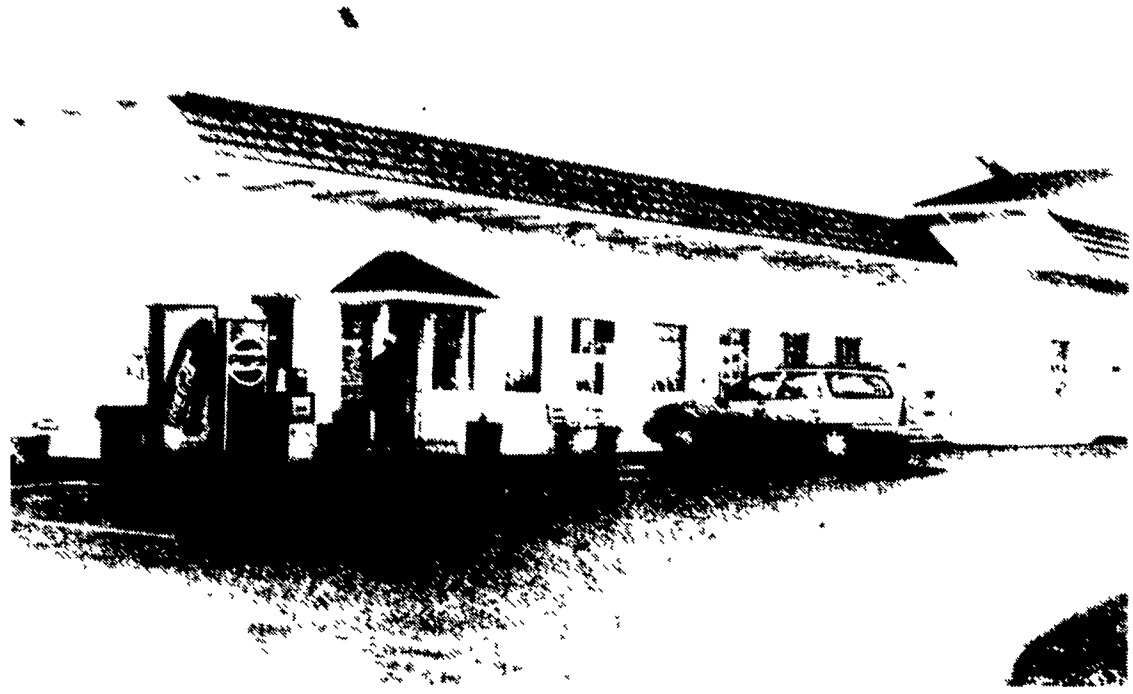
The parking lot and small store area are jammed on a hot summer night with ice cream lovers savoring the various flavors.

Ed's Steak House, the Spring House Restaurant, Ivystone, Mrs. G's, and Happy Hollow are among the restaurants in the area which offer Ritchey's ice cream for dessert.

"Not keeping all our eggs in one basket has helped us to remain intact," Oliver noted.

The biggest problem facing the dairy today is finding good employees who are willing to work some of the crazy hours the

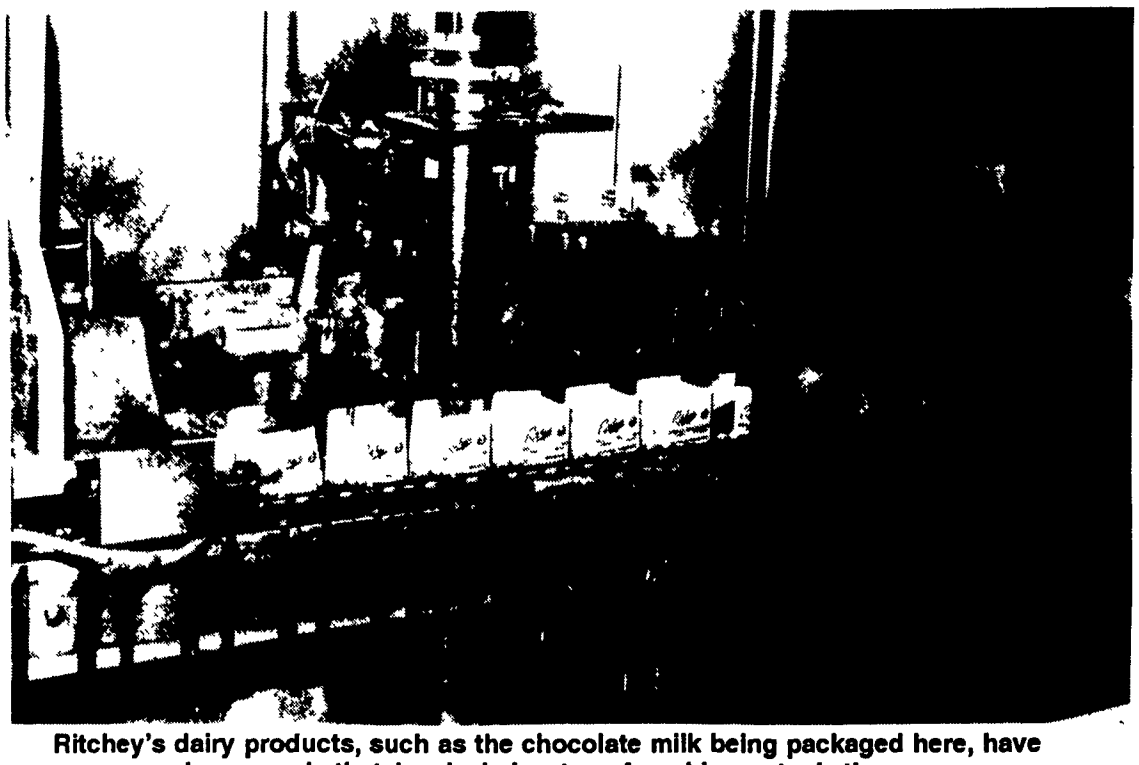
(Turn to Page E15)



Ritchey's Dairy is a landmark in Martinsburg, where area families have been going for years to buy ice cream and fresh dairy products. It now processes bulk milk, ice cream and different products.

Onsite sales, distribution through local retail chain groceries, and sales to schools are part of the marketing strategy for Ritchey's Dairy. Cory Hall packs chocolate milk into crates for delivery to schools.

The third generation of Ritcheys to run the family dairy business, Oliver C. Ritch ey mans the office desk. It is the last milk-processing dairy in Blair and Bedford counties.



Ritchey's dairy products, such as the chocolate milk being packaged here, have proven popular enough that local chain store franchises stock them.

Carol Ebersole and Emily Closson work at the ice cream counter at Ritchey's Dairy, a third generation family dairy business.

U.S. Senate Ag Committee Solicits Testimony

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Livestock producers will finally get their day before the U.S. Senate Agriculture Committee.

Urged by farm groups and Midwestern senators to hold a hearing, Senate Committee Chairman Richard Luger, R-Ind., has scheduled June 10 for his committee to hear testimony on low livestock prices and market concentration in the livestock processing sector.

"Two weeks ago, National Farmers Union (NFU) joined the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Cattlemen's Beef Association in requesting that a hearing be held on livestock market opportunities for U.S. producers," said NFU President Leland Swenson.

"We are glad that Chairman Lugar has responded to the dire straits of many of the nation's producers of livestock."

The request made April 17, by NFU and the other two organizations, asked that the Senate Agriculture Committee explore a wide spectrum of issues impacting livestock prices. A letter sent to Lugar asked that the hearings address the need for better price reporting, country-of-origin meat labeling, export sales information, market concentration, expansion of trade opportunities and the impact of the Asian financial crisis on livestock prices.

"Concentration in the livestock industry is one of the biggest concerns of Farmers Union members nationwide. We need markets that are fair, open and competitive," Swenson said.

According to Swenson, many cattle producers have gone out of business and over the last several years because raising cattle is no longer profitable.

National Farmers Union is a general farm organization representing nearly 300,000 family farmers and ranchers nationwide. NFU serves its membership by assisting with education, by providing stimulus and know-how for farmer-owned cooperatives, and by presenting the organization's policies to lawmakers at the local, state and national levels.

"It's difficult to find someone willing to drive a truck during a snowstorm at 2:30 in the morning," he said. "Too many kids have been raised watching television. We always look for good farm boys."

Ritchey's has 25 full-time and seven part-time employees. "And," Oliver continued in regard to problems, "I'm convinced we have too much government today. We pay a decent wage, but when we make out the checks they shrink so drastically with the withholdings that I feel sorry for the employees. I wonder what the government expects them to live on.

"The government inspections have also gotten more stringent. We never thought of looking for antibiotics 20 years ago. Now, all milk is checked and dumped if there is a slight detection of any antibiotic.

"Government even gets in our hair over labeling. We have to be certain every label reveals the fatd, caloric, and protein content of every carton of milk. Those labels can run in the thousands of dollars.

"Then, of course, we always have a machine breaking down and the whole process slows down or stops until it is fixed. I guess it's what keeps life interesting," Oliver smiled.

Oliver Ritchey checks the meters on computerized milk and ice cream production machinery.

PUBLIC AUCTION

THURS., JUNE 18, 1998 - 12 Noon

Airville, York County, PA

Valuable 80+ acre Dairy Farm

At 12 noon Thursday, we will offer at Public Auction the Walter Kilgore Dairy Farm. This fine farm is only minutes from the Norman Wood Bridge, making as easy commute to Lancaster County.

The home consists of a 2 story Brick structure built in the early 1800's, 4 bedrooms & 1 bath, living room, dining room, and covered porch. The barn has 31 headlock stalls, 2" stainless steel pipeline to a 1000 gal. Sunset tank, Jamesway gutter cleaner. 3 silos all with unloaders, wagon sheds, 70' loafing shed, shop w/220 electric. Stocked pond too!

The fields will be planted for the 1998 harvest and buyer will get all the growing crops at the time of settlement. Be ready to fill silo this fall with growing corn.

Mr. Kilgore is ready for retirement and let a younger generation take over. Here is an excellent opportunity to purchase a good farm in a top location. We will be more than glad to show you this farm. Be prepared to buy!

DIRECTIONS: From the Norman Wood Bridge Road, go north on Rt. 74 to Bridgeton Road, turn left and go to stop sign, go straight through to first lane on left.

TERMS: 10% down payment day of auction, balance at settlement.

WOUNDED KNEE FARM
CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA

Owned and developed by Worrell Land & Cattle for 20 years, "Wounded Knee" includes over 1,000 acres, 5 homes, show barns and stables, an old country store, and beautiful private lakes and building sites - selling in 21 separate tracts. Also selling are the famous registered Limousin and Belted Galloway cattle - all equipment, tools and machinery - and two homes of antiques, collectibles and furniture.

This is a remarkable showplace property with miles of year round streams, pristine lakes and valleys and wooded hillsides offering complete privacy and abundant wildlife, less than 20 miles east of Charlottesville and 50 miles from Richmond. Located just off Hwy 15, south of I64/Hwy 250 and less than ten minutes from Lake Monticello and Marina near the Rivanna River, golf courses at Glenmore and Laurel Ridge; and the city of Palmyra. MRC FARM
Complete Milking Herd Dispersal
Sinclairville, NY
Thursday, June 11, 1998 • 7:45 pm
52 MILKY HOLSTEINS 52
Sale to be held at the farm located 1 mile north of Sinclairville, NY on Cty Rt. 133 (Water St.)

These are wide ribbed, good uddered milk cows They are housed in a tie stall barn. Keith & Ken have bought the best milk cattle off the real good herd dispersals we have conducted the past two years They do not raise their own replacements so it was never important to them to pick up and transfer the registration papers. They do have good eyes for cows and have enjoyed working with them This is a year round calving dairy which averages approx 65 lbs in the tank for the year Currently 6 are recently fresh with 12 due within 60 days of sale. SCC counts are in line Breeding is up to date The herd will be rechecked for pregnancy and milk weights recorded within 10 days of sale

Owners: Keith Carlson & Ken Morley

Terms: Cash or good check. Out-of-state or checks unknown to sale manager must be accompanied by bank letter of credit.

If you need profitable milk cows, you will be pleasantly surprised with this group.

PURINA DAIRY HERD PROFILE

These three beautiful, milky-looking cows in the Cedar Cove Farm herd are fed Purina feeds to bring out the full potential of their inherited genetics.

A barn scene from the Herr Hollow Farm shows a row of cows that produce so well on Purina feeds.

This two-year-old heifer in the Amish farm herd south of Strasburg has been fresh for nine months and is still milking over 100 pounds

"Cows Milk Real Good..."

Three Amish farmers in Southern Lancaster all have three things in common. They feed Purina feeds, they make a lot of milk, and they are served by Hess Mills, Paradise, with Rick Hess as farm consultant.

Cedar Cove Farm has been feeding Purina since 1990 and now has a rolling herd average of 24,800 pounds of milk. Thirteen cows are milking over 100 pounds and one has peaked at 135 pounds. The top individual record is 42,000 pounds.

"One thing I can say about Purina," the Amishman said. "Since I am on Purina, I think every second calf heifer has peaked at 100 pounds of milk or better. The cows milk real good and they keep on going."

At Herr Hollow Farm, they milk 42 cows that put out an average of 3,700 pounds o milk in the bulk tank each day. This Amish family has a long history of feeding Purina feeds and other family members are also Purina customers. With corn silage, hay, ground dry corn, 36 Concentrate, and Super EXT top dress, they have a 90 pound daily average on 2x with a top individual record of 148 pounds. This Amishman likes the nutritional advice he gets from Purina representatives who are "born dairymen.

The third Amish farm is located south of Strasburg and here they produced 1,300,000 pounds last year from 47 cows. At any given time you can find up to half the herd milking 100 pounds per day. A stand-out first calf heifer has been fresh nine months and is still milking 100 pounds per day.

"Purina feeds keep the cows immune system better," the Amishman said. "We just seem to have less health problems. Cows come in, calve out, and in two weeks they are milking over 100 pounds. We never had cows milk like this. And we don't have as many health problems as when we were getting less production.

All three dairymen recommend Purina to other dairymen because Purina feeds make more milk. They would not consider any other feed because they have never made more money than they are right now feeding Purina.

Rick Hess, farm consultant for John Hess II, Inc. keeps track of feeding programs with his modern laptop computer.
